Elko Community College Appoints New Instructor for Fall Term

David A. Lien has been appointed instructor in electronics for the 1969-70 school year, according to R. C. Lynch, president of Elko Community College.

Lien is in the process of finishing his doctorate in education, majoring in electronics, at the University of California Los Angeles. He has a masters degree with a major in secondary education from San Fernando Valley State College 1967, and his B.A. degree majoring in speech from Luther College Decorah, Iowa in 1956. Lien has also studied at George Washington University in Washington, D.C. and at Los Angeles City College.

He has had wide experience in electronics in both the academic and industrial fields. The past academic year of 1968-69 he was with the North Orange County J.C. District as an administrative intern in vocational education as well as a Kellogg intern in junior college work. From 1962 to 1968 he was with Hughes Aircraft Co. first as a project engineer from 1962-1965 and as manager of forecasts and planning from 1965 to 1968.

Previously Lien taught electronics at the Grantham School of Electronics in Hollywood from 1959 to 1962. From 1956 to 1959 he taught mathematics, physics, and speech in the Paulina Public schools. From 1953 to 1956 he was a radio station engineer for KWLC and KDEC, Decorah, Iowa. He is a member of the American Vocational Association, the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers, California Industrial Education Association, and the Orange County Industrial Education Association. He holds a First Class Radioteletype License with radar endorsement issued by the Federal Communication Commission. Lien, his wife Muriel, and their four children Joan, 13 years, Wesley 11, Rhonda 9, and Constance 7, will be moving to Elko in the near future.

College Grant Noted

Elko Community College will receive $10,400 in federal funds for student loans and grants to aid students at the college who are preparing for a law enforcement career, according to an announcement from U.S. Representative Walter S. Baring.

The funds for the Elko college are part of a $30,400 grant to three Nevada institutions. In addition to ECC, the University of Nevada, Reno campus, will receive $12,500; and the U. of N., Las Vegas, will receive $7,500.

Baring said the funds are provided by the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 and are allocated to the law enforcement education program. Loans are for up to $1,800 per academic year and grants are available to currently employed enforcement personnel and can be as high as $300 per semester, not to exceed the cost of tuition and fees.

Additional funds are expected to become available through an appropriation bill now pending before Congress, Baring said.

The law enforcement curriculum at Elko Community College has been one of the most successful programs at the Elko school and offers an associate degree in law enforcement and corrections at the end of a two-year course of instruction.

R. C. Lynch, president of ECC, said a dozen local students were enrolled in the program last year, and classes for the new year are slated to start Sept. 3 with J.B. Cudd serving as director.

Classes, taught by a series of different instructors for specific subject areas, are aimed at local law enforcement officers and employees of the Nevada Youth Training Center.

Plans also call for bringing outstanding experts to Elko for lectures and speaking engagements in connection with the law enforcement program, Lynch reported.

Accrediting Agency Taps Elko College

Officials at Elko Community College today received notification the school has been approved for correspondent status by the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools.

The Elko college will be listed as a correspondent in the September issue of "Accredited Institutions of Higher Education," a publication issued by the American Council of Education for the Federation of Regional Accrediting Commissions of Higher Education.

R. C. Lynch, president of ECC, reported this is the first step in accreditation. The new Elko school next will become a recognized candidate for accreditation, Lynch explained, and will be eligible for full accreditation after two classes have been graduated from the school's programs for Associate in Arts and Associate in Applied Science degrees.

Lynch also pointed out institutions established as correspondents of the Northwest Association usually qualify for federally sponsored educational programs.

Acceptance of the Elko school by the accrediting agency was made following a visit here last week by Dr. James F. Bemis, executive director of the Northwest Association.

While in Elko, Dr. Bemis made recommendations and suggestions that would further strengthen the college and assist it in obtaining its goals, Lynch reported.

Lynch and other school officials also are working with members of the faculty at the University of Nevada to achieve recognition of academic courses taught here for transfer credit to the university.

Dr. Jack Shirley, registrar on the Reno campus of the university, recently visited ECC; and a report on his findings was scheduled to be presented during a meeting today of college advisory board members with representatives of the board of regents of the university and the state department of education.

Elko College Receives Status Special to the Journal

ELKO — The Elko Community College has been approved for correspondent status by the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools.

This announcement was received by officials of the College Tuesday. R. C. Lynch, president, stated that this is the first step in accreditation. He explained that the college will be eligible for full accreditation after two classes have been graduated from the school's programs for Associate in Arts and Associate in Applied Science Degrees.

The president added that institutions established as correspondents of the Northwest Association usually qualify for federally sponsored educational programs.

Dr. James F. Bemis conferred with Elko school officials and shortly after his visit the accreditation was received. He is executive director of the Northwest Association. He also made recommendations that will assist toward higher recognition.

President Lynch and other school officials are working with the University of Nevada to achieve recognition of academic courses being taught here for transfer to the university.

Neil Humphrey, chancellor of the U. of N., will have a report ready shortly regarding the acceptance of transfer credit at the university for academic courses.

Faculty members at the college include Pepper Sturm, assistant to the president and instructor in political science and history; Delna Day, practical nursing instructor; Elizabeth Sturm, librarian; Ann Nisbet, home economics; Russell Lundgren, physics and mathematics; J. B. Cudd, psychology, sociology and corrections and Dave Lien, electronics.

College Program Reviewed During Meeting In Elko

Elko Journal 7/17/69
A review of steps necessary to gain full accreditation for the Elko Community College was presented during a meeting of members of the college advisory board with representatives of the University of Nevada board of regents and the Nevada department of education held Tuesday noon in Elko.

Attending the meeting were Neil Humphrey, chancellor of the U. of N.; R. C. Lynch, president of the college; four members of the state board of education, Louis Bergevin of Gardnerville, Donald Cooper of Fallon, Ronald Logar of Reno and Sam McMullen of Elko; members of the college advisory board, Burnell Larson of the state department, Mel Steninger, president, Dr. Hugh Collett, Mike Marfisi, Jerry Warren, and Bob Zander, all of Elko, and Connie Satterthwaite of Tuscarora and Willard Schulz of Wells.

Introduced during the meeting were Pepper Sturm, assistant to the president and instructor in political science and history; Elizabeth Sturm, librarian; Delna Day, practical nursing instructor; Ann Nisbet, home economics; Russell Lundgren, physics and mathematics; J. B. Cudd, psychology, sociology and corrections, and Dave Lien, electronics.

Marfisi accepted chairmanship of an opening ceremony for the college planned at the start of the fall semester.

College Accreditation Steps Reviewed Here

7-16-69 Free Press

Steps being taken toward full accreditation of Elko Community College were reviewed yesterday during a joint meeting of the college advisory board with regents of the University of Nevada and members of the Nevada Department of Education.

R. C. Lynch, president of ECC, reported that the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools had granted correspondent status to the Elko school; and discussed a visit here by Dr. Jack Shirley, registrar on the Reno campus of the University of Nevada.

Neil Humphrey, chancellor of the U. of N., said Dr. Shirley is expected to have a report ready regarding the acceptability of transfer credit at the university for academic courses within the next 10 days. Humphrey explained Dr. Shirley will meet with department heads and other university faculty officials to consider the eligibility of Elko courses on the basis of information provided by his inspection of the school and qualifications of instructors at the school.

Lynch introduced to the visiting boards seven members of the faculty at the new school. They included Delna Day, practical nursing instructor; Pepper Sturm, assistant to the president and instructor in political science and history; Elizabeth Sturm, librarian;

Ann Nisbet, home economics; Russell Lundgren, physics and mathematics; J. B. Cudd, psychology, sociology and corrections; and Dave Lien, electronics.

Humphrey introduced four members of the university board of regents who attended the meeting. They were Proctor Hug of Reno, chairman of the board; Harold Jacobsen and Al Seeliger of Carson City; and Molly Knudsen of Austin.

Burnell Larson, state superintendent of public instruction and a member of the college advisory board, introduced four members of the state board of education. They were Louis Bergevin of Gardnerville, chairman, Sam McMullen of Elko, Donald Cooper of Fallon and Ronald Logar of Reno.

Members of the advisory board, in addition to Larson, are Mel Steninger, president, Dr. Hugh Collett, Mike Marfisi, Jerry Warren and Bob Zander, all of Elko; Connie Satterthwaite of Tuscarora; and Willard Schultz of Wells.

Marfisi accepted an appointment to serve as chairman of an opening ceremony planned for the school at the start of the fall semester; and members of the state-level boards were invited to return to take part in the event.

After a lengthy discussion, in which regents and state education board members participated, the advisory board adopted a recommendation to the regents calling for recognition by the university of acceptable course work done at the Elko college without minimum stipulations as to the number of hours taken. The recommendation was passed to apply specifically to students who could not meet university entrance requirements on the basis of previous academic performance.

College Instructor Talks to Rotarians

Appearing as guest speaker before the Elko Rotary Club this week, David A. Lien, electronics instructor at Elko Community College, spoke on community college development nationwide, emphasizing the general lack of progress made by community colleges tied to state universities.

He emphasized the importance of Elko Community College becoming detached from University of Nevada control, and instead of being part of a Nevada community college system having total autonomy from other educational institutions in the state.

He stated that Elko Community College much more nearly resembles the other 1,000 community colleges in the nation than it does the university, and its goals and services to the community are such that its success is measured only by how well it teaches, not by faculty research and government contracts, as is the case with universities.

Lien stressed the important role occupational education plays in Community Colleges nationwide, and the emerging role it will play at ECC. With only one in six youths achieving a four-year college education, but with three-fourths of the nation's high school students being prepared to go on to college instead of being prepared for meaningful employment, the educational establishment needs to be looked at carefully to see why the schools are not preparing students for jobs, Lien declared. He pointed out that college activism is virtually non-existent among students taking courses designed to prepare them for trades and professions, that these students seem to have a sense of where they are going, unlike some of the liberal arts students who are causing so much campus unrest nationwide.

With less than 10 percent of occupations in the nation requiring a four-year college degree, the opportunities are virtually limitless for students with two years or less of occupational training at the community college.

Lien closed his address by noting that "If education is indeed preparation for life, and work is a major part of life, then we might assume that only the successfully employable are successfully educated."

Lions Hear About Elko College

The number of students and the school's library are the two biggest problems facing Elko Community College today. President Richard C. Lynch told members of the Elko Lions Club yesterday at that group's regular weekly luncheon meeting.

Lynch, who was introduced by Bill Sheen program chairman for the day, told the Lions that the college's aim for the coming school year is 150 full-time equivalent students. The college is guaranteed a minimum of $100,000 to operate on for the 1969-70 year from the state, Lynch said, but by achieving 150 students, the college's apportionment from the state would increase to $150,000.

In connection with the school's library, Lynch pointed out that the school now had 3,000 volumes but before the school becomes fully accredited a library of over 20,000 volumes will be necessary.

He also told the Lions about the college's "open door" policy; listed the various classes that will be available during the coming year; degrees that will be available at the school; the present faculty; and several federal loans now available to the college.

He asked those present to seriously consider enrolling in the college for one or more classes during the coming semester.

Also during the meeting Jim West, club member who is moving to Reno gave a brief speech concerning his membership in the Elko Club and thanked the members for a pleasant past nine years association.

Club President Bob Draper said that the club would not meet next Tuesday so that members could attend the Pacific Southwest Babe Ruth Regional Baseball Tournament

Another College Milestone

Elko Community College last week passed another important milestone when officials at the University of Nevada designated academic course work at the Elko college as acceptable for transfer to the university.

The acceptance was announced by N. Edd Miller, president of the University of Nevada at Reno, who said the new Elko school was given a "B listing." This rating means students who take academic course work in Elko can transfer the work done here to the university and receive full credit after 15 hours of study in residence at the university. Educators report other colleges and universities across the nation look to the state university in determining the acceptability of community college course work—so the acceptance by the University of Nevada paves the way for acceptance in most other schools.

As a result, students may now attend Elko Community College for freshman and sophomore level study with confidence the work done at the Elko school will be recognized for credit at other universities and colleges.

This new recognition of the Elko college is related to the granting of correspondent status by the Northwest Accrediting Association a few weeks ago. The two steps mark the beginning of the process by which Elko Community College will earn full accreditation as an academic institution.

From a practical standpoint, the new recognition will provide a considerable boost for the recruiting program at the Elko college. Students previously had been hesitant to enroll at the school because of the indefinite status of course transferability. Now they have assurance credits earned at Elko can be transferred to the University of Nevada and other institutions.—M

Transfer Agreement Reached for College

8-1-69

R.C. Lynch, president of Elko Community College, announced today that one of the major issues critical to the existence of Elko Community College has been resolved. Word has been received from Dr. N. Edd Miller, president of the University of Nevada, Reno, that agreement has been reached concerning transfer of credit from Elko Community College.

After Reno campus consultations with the Academic Council officers of the Faculty Senate, and discussions with Dallas Norton, Registrar at UNLV, President Zorn of UNLV and Dr. Jack Shirley, Registrar at UNR, it was recommended that Elko Community College be given a B listing by the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers.

President Lynch of Elko has stated that this B listing provides for the acceptance of credit at the institution to which a student transfers after the first 15 credits in residence are completed at the new institution with a C average or above.

President Lynch has also indicated that students not eligible to enter the University of Nevada may enroll at Elko Community College. Upon completion of 15 or more academic credits with a C or above average, the student will be allowed to enroll at the university.

Grand Opening Set For Elko College

Plans for a grand opening of Elko Community College at its new quarters at Eighth and Court Streets on Thursday, Aug. 21, were announced today by Mike Marfisi, chairman of the event.

be announced during the next few days, after arrangements are confirmed, Marfisi said.

Gov. Paul Laxalt and Robert Mayhew, representing Howard Hughes, are slated to take part in the ceremonies, which are scheduled to start at 11 a.m. in the new college quarters.

The college has moved into the former Elko Grammar School No. 1 building, which has been leased to the community college by the Elko County School District. Classes will open for the fall term at the college in September.

Marfisi reported other special guests at the opening ceremony will include regents of the University of Nevada; officials of the state department of education and others who have been instrumental in founding and developing the college in Elko.

He pointed out Gov. Laxalt and Hughes will be honored at the affair for their outstanding support of the Elko institution, which was formed here during the summer of 1967 with $50,000 in contributions from local donors. The school was granted legal status by the 1968 legislature, but denied operating funds by the lawmakers. Hughes then kept the college alive with a grant that funded the operation during 1968; and the 1969 legislature transferred the community college to the university system and voted a two-year operating budget.

Marfisi explained the date for the grand opening of the college was set in August to call attention several weeks before classes actually opened to the fact the new school is in full operation and now recognized as an academic institution offering transferrable course work.

Regents Told of Elko Accreditation Plans

Reno Nevada State Journal 8/7/69

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — University of Nevada Regents were told Saturday that Elko Community College would seek full accreditation after the first degrees are awarded in 1971.

The community college has been granted a "correspondent status" by the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools. Until accreditation is granted, officials said the policy to accept community college credits at both Las Vegas and Reno campuses would continue as long as a student had completed 15 credits at either campus with at least a "C" average.

U-N Talent Search Aids Needy Students

Elko Daily Free Press 8/7/69

The University of Nevada's statewide Talent Search, a program designed to assist "economically disadvantaged" youth to continue their post-secondary education, has received second-year funding for 1969-70 from the U.S. Office of Education. Originally funded in 1968, the Talent Search program has been working actively in every high school in Nevada. The new $44,000 grant is under the direction of W. E. Rasmussen, the project supervisor.

During the first year of operation, the Talent Search counselor traveled to 43 high schools in the state working with high school staffs and community groups to identify, motivate, and encourage "economically disadvantaged" high school seniors to continue their post-secondary education. Over 1,100 high school seniors throughout Nevada were interviewed and counseled during the 1968-69 academic year.

The scope and services of the program for 1969-70 have been significantly increased. Due to increased funding the project is able to add two new counselors creating a professional counseling staff of three. Each of the new counselors will have a major responsibility for the program in each of the high schools in a defined area of the state during 1969-70. One counselor will be stationed at the Elko Community College in Elko and work in the high schools and communities in the northern and upper central part of the state; another counselor is located at University of Nevada in Reno and is responsible for the high schools in the greater Reno-Sparks-Carson City area; and the third counselor will be stationed at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, campus and will be responsible for the southern end of the state.

The increase in scope, service and staff, according to Rasmussen, will permit the Nevada Statewide Talent Search to provide more and better post-secondary educational counseling services to the youth of the state. With the cooperation and interest of the high school principal and his staff, the Talent Search counselors will be readily accessible to the "economically disadvantaged" high school student Elko Community College already has the best correctional training center in the state and now wants national recognition, J.B. Cudd, director of the Institute of Law Enforcement at ECC, told members of the Elko Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

Cudd predicted the institute will bring national and statewide publicity to Elko. He explained very few colleges have institutes for educating people working or planning to work in correctional institutions; and a correctional training center for the entire state is planned in Elko.

"No one wants crime," Cudd said. "Statistics indicate 75 percent of the people who are sent to prison once later come back. Often it is not their fault they have not been treated correctly." He added some institutions have been able to reduce that 75 percent figure to as low as 20 percent.

Cudd said present plans call for a two-year program offering an associate degree in corrections. He also plans to

Laxalt Hails Elko College In Ceremony

Elko Community College was hailed today by Gov. Paul Laxalt as a statewide achievement during formal opening ceremonies of the institution in its new quarters at Eighth and Court Streets. It is the only community college in Nevada.

Gov. Laxalt said he hoped to see branches of the college established throughout Nevada in coming years and hailed Elko Community College as a statewide project and a statewide achievement.

Bill Wunderlich, another of the founders of the college, also provided a brief description of the start of the school and its critical moments. They recalled the legislature refused to provide funds and the college seemed about to die when Gov. Demand for Specialized Skills

-The Salt Lake Tribune, Monday, August 3, 1970

Junior College Sheepskin Paying Rich Rewards

By Leonard Curry
United Press International

WASHINGTON — These days it's easier for a junior college graduate to get a job than it is for a person with a new Ph.D.

In California, for instance, the Florissant Valley Community College placed all but four of its 175 graduates. The Flint, Mich., Community Junior College put all 93 of its registered nursing graduates in jobs with salaries of $5,000 or more.

The nation's biggest junior college — Florida's Miami-Dade, with an enrollment of 30,000 — got jobs for the 58 graduates of its Electronic Data Processing Program with salaries beginning at $3,400.

The demand for junior college graduates is coming at a time when many young persons with newly-acquired graduate degrees — or even a bachelor's — are jobless. Holders of advanced degrees in such fields as foreign languages and some of the sciences are finding no takers.

Para-Professional Fields

But the need for workers in the technical and para-professional fields is at a peak. And these are the categories — dental assistants, nurses, medical laboratory workers, law enforcement — on which junior colleges concentrate.

Brevard Junior College, Cocoa, Fla., and Davidson County Community College, Sandhills, N.C., landed jobs for all of their graduates in police administration. Mount Hood Community College, Portland, Ore., said, "We have a hard time keeping a student who has acquired a specialized skill in school for planned to continue their education. But the job demand was high for diploma or A.A. (the junior college degree of associate of arts) winners in data processing, air conditioning and auto technology.

Job Opportunities Slipped

Kenneth G. Skaggs, coordinator of the American Association of Junior College's Occupational Education Program, said in an interview that job opportunities this spring "were not as great as in the past, but they're (junior college graduates) still getting a half dozen offers each."

While one of every 10 youthful job seekers was unable to find work in June, the figure was only one in 20 for young men and women who finished junior college.

There are a few spots, however, where rising unemployment has touched the junior college job supply. In New York City, graduates of the Manhattan Community College "used to be choosy, but now they say, 'look, I need a job, I don't care what it is.'"

In Seattle, Wash., where Boeing Aircraft is laying off 20-year engineers, a state employment counselor said, "You can hardly expect the job market to be good for high school, junior college or even college graduates."

Outlook Bright

But over the long haul, the outlook is bright. The Labor Department says that technical and para-professional job openings should increase 36 percent by 1980, compared with a growth of only 13 percent for factory, mining and construction jobs.

There are 1,657 community colleges in the nation — and the number is increasing at the rate of more than one a week.

Nearly a third of the eight million college students in the nation attend these two-year colleges and, if the needed facilities are built, enrollment could exceed four million by 1980.

"Our kids are oriented to career and income," Skaggs said. "They are more oriented than liberal arts students who often have nebulous, vague objectives."

Few Demonstrations

Skaggs said that for these same reasons there are relatively few demonstrations on junior college campuses against pollution or the Vietnam War.

More than 700 junior colleges and two-thirds of all junior college students are concentrated in the urban areas of seven states — Washington, Illinois, Florida, Texas, Michigan, California and New York.

Because few junior colleges have dormitories, most students commute — something accomplished more easily in the city than in far-flung rural areas where a student may live 50 miles from the school.

The features of a junior college are low tuition, or in the case of California, no tuition, an open admission and a variety of appeal to the student who wants to do a four-year, degree college or the city youth who wants to

Because of these factors, the drop among junior colleges is about twice that of Nearly 60 new colleges have been opened in the past year and another 100 are to begin operations months.

Elko College Holds Opening Ceremonies Today

Special to the Journal

ELKO—Official opening ceremonies for the Elko Community College will be held today. Gov. Paul Laxalt, who has consistently supported the college, will be among the speakers. Mike Marfisi, a member and former chairman of the college advisory committee, will be master of ceremonies.

The ceremonies will be held at the former grammar school building on Court Street, which has recently been taken over by the college.

When the college opens for its fall term on Sept. 15, it will offer a full schedule. Registration has already opened.

Others to appear on the program will be Robert Mahen of Las Vegas, representing Howard Hughes, the principal financial donor to the college; Procter Hug Jr. of Reno, chairman of the Board of Regents of the University of Nevada; John Buntten of the Nevada Department of Education and Richard Lynch, president of the college.

Highlights of the two year's existence of the college will be outlined by Paul Sawyer, a member of the group which founded the college. Orchestra numbers will be offered by the Elko Community Orchestra under the direction of Lajla Lyon. Mel Steninger, chairman of the college advisory board, will be the closing speaker.

Many Dignitaries Attend Elko Community College Ceremony

Governor Laxalt Principal Speaker As School Is Officially Launched

Today was an historic day on Elko's calendar of growth and progress!

Taking place at 11:00 a.m. was the Opening Ceremony for the Elko Community College which will soon open its doors to what is hoped will be the equivalent of 150 full time students.

For many local residents, state officials and Governor Paul Laxalt, the official opening of the college here today marked the fulfillment of a long-existent dream. It was brought about, as speakers at the ceremony pointed out, after a long and difficult struggle in which the embryo institution gasped its last breath on several tragic occasions, only to rise and live again.

The ceremony was held at the Community College building, the old Court street grammar school which drew plaudits from the many visitors from other areas of Nevada who were here to attend the program, many on their first visit to this city.

Mike Marfisi, former chairman of the college advisory board, served as master of ceremonies and presented Rev. Charles Lindsay of the First Presbyterian church who delivered the invocation. The Elko community orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Lajla Lyon played several opening numbers and also a closing number on the program.

Richard Lynch, the first president of Nevada's first community college, delivered the welcoming address expressing appreciation for the attendance not only of many visiting dignitaries but several hundred local residents as well.

Bill Wunderlich and Paul Sawyer reviewed the history of the community college effort in Elko from its inception some three years ago following a visit of local residents to the Treasure Valley college in Oregon to the establishment of the state funded official institution opened today.

Sawyer pointed to the $50,000 contribution made by local residents to the college and said that there is much yet to be done to assure the success of the school. He pointed out that the need now is for students and said that the community should set as its goal "1000 students by 1975" how during that morning he had received word from Howard Hughes announcing a donation of $250,000 to the college cause. The governor recalled that when he made this announcement at the local meeting many adults in attendance openly shed tears of joy.

The governor was preceded to the speaker's stand by George Gund, one of Elko county's newest residents, who has made a substantial contribution to the college and by Thomas Bell who spoke in behalf of the Hughes interests. Bell was introduced by John Buntten of the State Department of Education who served as head of the local college for several months. Closing remarks on the program were made by Mel Steninger, chairman of the present college advisory board.

Among out of town visitors here today were Harold Jacobsen, Mrs. Molly Knudsen and James Bilbray, all university regents; Neil Humphrey, university chancellor, and Brynn Armstrong and Don Digilio, representing the Las Vegas Sun and the Las Vegas Review Journal respectively; and several representatives of Nevada TV stations and many others too numerous to mention.

Following the ceremony refreshments were served in the first floor hall and a tour of the facilities took place.

Laxalt Hails Elko College In Ceremony

Free Press 8-21-69

Elko Community College was hailed today by Gov. Paul Laxalt as a statewide achievement during formal opening ceremonies of the institution in its new quarters at Eighth and Court Streets. It is the only community college in Nevada.

Gov. Laxalt told an estimated 200 Elkoans who gathered for the ceremonies he had never worked on a project "that died so many times—but it wouldn't stay dead." He praised the work of residents of the area for their accomplishment and expressed the appreciation of the state and all who have worked on the college for the financial support provided by Howard Hughes, who donated $250,000 in May of 1968 for the statewide community college program.

The governor said this morning that a call last year from Hughes saying he would make the contribution to the Elko college and the state system was the best news he had received as governor.

Gov. Laxalt said he hoped to see branches of the college established throughout Nevada in coming years and hailed Elko Community College as a statewide project and a statewide achievement.

Paul Sawyer, one of the key men in starting the college, through contributions of $50,000 by local residents, traced the history of the school and issued a challenge to the school and the community to build the college to an enrollment of 1,000 students by 1975. Bill Wund-

He gave special thanks to Gov. Laxalt, who delivered the principal address and pledged the continued cooperation of the state in the development of the Elko college.

One of the highlights of this morning's program was provided by members of the Elko Community Orchestra who played under the direction of Lajla Lyon.

Mel Steninger, chairman of the college advisory board, concluded the program by announcing the receipt of an anonymous pledge for a contribution of "at least $3,500" to the new college. The donation was reported to the college in a letter from Robert O. Vaughan of the law firm Vaughan, Hull, McDaniel and Marfisi, who said the donor had asked to remain anonymous.

George Gund, who recently purchased a ranch near Lee and has loaned a collection of western art for display at the Northeastern Nevada Museum, was introduced by Charles B. Evans as one of the principal financial backers of the Elko college.

This morning's program opened with an invocation delivered by the Rev. Charles Lindsay of the First Presbyterian Church; and an official welcome was given by R. C. Lynch, president of the college.

Others on the program were John Bunten of the Nevada Department of Education and Thomas G. Bell of Las Vegas, vice chairman of the University of Nevada Board of Regents, who represented the Hughes organization and introduced Gov. Laxalt.

Elko College Launched Laxalt Thanks Hughes

Salt Lake Trib

ELKO, NEV. (UPI) — Elko Community College, launched on a financial shoestring and kept alive by community support, was officially opened Thursday.

Gov. Paul Laxalt and Robert Maheu, who represented school benefactor Howard Hughes, were among the dignitaries at the ceremony.

"I've never worked on a project that died so many times but wouldn't stay dead," Laxalt said.

He praised the work of Elko area residents and offers who gave support. They included Hughes, who gave $250,000 to the local college and the proposed statewide system.

Laxalt said the notification that Hughes was making the contribution was the "best news I've received as governor." Laxalt wants to build up the community college system to include campuses in other cities.

The 1969 Legislature made Elko part of the University of Nevada. The first extension classes were established at the Elko campus.

Evening classes were held in the local community center. Laxalt said the college would have 200 students in its first year.

Elko College Recognized By State

R. C. Lynch, president of Elko Community College, reported this week that he has received a letter from the Nevada State Board of Veterans Affairs.

Lynch said word received from the Board of Veterans Affairs regarding the Elko school means that the school meets the requirements of a candidate for accreditation.

Accordingly, the courses which lead to a baccalaureate degree may now be offered on a credit basis.

Lynch said that the approved vocational-technical courses offered by Elko Community College are full veteran's benefits.

It will no longer be necessary for a veteran to attend school through the Nevada State Board of Veterans Affairs in order to qualify for benefits, Lynch explained.

College Registration For Fall Announced

Elko Community College registration has been set for Sept. 11 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the college gymnasium at Eight and Court Streets.

Registration for night classes will be Monday and Tuesday evenings, September 14, 15, from 6:30 to 10 p.m.

Registration fees are charged at the rate of $6 per semester credit hour. Lab fees, identification card fees and other student costs will total approximately $15. Resident and nonresident students from the state will pay the same fees, and there is no additional charge for out of state students. Room and board are available at $460 per semester.

Elko Community College has a limited financial aid program to assist qualified students. Aids such as loans, grants-in-aid, time payments and student employment are granted to assist needy, capable students in meeting financial obligations.

This year ECC will partici-

Facinating Womanhood Offered at College 8/29/70

A marriage course for women, entitled "Fascinating Womanhood", will again be offered at Elko Community College this semester. Lucille Beverly will teach the class, which will be held each Monday night in room 9, from 7:30 to 9:30. The registration and first class will be held Monday, Sept. 14, at 7:30 p.m. Cost of the one-credit course is $15. The eight-week course will run until the first week in November, according to Mrs. Beverly.

The Fascinating Womanhood course, which was developed by the Fascinating Womanhood Foundation, is based on a book of the same name written by Helen B. Andell. Those taking the course study such chapters as—The Kind of a Woman a Man Wants, Acceptance, the Role of a Man, and Inner Happiness. Topics such as anger, jealousy, frustration and hurt are analysed and discussed.

Among the concepts which the students study are how to:

- Understand men, their characteristics and varying moods, and how to react to them.

—Become a truly feminine woman —Handle human frailties, such as anger, and how to be charming in doing so.

—Keep the lines of communication open in marriage, so that a good feeling exists and —Gain true happiness in marriage, while placing the husband's happiness as a primary goal.

Mainly, the course aims to teach the women how to handle marriage problems without creating more.

Mrs. Beverly, a grandmother, took the course three times in Las Vegas, intending to teach it here. After taking it, she retired from a successful banking career and devoted herself to homemaking. Her instructor was Diane Earl, who introduced the course to southern Nevada; teaching a total of 800 women. (There were 260 in one class which Mrs. Beverly took.)

The Elko class will be valuable to girls contemplating marriage and divorcees, as well as married women, Mrs. Beverly said. (The divorcees can gain an understanding of why their marriages failed, by taking Fascinating Womanhood she said.) Mrs. Beverly describes the class as a "self-improvement course" and a "blueprint for a happy marriage". "The fact that a woman just comes to the class shows her husband that she is interested in improving the marriage," Mrs. Beverly states.

The only class "homework" will be the day-to-day application in the home of what has been learned in class. In order to pass, the students must attend at least seven of the eight classes and take a final exam. If one misses more than one class, she may make it up the next session. Mrs. Beverly notes that a woman may re-take the class free, as many times as she wishes, if she brings two new students to each class.

College Brochures Available

Brochures and class schedules have been prepared for the new school year at Elko Community College and are available for all interested students, according to R. C. Lynch, president of the college.

He said anyone interested can pick up copies of the two documents at the college, located at Eighth and Court Streets.

The 42-page brochure includes detailed information on the school calendar (classes start on Sept. 15), admission and registration procedures, academic regulations, course offerings and faculty members. The booklet features a full-color photograph of the Ruby Mountains on the cover and includes a brief description of the Elko area and a history of Elko Community College.

The class schedule for the fall semester lists the times for a variety of academic, vocational and adult education courses to be conducted in the building leased by the college from the Elko County School District.

Two basic schedules are outlined, one for students able to attend during the day, and one for working students who prefer to attend school during evening hours.

The daytime schedule will start at 8:30 a.m. and continue until 3:50 p.m.; and the evening classes are scheduled from 7 to 10 p.m.

Adult education classes are planned during the evening hours. Classes in art, speech and photography have not yet been assigned a time slot, but will be scheduled after students enrolled in the classes indicate a preference.

College Class Opens Tomorrow

The Elko Community Class in Corrections will start Sept. 3, 1969, two weeks before the regular college opening on Sept. 15.

This course is being offered as a part of the in-service training program of the Nevada Youth Training Center. The classes will meet at the training center every Wednesday night from 7 until 10, and is open to any interested person. This class is offered to the public in cooperation with Nevada Youth Training Center by the Elko Community College Institute of Corrections and Law Enforcement.

The course will enable the student to earn 6 credit hours. It begins on Sept. 3 and ends on Jan. 28, 1970. The purpose of the course is to enable those working in the fields of crime prevention, law enforcement, correction, and rehabilitation to receive training that will up-grade their professional and educational standards.

Students interested in taking the course should contact the Elko Community College for registration. The college office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Anyone who cannot come during these hours should tele-

Marfisi Optimistic On ECC Enrollment

Mike Marfisi, a member of the advisory board of Elko Community College, yesterday told members of the Elko Rotary Club 51 full-time students already are enrolled for the fall semester at the college, which will start Sept. 15.

Marfisi expressed optimism the school will attain its goal of 150 full-time-equivalent enrollment this year; and predicted the college will meet the challenge issued recently by Paul Sawyer, one of the key organizers of the institution, to achieve an enrollment of "1,000 by 1975."

The first two years of accredited college work have been established in Elko now, Marfisi explained, and officials of the school will direct attention both to vocational-technical areas and toward academic programs.

The college is now staffed and organized to bestow associate degrees in arts and applied sciences in several different fields, he noted, and to provide low-cost, high-quality education that meets university requirements.

Marfisi also reported plans are being discussed for starting a basketball team at ECC, along with several other community enterprises.

He invited all residents of the community to stop by the college to discuss with staff members the benefits and advantages available at the institution. He suggested everyone should consider participating in the college program either as a part-time or full-time student, either for vocational or technical training or for academic advancement.

Marfisi was introduced by Bill Wunderlich, program chairman for the day, who also introduced H.P. Sturm, assistant to the president of the college. Sturm spoke briefly on the flexibility available under the community college concept and cited the ability of the Elko college to aid and counsel individual students.

College Has Faculty Meeting

Elko Community College held its first faculty meeting of the year Thursday September 4. For the first meeting only full-time instructors on a regular contract were present. Additional meetings will be scheduled involving all faculty including part-time staff.

The meeting opened with a welcome by President Richard Lynch and included a discussion of the philosophy, aims and objectives of the college. Two key words were stressed — "open door" and comprehensive.

The college will have open admissions and will provide a comprehensive curriculum designed to fit the needs of the community.

H. P. Sturm assistant to the President presided for the remainder of the session and discussed various aspects of registration and policies to be implemented. Additional workshop sessions are scheduled for the week of September 8.

Four New Teachers on Elko High Faculty

The advent of school has brought to light not only the anguished faces of returning students but also the addition of four new members to the faculty of Elko High School.

John Belther, a former resident of California, attended Burlingame High School in Burlingame, San Mateo Junior College, and the University of California at Berkeley, where he received a bachelors degree in astronomy. As this will be his first experience in teaching, he hopes to provide his students with a broad background in Algebra I and II.

Directing the chorus of EHS will be Larry Hoffman, formerly of Laramie, Wyoming. Hoffman has attended Laramie Junior and Senior High School, University of Wyoming at Laramie, and Eastern New Mexico University at Portales. Having attained a bachelor's degree in music, he has taught chorus, English, and history at Pumas Junior High in Texas, Fallon Junior and Senior High, and Richmond High School in California. He was also the president of the Nevada Music Educators, Western Zone, at Fallon for two years and a choral director at a Lake Tahoe music camp sponsored by the University of Nevada. Hoffman expressed the hope of having his students present concerts, musicals, and festivals throughout the year.

An addition to both the high school and community college faculties is David Lien. Venturing forth from Iowa, he attended Royal High School in Iowa, received a bachelor's degree in speech from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, attended George Washington University at Washington, D.C., Los Angeles City College, where he earned his masters degree in education, and Valley State in Northside, Calif. He is at present working on his doctorate in vocational education from the University of California at Los Angeles. Having worked as a project engineer in one of Howard Hughes' many complexes, opened an electronics school in Washington, D.C., and taught high school physics, math, speech, English, and electronics, Lien will teach electronics to juniors and seniors, with his senior level tuned to the college program. He hopes to teach the fundamentals of electronics and how they relate to daily life.

David Solheim, from North Dakota, attended school in Bismarck, North Dakota, Minnesota University, Concordia College, at Morehead, Minn., and Gustavus Adolphus College at St. Peters, Minn. Having majored in English and minored in history, he received his Bachelor of Arts degree in Education. Also a new recruit to the teaching profession, Solheim will teach English IV. and speech, and direct school plays, the debate teams, and the forensics team.

College Seeks Furniture for Student Lounge

An appeal was issued here this week for furniture to be used in outfitting a student lounge at Elko Community College.

R. C. Lynch, president of the college, said vending machines for soft drinks and candy bars and some furniture items already have been obtained for the new lounge area, but several more pieces still are needed. He said he hoped residents of the area would be able to provide the needed items.

These include, Lynch reported, a record player, television set, radio, several studio couches, sofas, lounge chairs and small tables.

Residents who wish to donate any of these items were asked to contact the college at Eighth and Court Streets or to call 738-3634.

Accrediting Agency Taps Elko College

Officials at Elko Community College today received notification the school has been approved for correspondent status by the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools.

The Elko college will be listed as a correspondent in the September issue of "Accredited Institutions of Higher Education," a publication issued by the American Council of Education for the Federation of Regional Accrediting Commissions of Higher Education.

R. C. Lynch, president of ECC, reported this is the first step in accreditation. The new Elko school next will become a recognized candidate for accreditation, Lynch explained, and will be eligible for full accreditation after two classes have been graduated from the school's programs for Associate in Arts and Associate in Applied Science degrees.

Lynch also pointed out institutions established as correspondents of the Northwest Association usually qualify for federally sponsored educational programs.

Acceptance of the Elko school by the accrediting agency was made following a visit here last week by Dr. James F. Bemis, executive director of the Northwest Association.

While in Elko, Dr. Bemis made recommendations and suggestions that would further strengthen the college and assist it in obtaining its goals, Lynch reported.

Lynch and other school officials also are working with members of the faculty at the University of Nevada to achieve recognition of academic courses taught here for transfer credit to the university.

Dr. Jack Shirley, registrar on the Reno campus of the university, recently visited ECC; and a report on his findings was scheduled to be presented during a meeting today of college advisory board members with representatives of the board of regents of the university and the state department of education.

Variety Of Classes Offered

Elko Community College is offering a wide range of classes during its Wednesday night sessions, according to R.C. Lynch, president of the college.

The classes range from accounting to welding to photography and electronics; and are conducted in the college building at Eighth and Court Streets, with the exception of courses in welding.

H.P. Sturm, director of admissions at the school, said openings are available in nearly every class and he urged Elkoans to attend the class of their choice this evening, at which time they can register for the course.

The accounting class will be taught by Stephen T. Parish, accountant with the firm of Semenza, Kottenger and Mc Mullen in Elko. He earned his degree at the University of Idaho in Moscow.

Two courses in welding will start tonight, including automotive welding to be taught by Bill Bellinger at the Elko High School shop; and diesel welding to be given by George Boucher at the Nevada Youth Training Center.

A course in assembly and construction in electronics, for beginners, will be presented at the college building by David Lien, head of the electronics department at the institution.

William Rearden, head of the English department of the college, will offer a course in business English; and Mrs. Lillian Anderson will give a class in tailoring for night students starting this evening; and John King will teach a course in photography.

Two additional counselors have been added to the statewide Talent Search program sponsored by the University of Nevada, Reno, to find and encourage economically disadvantaged high school seniors to continue their educations after graduation.

Stephen H. Dollinger of Reno, a former high school teacher in California, will have headquarters on the Elko Community College campus and will be responsible for 15 Northern Nevada high schools.

Edmond L. Lewis, a former Clark county teacher, will be stationed on the University of Nevada's Las Vegas campus and will be working with more than 3,000 high school students in the greater Las Vegas area.

Dollinger holds a bachelor's degree in journalism and a master's degree in guidance and counseling from the University of Nevada, at Reno.

Electronics Courses Offered by Elko College

Seven courses in electronics are offered this fall by the electronics department at Elko Community College, according to David Lien, head of the department.

Included in the program is one high school level course for students from Elko High School, Lien said. College students attend classes scheduled during the day and on three evenings each week.

Two "entry level" courses are taught during the evening sessions, to include basic electronics mathematics and electronics assembly and construction.

Lien reported a special course entitled "review for course challenge" is scheduled on Monday evenings for those who have extensive electronics training at company schools, in the military or through personal study. He explained advanced students who enroll in this course will be permitted to challenge for credit courses offered under the electronics degree program at the college, thereby shortening the time required for them to earn an Associate in Applied Science degree. He said there is no limit to the number of courses which may be challenged.

Lien added applications still are being accepted for the various courses, and said further information on the electronics program may be obtained at the college or by calling 738-3834.

College Enrollment Jumps To 273 As Classes Start

9/18/69

With 87 full-time students registered and a total of 273 full and part time students enrolled, the Elko Community college appeared today to be nearing its goal of 150 full time equivalent students which has been set by the administration for the first year of the authorized college program under the control of the University of Nevada.

Figures released by Vice-president Sturm were as of today and he expects that before close of registration on Sept. 30 there will be additional enrollments bringing the figure to the desired level.

While classes have started at the college, located now in the old Court street grammar school building and Sturm urges that students still considering to register do so immediately so that a minimum of class work will be lost.

There is still room in most classes for further enrollment. The course in photography has been set for Wednesday nights with John King as the instructor.

Registration for this week will be from 8:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. daily through Friday and from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday. Those wanting to take classes should come to the night classes as they are offered and may enroll at that time.

For further information call the College office 738-3634.

262 Students At Elko College On First Day

Elko Community College officially opened its doors yesterday to a first day enrollment of 262 students, according to tentative figures released today by R. C. Lynch, president of the college.

Lynch said final computations on the full-time-equivalent rating have not yet been completed, but the tentative statistics indicate the FTE enrollment is above the 100 mark.

Officials of the school are shooting for a full-time-equivalent enrollment of at least 150 for the fall term; and Lynch said the final count to determine fall enrollment will be taken on Sept. 30.

He said there still is room for students in nearly every class; and he urged local residents to sign up for courses of interest to them to swell the total enrollment to the goal of 150 FTE.

Registration will continue at the college for the next two weeks; and Lynch asked that students enroll as soon as possible in order not to miss too many class sessions.

He said residents may register this week from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily through Friday; and from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

At yesterday's opening ceremonies, students were welcomed to the new Elko Community College facilities at Eighth and Court Streets by Lynch, Elko Mayor Frank Weinrauch, Mel Steninger, chairman of the college advisory board, and H. P. Sturm, assistant to the president of the college.

College Recognized For Teacher Studies

Elko Community College has earned acceptance of course credits for recertification requirements for teachers, according to a letter received from the Nevada Department of Education.

Mrs. Helen Hughes, certification specialist with the state department of education, reported in a letter to R.C. Lynch, president of the college: "We now accept credits completed at Elko Community College for recertification credits."

Mrs. Hughes also explained in her letter that teachers who hold an elementary temporary certificate are required to earn renewal credits toward attainment of a degree. The holders of this type of certificate are those who have not yet earned a degree in the field required for certification.

Mrs. Hughes advised, "A teacher with this type certification would need a statement from the institution where she plans on receiving her degree that they would recognize, and accept, Elko Community College credits on their requirements."

Lynch invited teachers in this category to contact him to work out the necessary arrangements with the university where degree work is contemplated.

Lynch also explained teachers who hold permanent teaching certificates are required to accomplish six semester hours of credit work to be eligible for recertification at established periods of time—and this is the type of work that can be accomplished at the Elko college.

Silver Stage Players List First Offering

Tryouts will be held next week for "The Star-Spangled Girl," Neil Simon comedy hit scheduled to be presented locally by the Silver Stage Players Oct. 23, 24 and 25.

Play books are available through Tom Clark, phone 738-3514.

The Silver Stage offering will be directed by William Reardon, newcomer to the Elko theater scene who joined the faculty of the Elko Community College this fall as an English instructor.

With "Star-Spangled Girl," the local drama group tries its hand at a third Simon play, "Barefoot in the Park" and "The Odd Couple"—two other hits by the versatile playwright—were previously presented here.

Cast for the production is small, but a large number of area residents are needed to work on backstage crews.

Three speaking parts—two young men and a girl—will be cast after next week's auditions.

The play deals with two earnest friends struggling to put out a "protest" magazine, and the all-American girl who moves in next door and manages to send both of them into a romantic tail-spin.

Simon trademarks in the form of fast-moving dialogue and laugh-provoking situations give the play "charm, brightness and deft inventiveness," in the words of one critic.

The play is one of two to be offered by the Silver Stage Players this year. Season tickets for both productions available at a cost of $2.50 for adults and $1 for children.

Time and location of tryouts for the fall presentation will be announced later.

Student Loan Fund For Elko's College

Elko area residents last week moved quickly to establish a student loan fund for Elko Community College and as a result $900 contributed to the fund has provided financial assistance to nine students and boosted enrollment at the school proportionately, according to Paul Sawyer and Bill Wunderlich, who took the lead in establishing the fund.

Sawyer and Wunderlich responded to a call for assistance issued by college officials, who last week reported enrollment at the school stood at 145 full time equivalent students and said eligible students were ready to pay registration fees but needed short-term loans to make the necessary payments.

Wunderlich reported today the $900 was collected from eight donors, and loans were made to the nine students in the total amount of $513, with the largest loan being for $113 and the smallest for $17.

The fund, known as the ECC Trust Fund, operates independently of the regular college administration, Wunderlich explained, and students are required to repay the loans.

R. C. Lynch, president of the college, today reported he is confident the enrollment at the school topped 150 full time equivalent students for the official counting day last Friday. He added, however, that an audit of the registration figures is being conducted this week and the definite statistics will not be known until later.

Janet Sanford of Reno, internal auditor for the University of Nevada system, is conducting the audit and reported today the results should be announced later this week.

Elko College Nears Goal Set For Students

Elko Community College today has an enrollment of 244 paid up students, which amounts to an official enrollment of 145 "full time equivalent" students, or five short of the goal set for the new school this year.

R.C. Lynch, president of the college, said registration will remain open at the college through Friday of this week and he expressed the hope the goal of 150 "FTE" enrollment would be attained by that date.

He also pointed out several students are enrolled at the college but have not yet paid their registration fees. He said steps are being taken by the administration of the school to provide loan funds and scholarship funds, and if these are available by the end of the week the FTE enrollment will jump over the 150 level.

He explained the students are being allowed to remain in school in anticipation of the scholarship and loan funds, but will not be included in the official enrollment statistics until fees are paid. He added that local residents interested in providing financial assistance to ECC students are invited to contact him at the school.

Lynch said a small amount of money for student assistance will be available later in the semester but pointed out funds committed for immediate assistance to students would help boost the official attendance count that will be made at the end of this week.

The state legislature last spring authorized an appropriation of $1,000 per full time equivalent student at Elko Community College up to a maximum of 150 students or $150,000. Attainment of the 150 FTE enrollment will make the Elko school eligible for the maximum entitlement of state funds, Lynch explained.

A breakdown on the present enrollment provided by Lynch indicated 77 full time students are attending academic and vocational courses at the Elko school; and 167 part time enrollees make up the total of 244 paid-up students.

He invited residents of the Elko area to sign up for any one of the more than 50 courses being offered at the college by contacting his office in the ECC building at Eighth and Court Streets anytime during the day or the evening.

Autumn Art Festival Winners Announced

Elko Daily Press
10-28-69

The award winners of the 1969 Autumn Art Festival, sponsored by the Commercial Hotel and the Elko County Art Club, were announced last night. The exhibit is being shown in the east gallery of the Northeastern Nevada Museum in Elko and will remain open for public viewing through Friday, Oct. 31.

Two categories were judged by popular vote by the public. The other groups were judged by the museum director, Howard Hickson.

The popularity award went to Dee Domingo with a small oil painting of a derelict wagon.

The centennial group first award was won by Sally Doell with a pencil portrait. Second place went to Dee Domingo and third place to Mildred Byers. These winners will be presented with a painting by Louis Heinzman, Salt Lake City painter and instructor.

First and second place in the amateur field trip group went to Mildred Byers. Third place was taken by Lisa Bell and an honorable mention was given to Dora Waage.

Dee Domingo garnered a third award ribbon in the amateur black and white category.

In the amateur watercolor category, Mildred Byers won a first and third. No second was given.

The first award in amateur oil painting went to Nel Lamex, second place to Dora Waage and Doris Calder, third to Dee Domingo, and an honorable mention to Eva Parrish and Dora Waage.

Pearl Rowan won first and third in professional pastels. No second award.

In professional watercolor, Connie Morse took first place, Neva Robinson a second and an honorable mention, and third place went to Fred Ochi.

Neva Robinson also won first place in professional oil painting. Connie Morse took second place and Pearl Rowan won two third place ribbons. Jessie Dewar was awarded an honorable mention.

In the professional centennial category, Connie Morse took first place, Neva Robinson won second, and Irene Richardson was awarded a third.

In the professional field trip group, Pearl Rowan took second and third place ribbons. No first awarded.

Over 80 paintings and drawings were entered in the show. The artists may pick up their paintings at the museum on Saturday, Nov. 1, or on Sunday, Nov. 2.

Fleischmann Gift Set for Library

The Max C. Fleischmann Foundation today granted $100,000 to acquire a basic library collection for Elko Community College.

Chancellor Neil D. Humphrey of the University of Nevada System, in which the Elko college is now included, hailed the gift as "tremendous."

He explained that the lack of library books has been the biggest obstacle in the college's effort to seek eventual accreditation by the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools.

Elko Community College is now recognized as a correspondent by the Northwest Association. At the time of the accreditation visit last July, however, the association's executive director called the library situation "appalling."

He noted there was only $5,000 available in the 1969-70 budget for book acquisition and recommended an expenditure of at least $50,000 a year to build the book collection during the first two years.

It was after this report that the University Board of Regents appealed to the Fleischmann Foundation for assistance.

Additionally, college staff members loaned 4,000 volumes from their personal book collections for use by the students and a qualified university librarian is donating her services this year to release additional funds for library use.

In its proposal to the Fleischmann Foundation, the regents cited establishment of Elko Community College "as an example of the resourcefulness and initiative of the citizens of Elko county and the State of Nevada at large."

"From that starting point in 1967 to the present, Elko Community College has progressed from a fledgling local institution to a component of the University of Nevada System," the regents noted. "It is assumed that it is on its way to acceptance by the general and academic communities and accreditation as a two-year community college."

The college has about 180 full time equivalent students this year and is offering instructional programs of a general, vocational and technical nature as well as providing a two-year transfer program for students aspiring to a baccalaureate degree.

The Elko grant by the Fleischmann Foundation is the latest in a long list of gifts to educational and other projects benefiting mankind throughout the nation.

In the Foundation's 18-year history it has distributed $42.8 million, of which $23.7 million, or 55.5 percent, has gone to Nevada institutions.

Elko Unit Gets Library Gift

RENO, NEV. (UPI) — The Max D. Fleischmann Foundation Monday granted $100,000 to acquire a basic library collection for Elko Community College, the newest unit of the University of Nevada.

University Chancellor Neil Humphrey called the gift "tremendous." He said the lack of library books has been the biggest obstacle in the college's effort to seek eventual accreditation by the Northwest Assn. of Secondary and Higher Schools.

College Named GED Test Center

Elko Community College has been designated an official test center for a national General Educational Development testing service, according to an announcement today from R. C. Lynch, president of the college.

Lynch reported notification of the designation came from the Nevada Department of Education, and the college will administer the GED test under a contract with the American Council on Education, which maintains headquarters in Washington, D.C.

The test is given primarily to job applicants who lack a high school diploma, but who can qualify for a particular job by achieving a satisfactory score on the GED test, Lynch explained. He said passing the test provides a "high school equivalency" status for job seekers.

Lynch also said applicants are allowed 10 hours to take the comprehensive test, which will be administered at the college, Eighth and Court Streets. A $5 fee is charged by the college for each test administered.

College Sets Student Body Elections

It's student body election time at Elko Community College, with the balloting deadline for the part-time students tonight and the full-time students will vote tomorrow in the college's student lounge. The deadline for full-time students' ballots is 2 p.m. Friday.

Student body office candidates are: president—Lewis Grimes, Torrey Sheen and Dick Prunty; vice president—Fred Beitia and Louis Carey; secretary—Brenda Bigelow and Pamela Miglioretto; treasurer—Judy Salicchi and Verdene Monson; full-time girl representative—Sheryl Munger; full-time boy representative—Scott Munger; part-time representative—John Beitia.

Making up the election committee are faculty members, William Reardon and Russell Lundgren and students, Ray Hawkins and Brigitte Plain.

Fleischmann Grant to College

Elko Community College took another major step toward permanent national recognition yesterday when announcement was made that the Max C. Fleischmann Foundation had granted $100,000 to the Elko institution for acquisition of a library.

The need to develop a library stood as one of the toughest hurdles on the obstacle course leading to full accreditation; and the grant from the Fleischmann Foundation means that hurdle has been cleared. Other challenges to gain acceptance by the Northwest Accrediting Association should be met easily within the minimum time requirements.

The gift from the Fleischmann Foundation again points up the vital role played by the directors of the foundation in the development of Nevada. During the 18-year history of the foundation it has distributed $42.8 million, with $23.7 million (or 55 percent) donated to various Nevada institutions.

The foundation has made a significant contribution toward the improvement of the University of Nevada; and here in Elko the hospital, the museum and other recipients have benefited from grants by the Fleischmann Foundation.

At a time in the development of the state when many are speculating as to whether the cow counties can survive under control by the urban areas, the history of Elko Community College may provide an insight into the future.

The college got its start when residents of the community backed the idea with donations of $50,000; the project seemed to be teetering on the brink of collapse when Howard Hughes of Las Vegas made a timely contribution of $250,000 (half to Elko and half to the state for development of a statewide program); the 1969 legislature, which was controlled by big city interests, voted to fund the school for 1969 and 1970 as a separate arm of the University of Nevada system; and the Fleischmann Foundation, which maintains headquarters in Reno, has provided the grant that should pave the way toward permanent accreditation.

That history does not indicate the residents of this particular cow county have suffered too badly at the hands of the "big city interests." The initial impetus came from members of this community; and vital sustaining aid has been provided by benefactors in Las Vegas and Reno and by a legislature dominated by representatives of those two communities. We are sufficiently optimistic to believe that same pattern of support for worthwhile projects undertaken by residents of the cow counties can continue even after the 1971 reapportionment of the legislature.—M

Career Day Scheduled at Elko High School Tomorrow

Career Day, sponsored by Rotary, will be presented to juniors and seniors at Elko High School, Nov. 18.

As one of several community service projects planned, the Rotary Club, under the chairmanship of Jerry Warren, will coordinate plans to have various speakers representing numerous vocations appear at the high school. Each participant will be poised to share with the interested students a portion of their insight, experience, and interest in the particular field they have devoted their lives to.

The objective of Career Day is to provide a helpful background and incentive that will allow students to scrutinize and decide upon a vocation that will not only aid themselves but also the community in which they will live. Warren commented that the "selection of a trade or course of study to be pursued in college is one of the most important decisions a young person must make. Therefore, students should look upon Career Day as an important source of information on which to base their decision. It is an opportunity to get firsthand information on a diversity of fields."

An event that will consume a normal school day, ten periods of thirty minutes each will allow a student to choose vocations which beckon him and fields which pique his imagination.

The various vocations to be presented and the individuals representing that field are: Accounting, Ralph Paoli; Agricultural Occupations, Jerome J. Molof; Airline Stewardess, Airline Transportation, William Goodier; Anesthetist, Karl Kuehn; Architect, R.A. She will present caps to the following students: Grace Bradley, Lori Bernasconi, Cheryl Carpenter, Teresa Moon, Frances Odekirik, Betty Pitts, Carla Wilber, Shirley Warren, Rosella Wilde, Bernice Zilllich. Friends and neighbors of the class of 1970 are cordially invited to attend.

Regent Tells Rotarians of School Growth

Gives Views of Youth of Today; Praises Local College Effort

Harold Jacobson, regent of the University of Nevada System, gave Elko Rotarians some words of wisdom about modern youth and also some encouraging words about progress of the Elko Community College when he spoke to the local club during the noon meeting of the group at the Commercial hotel yesterday.

Jacobson pointed to the growth in the university which has taken place since he became a regent in 1962. At that time there were 3,361 students and the budget was just over $3,000,000. Today, he pointed out, there are 10,500 students and the budget is just under $20,000,000. There were nine regents when he took office and there are now 11.

The university then consisted of the Reno campus and a branch at four major arms, the Reno University, the Las Vegas University, now the Community college system.

MODERN YOUTH

Speaking on modern youth, Jacobson said, "We just can't keep telling our young people how tough it was when we were kids. They know how tough it was because we have told them. They have many advantages today because we have given them advantages, opportunities and material things we didn't have. But they are looking for challenge. Happiness comes from accomplishment and our youngsters today want to face challenges and do things on their own. They want to improve on the world we have provided for them."

Jacobson said that he was sure the "hippies, yuppies, drop-outs, and the like" make so much noise

Fleischmann Grant to College

Elko Community College took another major step toward permanent national recognition yesterday when announcement was made that the Max C. Fleischmann Foundation had granted $100,000 to the Elko institution for acquisition of a library.

The need to develop a library stood as one of the toughest hurdles on the obstacle course leading to full accreditation; and the grant from the Fleischmann Foundation means that hurdle has been cleared. Other challenges to gain acceptance by the Northwest Accrediting Association should be met easily within the minimum time requirements.

The gift from the Felischmann Foundation again points up the vital role played by the directors of the foundation in the development of Nevada. During the 18-year history of the foundation it has distributed $42.8 million, with $23.7 million (or 55 percent) donated to various Nevada institutions.

The foundation has made a significant contribution toward the improvement of the University of Nevada; and here in Elko the hospital, the museum and other recipients have benefited from grants by the Fleischmann Foundation.

At a time in the development of the state when many are speculating as to whether the cow counties can survive under control by the urban areas, the history of Elko Community College may provide an insight into the future.

The college got its start when residents of the community backed the idea with donations of $50,000; the project seemed to be teetering on the brink of collapse when Howard Hughes of Las Vegas made a timely contribution of $250,000 (half to Elko and half to the state for development of a statewide program); the 1969 legislature, which was controlled by big city interests, voted to fund the school for 1969 and 1970 as a separate arm of the University of Nevada system; and the Fleischmann Foundation, which maintains headquarters in Reno, has provided the grant that should pave the way toward permanent accreditation.

That history does not indicate the residents of this particular cow county have suffered too badly at the hands of the "big city interests." The initial impetus came from members of this community; and vital sustaining aid has been provided by benefactors in Las Vegas and Reno and by a legislature dominated by representatives of those two communities. We are sufficiently optimistic to believe that same pattern of support for worthwhile projects undertaken by residents of the cow counties can continue even after the 1971 reapportionment of the legislature.—M

College Designated As Official Test
Center Announced

Elko Community College has been designated an official test center for a national General Educational Development testing service, according to an announcement by R. C. Lynch, president of the college.

Lynch reported notification of the designation came from the Nevada department of education, and the college will administer the GED test under a contract with the American Council on Education, which maintains headquarters in Washington, D.C.

The test is given primarily to job applicants who lack a high school diploma, but who can qualify for a particular job by achieving a satisfactory score on the GED test, Lynch explained. He said passing the test provides a "high school equivalency" status for job seekers.

College Officials Start Plans For Purchase Of New Materials

The dream of most librarians—to have $100,000 in cash to spend for books — was fulfilled for Mrs. Elizabeth Sturm, librarian for the Elko Community College this week when it was announced that the Max C. Fleischmann Foundation had granted that amount of money to the college to acquire a basic library collection.

Today Mrs. Sturm and President Richard Lynch, together with staff members of the new institution of higher learning, are preparing to set the wheels in motion to obtain the books for the library, a chore which it is estimated may require six months for completion of the initial purchase. The foundation grant actually provides $50,000 per year for two years.

Mrs. Sturm said today that the money provision will make it possible for the school to obtain its basic library requirements but that there would have to be some selectivity in the first purchase. She said that the books will probably be obtained through a book processing center in the department of education in Carson City which places the book orders, receives and catalogs them and sends them on to the college.

Lynch returned today from Reno where he conferred with Neil D. Humphrey, chancellor of the University of Nevada, of which the local college is a part, and had been informed that the Fleischmann money has been paid to the university in cash and has been invested in U.S. treasury certificates to earn interest pending the time that it will be disbursed.

An increase in the library books made possible by the grant presents some problems to the college library, Mrs. Sturm pointed out this morning. Additional space will be required and new shelving will have to be acquired.

Humphrey hailed the gift as "tremendous." He explained that the lack of library books has been the biggest obstacle in the college's effort to seek eventual accreditation by the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools.

Elko Community College is now recognized as a correspondent by the Northwest Association. At the time of the accreditation visit last July, however, the association's executive director called the library situation "appalling."

He noted there was only $5,000 available in the 1969-70 budget for book acquisition and recommended an expenditure of at least $50,000 to build the book col-

Elko Community College will mark another first in the books tomorrow night when the fledgling institution fields a basketball team in an encounter with the College of Southern Idaho, Twin Falls.

Student elections recently conducted at the Elko college determined the name for the new team will be the Cowboys; and the school colors were established as purple and silver.

R. C. Lynch, president of the institution, also will serve as basketball coach. He reported a squad of 13 players will take the floor tomorrow to represent the Elko college in the tilt with Twin Falls.

Lynch also reported some difficulty had been experienced in obtaining uniforms on short notice in the silver and purple colors. As a result, he reported, the Elko college squad will take the floor in white and purple suits.

The contest is scheduled at 7 p.m. tomorrow in the Centennial Gymnasium at Elko High School.

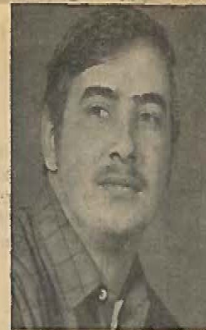

Lynch urged local cage fans to turn out for intercollegiate clash, pointing out the college plans to pay for the new uniforms and finance a scheduled trip to Baker, Ore., with game proceeds. He said admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

The schedule calls for a two-game exchange during January with Baker College, with the Oregon squad slated to play here on Jan. 9 and the Elko team travelling to Baker for a Jan. 16 tilt.

Local Players Offer 'Refreshing' Comedy

By Reviewer
What happens when an "All American girl"—who believes the best things in life are apple pie, the American way of life and swimming for your country in the Olympic Games—moves next door to a couple of publishers of a would-be protest magazine, the main aim of which is to offer a remedy for America's "sick society"?

The answer is offered in the Silver Stage Players production of Neil Simon's delightful comedy "The Star Spangled Girl", which began a three-performance run at the Elko High School auditorium last night. The play will be presented tonight and tomorrow at 8 p.m.

Members of the three-player cast, all newcomers to Silver Stage productions, show fine timing in the delivery of the many funny lines spread throughout the play. The laugh-filled situations during the course of the production—directed by another newcomer to Silver Stage, Bill Reardon—offer two hours of happy entertainment as last night's audience will attest.

"Star Spangled Girl", the first Silver Stage play of the season, is a refreshing addition to the Christmas season.

The plot of the three-act play set in a San Francisco studio apartment revolves around two co-publishers of a magazine ("Fallout"), which protests the things that are happening to America. The two men, Andy Hobart (Wayne Miller) and Norman Cornell (Jim Holdren), are only one step ahead of bill collectors and a rent-seeking landlady in their efforts to produce a worthwhile publication.

The relationship between Andy, who is the editor, advertising salesman and companion of the landlady—to forestall paying the rent—and Norman, described as the "best 14 writers in America", falls apart when Southern Belle Sophie Rauschmeyer (Jane Sabala), called a "star spangled corn pone" by Andy, moves next door.

Sophie—who proudly swam for the United States in the Mexico City Olympics, but finished sixth—is a swimming teacher at the YWCA until Norman takes charge.

The quadrangle—Andy, Norman, Sophie and "Fallout"—reaches a climax in the third act, which is highlighted by a hilarious "fight".

A note to those planning to attend the play during its final two performances, get there early enough to listen to the fine pre-show music dispensed by the Elko Community Orchestra under the direction of Lajla Lyon.

Education Administration Course Slated

A graduate level course in the basic principles of educational administration will be offered here by the University of Nevada in cooperation with Elko Community College, according to an announcement here today.

The course, designated as School Administration 900, will be taught by Dr. Ed Lovelless; and registration is scheduled at 7 p.m. next Friday, Jan. 23, at the college building, Eighth and Court Streets.

'Nutcracker' Ballet In Elko December 4

San Francisco's Ballet Celeste will present a one-night performance of the famous Christmas ballet, "The Nutcracker," at 8 p.m. next Thursday, Dec. 4 under the sponsorship of the local chapter of the American Association of University Women.

A spokesman for the ballet troupe said a cast of more than 50 will participate in the production and more than 200 costumes will be used in the three-act ballet.

Tickets for "The Nutcracker" are being sold by AAUW members at $1.25 for children and $2.50 for adults and are available at Lundberg's, 369 Fifth St.

The spokesman reported proceeds of the event will be donated by the AAUW to the Elko Community College to help in establishing the library which recently received a $100,000 grant from the Fleischmann Foundation. The spokesman explained the AAUW donation is expected to be used for shelves and other items that will be needed to accommodate books purchased with the Fleischmann grant.

"The Nutcracker" has been a world-wide favorite ballet for more than 75 years, the spokesman said, since Tschalkowsky composed the score for a fete for the Tsar and his family in St. Petersburg, Russia. Since then, the ballet has been presented in all parts of the civilized world to audiences that number in the millions.

The Ballet Celeste cast will be headed by Asta Arisa and Florin LuBall, both former stars of European stages. They have toured both in Europe and the United States extensively and are now guest stars with the California company.

Also included in the cast will be several small children and young dancers who have been invited to appear next August in Osaka, Japan, during the World International Exposition.

College Plans Tax Course

Elko Community College will offer a short course on Income Tax starting this Thursday evening, Jan. 15. The course will run, Tuesdays and Thursdays through Feb. 3.

The instructor for the course is Leo P. Fernandez, Internal Revenue Officer for this region. Changes in the Income Tax laws as well as the explanation of the new forms will be explained, along with general instruction concerning tax laws.

This course should be of interest to the small business operator, as well as to those individuals who make out their own income tax, a college spokesman said.

The course starting will have a $10 fee. Enrollment can be made at the college from now until Thursday night.

For further information, call Elko Community College at 738-7241.

College Registration Under Way

Registration at Elko Community College has been underway since Monday, January 26, and will continue throughout the next week. All prospective full-time students or those interested in part-time work may register during this week. However, after Friday, Jan. 30, a late fee will be charged for all those still wishing to enroll in college classes.

A number of evening classes still have openings. These courses are: Highway Engineering, Statics and Materials, Criminology, Group Counseling, American Literature, Beginning Tailoring, Advanced Tailoring, Art and Office Machines.

All interested persons are urged to stop by the college for further information or call 738-7241.

College Class Set in Carlin

Arts and crafts for elementary and secondary teachers will be taught in an Elko Community College course which will begin in Carlin next week.

Mrs. Stephen Farrell will instruct the three-credit course at room no. 6 of Carlin Elementary building.

Registration for the course and the first class will be at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 24.

Persons interested in joining the Elko Civil Air Patrol are urged to attend the meeting at 7:30 tonight in Room 14 of Elko Community College. New memberships will be issued tonight, according to Elko Fire Chief Bill Bellinger, who said the group needs radio operators, observers, owners of 4-wheel drive vehicles, dune buggies and snowmobiles as well as fliers.

Square Dance Class Set At College

A 16-week beginners square dancing class will begin Tuesday, Feb. 3 at Elko Community College.

Enrollment fee for the course is $8 per person and details may be obtained by calling the college.

Elko Community College 1969's Top Story in Elko County

By Catherine Tate
The sixth decade of the 20th Century was ushered out by a Centennial year of dynamic growth for the city of Elko.

Dominated by continuing development of the community college and by an unprecedented construction boom, 1969 brought news of a generally positive nature to the area—marred largely by uncertain prospects for the future of public transportation to and from the city.

Elko Community College Nevada's first community college—formed on a shoestring and $50,000 donated by Elkoans in the summer of 1967—had moved into its own quarters, organized a basketball team, started its library and acquired about 180 full-time equivalent students (320 total) by the end of 1969.

University credit courses were expanded, new courses added, scholarship funds established and counseling service inaugurated after the 1969 state legislature transferred the school to the state university system and voted a two-year operating budget of $325,000.

On July 15, the college advisory board was notified the school had been approved for correspondent status by the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools... a real milestone for the fledgling institution.

College Advisory board chairman Mel Steninger pointed out the $50,000 investment made by Elko's citizens three years ago would return more than $200,000 during the 1969-70 school year.

The college moved into the old Grammar School No. 1 building Aug. 21, and set a goal of 150 full-time equivalent students for the fall term.

Full accreditation became a visible goal with the removal of a major obstacle—lack of a library. The school was notified Nov. 10 of a $100,000 Fleischmann Foundation grant earmarked for the library.

By fall, the college was offering instructional programs of a general, vocational and technical nature as well as providing university transfer programs and was assured a permanent place in the community.

Additional Grant Given To Elko College

President R. C. Lynch of Elko Community College received notification from the United States Department of Justice of an additional grant of $14,800 a supplement to the previous award of $10,400 made in August of this year.

Lynch pointed out the additional student loans and grants would enable anyone seeking to enter the fields of law enforcement and corrections an opportunity to do so at minimum expense to themselves.

The grant money enables those students seeking education in law enforcement and correction an opportunity to borrow from the fund to complete their education and training, as well as receiving a grant in payment for their college course work. Although payment of college tuition is made for both part-time and full-time students, the loans are limited to the full-time student or those taking more than 12 credit hours per week.

Lynch emphasized the opportunity of receiving the training and education at government expense is open to those students or interested people who wish to train for law enforcement and corrections. This unusual grant is made for this year and the $25,200 grant should enable all of those interested to enroll in Elko Community College and receive an Associate in Arts degree in Law Enforcement with only minimal cost to the students, Lynch said.

Students interested in obtaining the benefits of this program should contact J. B. Cudd, director of the Institute of Corrections and Law Enforcement, at the college or call the registrar's office at 738-7242.

Oregon Defeats Elko College

1/10/70

Baker, Oregon College used a sharp passing attack and a balanced offense to defeat the Elko Community College Cowboys, 78-61, last night in a basketball game played in the Centennial Gymnasium.

The Rams had four players in double figures to offset a brilliant individual performance by Elko's Paul Bilbrey. Bilbrey, a former Battle Mountain High School star, finished the night with 34 points to take game honors.

However the visitors' Bruce Bowhall hit for 21 points, Rich Hackworth and John Goodyear, 18 each and Ernie Ross, 11 to wrap up the victory.

The game was close in the opening minutes as both teams were cold and not hitting with any consistency.

After Elko had tied the game at 7-7, the invaders roared off to a 15-7 margin and were never really threatened again. The Rams were on top by nine at intermission, 39-28.

In the second half, the Rams used a sharp passing game—always seeming to find the open man—to increase their lead to as much as 17 points. Elko errors thwarted any sustained attack by the Cowboys.

The Cowboys closed the gap to 10 points in the final two minutes, but the winners used the charity line to ice the decision.

Both schools are in their first year of competitive basketball and Baker is now 5-8 for the season and Elko is 1-3.

Elko College Seeks Funds For Cagers

Students enrolled at Elko Community College have donated $50 to help meet expenses of a fledgling basketball team fielded this year by the school—and R. C. Lynch, president of the institution and ex-officio coach, today invited Elko residents to join the effort.

Lynch pointed out no school funds have been budgeted for the cage squad, so uniform purchases and expenses for a recent trip to Baker, Ore., must be met primarily through donations from various sources.

Students at the college contributed the $50 to make the trip to Baker when it appeared, at the last moment, not enough money was available for the journey. Lynch declared today that without the financial support of the students the trip would not have been possible.

He also pointed out the college team is participating in the Elko City Basketball league, but has not yet raised the necessary $60 entry fee required of all teams playing in the league.

Lynch asked that any residents of the area willing to donate toward the uniforms, the travel costs and the city league entry fee contact the college office at 738-7241.

Michigan Man Heads Nevada College System

A Michigan educator who heads one of the top-rated junior colleges in the nation will become the director of the Community College division of the University of Nevada System.

Appointment of Dr. Charles R. Donnelly, 48, to the new post by the Board of Regents was announced today by Chancellor Neil D. Humphrey.

Dr. Donnelly has been president of the 8,000-student Flint Community Junior College at Flint, Mich., since 1964. He has devoted most of his professional career to the Flint institution, previously serving as associate dean for instruction, administrative assistant in curriculum, instructor in English and Journalism, and baseball coach.

Upon moving to Nevada about March 1, it will become Dr. Donnelly's duty to plan for the development and administration of a community college program covering all of Nevada. His salary will be $25,000 per year.

The existing Elko Community College will be within the jurisdiction of the statewide program, as will any similar institutions which may be developed. A study prepared for the State Department of Education has suggested formation of community colleges in both Reno and Las Vegas.

The community college program was made a division of the University of Nevada System by the last legislature.

Dr. Donnelly obtained his undergraduate education at Hillsdale College in Michigan and subsequently was awarded the master's and doctorate degrees by the University of Michigan.

Dr. Donnelly served as an instructor with the Army Signal Corps during World War II and before that was a high school teacher in Rockwood and Allen, Mich.

He and his wife, Marilyn, are the parents of six children ranging in age from 21 to 6.

College Registration Under Way

Registration at Elko Community College has been underway since Monday, January 26, and will continue throughout the next week. All prospective full-time students or those interested in part-time work may register during this week. However, after Friday, Jan. 30, a late fee will be charged for all those still wishing to enroll in college classes.

A number of evening classes still have openings. These courses are: Highway Engineering, Statics and Materials, Criminology, Group Counseling, American Literature, Beginning Tailoring, Advanced Tailoring, Art and Office Machines.

All interested persons are urged to stop by the college for further information or call 738-7241.

Educators Back From Vegas Trip

President R. C. Lynch of Elko Community College, and Charles H. Knight representing Elko County School District, have returned from a two-day consortium on the University of Nevada, Las Vegas campus. The purpose of this meeting was to discuss the educational project ATTRACTS (Attracting and Training Teachers for Rural Areas and Critical Specializations.)

The proposal, as advanced by UNLV, will provide for cooperative educational endeavors between UNLV, ECC, and the eastern counties in the state, with UNLV to establish training centers in Ely and Elko. A full-time staff member from UNLV would be stationed in each center and would be available for instruction purposes in both lower division and advanced courses.

In Elko the community college would provide the lower division courses necessary for the program.

The purpose of the project is to promote "more qualified teachers", and seeks to tap the reservoir of people with varying amounts of college education who are outside existing educational institutions. Training as necessary will be provided to prepare such persons for hard-to-fill positions.

Tax Class Enrollment Ends Tonight

Elko Community College is offering a short course in preparing Income Tax forms which should be of interest to everyone, whether you prepare and file your own form or have it done by others.

Tonight, Thursday, Jan. 22, is the last opportunity to enroll in the short course in Income Tax. Mr. Fernandez will have an auditor from the accounting office of the I.R.S. address the class and answer questions at one of the sessions of the class.

The short course has a fee of $10. The class meets Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Elko Community College room 15.

Interested people may enroll tonight between 6:30 and 7:00 p.m. so they may attend the class session.

The morning after the night the story broke linking his name to the gamb- ling investigation, for example, he knocked on the hotel door of Don Fortune, a KMBZ staff man he was working with in New Orleans, at 7:45 a.m. and said:

"I'm sorry I missed you last night. We've got work to do. Let's get busy."

Four days later, after he went out and directed the Chiefs to their upset victory over the Minnesota Vikings in the Super Bowl Sunday, he was being pinned up against a wall in the Kansas City dressing room when somebody with the Chiefs suggested he move into another room. Dawson refused because Fortune already had his gear set up in that spot.

"I've got my work to do," Dawson said, while most everybody in the crowded dressing room wondered what possible work he meant.

Hero Hughes Rescues
 Nevada Once Again

Howard Hughes has come to the rescue of Nevada once again, and it will be interesting to hear what the hand-wringers and the doom-criers come up with attempting to make it look like Hughes is a bad guy.

This time the billionaire hermit at Las Vegas agreed to buy $8 million worth of airport expansion bonds at seven percent interest, the statutory maximum that had not attracted other buyers.

The bond purchase by Hughes was a tremendous public service to the taxpayers of Nevada because the move avoided the necessity of allowing state legislators an opportunity to perform their various feats of strategy in raiding the state treasury to buy votes in the home district. We refer, of course, to a special session of the legislature that would have been inevitable had Hughes not bailed out the Las Vegas airport.

We anticipate there will be the usual round of condemnations and dire warnings that will attempt to make us believe Hughes is the villain of the Nevada melodrama and is buying up the mortgage on the farm for the sole purpose of seducing the farmer's daughter.

Contrary to that type of clamoring, we believe Hughes is a remarkably magnanimous man who has demonstrated on several occasions he is genuinely and unselfishly interested in the betterment of the State of Nevada. Nearly two years ago that same Howard Hughes donated $250,000 to the community college system just in time to save the struggling Elko Community College from extinction—and during the two years since that generous gift was bestowed he has shown absolutely no sign of any ulterior motive.

We believe Hughes is deserving of praise, not suspicion, for his contributions to the community college, to the medical school program at the University of Nevada and, now, to the Las Vegas airport project. From our viewpoint any man who can single-handedly protect the taxpayers of Nevada from such a costly disaster as an election year special session of the legislature is unquestionably a hero, not a villain.—M

College Enrollment Approaches 400 Mark

Elko Community College enrollment stood at 387 students today, and college officials predicted the total head count for the new semester would top 400 in final totals to be compiled next week.

H. P. Sturm, director of admissions at the college, said registration for the spring semester will close this weekend, but late registration for several classes will still be accepted after next Monday.

Sturm said today he is confident the enrollment total will exceed 400 when the final figures are in and said he would announce complete registration details next week.

The 387 mark already attained at the college exceeds the registration total for the fall semester, which stood at 320 students.

Sturm pointed out the total enrollment last semester was calculated at a full time equivalent registration of 181; add, estimated the final totals for the spring semester would show a full time equivalent (FTE) of more than 200.

He explained the FTE figures are based on the number of hours of instruction taken by students, with a full time student defined as one enrolled for 16 semester hours.

The FTE enrollment also is the basis for funding of the college operation, with state funds in the amount of $1,000 per full time equivalent student available up to a maximum of $150,000.

The enrollment levels attained at the Elko college during the first two semesters since the legislature appropriated funds for the institution have substantially exceeded expectations, and the 150 FTE maximum has been topped both times.

College Work Plan
 Told for EHS Seniors

Competent senior students at Elko High School will have an opportunity for an early start on college studies under the terms of a cooperative program worked out between EHS and Elko Community College.

R. C. Lynch, president of ECC, explained the program will make it possible for EHS seniors who have maintained better than average grades to begin their college studies while completing their senior year of high school.

Details of the plan provide the senior student must be making satisfactory progress toward earning his diploma at EHS; must have a B average in his grades; and must have written approval of the proper authorities at Elko High School.

Credit earned under the program will not count as part of the student's high school record, but will apply toward his college work, Lynch noted.

He said students with a low B average in solid subjects at EHS will be allowed to take three hours of college work; B-level students will be eligible to enroll for six hours of college credit; and students approaching an A average in high school work will be considered for up to nine hours of college instruction.

Lynch reported students interested in more detailed information on the new program should consult high school advisors or personnel at the Elko college.

Two Elko Boys Win Crowns

Two Elko boxers won titles and a third finished as a division runner-up in the Silver Gloves Amateur Boxing Tournament held Saturday at Stewart.

Nathan George was crowned champion in the Senior Division 126-pound class and Pete Jones picked up the title in the Junior Division 147-pound class. Both won by decisions.

Ron Gallegos dropped a decision to Theron Johns in the Senior Division, 139-pound class in what was termed a hard-fought bout and the best fight of the night. Johns was named the "best boxer" in the tournament as a result of his showing.

Senior Division fighters were those having had eight or more bouts while the Junior Division was limited to those boys having had fewer than eight bouts.

The tournament was sanctioned by the Nevada State Athletic Commission and drew a total of 92 boxers from Bishop, Calif., Reno, Nixon, Fallon, Carson City, Elko and Stewart.

The Elko Boxing Club will be in action at home this weekend when they host the Pocatello, Idaho Boxing Club. The bouts will be staged in the Elko Community College gymnasium and will begin at 8 p.m. Admission prices will be 50 cents for children under 12; $1 for students and $1.50 for adults.

The Elko team is coached by Russ Lundgren and Bill Henderson.

Elko College Offers Course On "How To Handle A Man"

Elko Community College will give an eight weeks course entitled "Blueprint for Happiness in Marriage" starting Tuesday, March 3 and further information may be obtained by contacting the office at the Elko college.

Mrs. Lucille Beverly will be the instructor. And here is a news release from the college on the course.

Although it may seem so, this is not a fairy tale! How would you like to have a blueprint to happiness in marriage — to know how to cause a man to cherish you and offer you his true devotion? It's available under the title Fascinating Womanhood, a course of study which maps the way to supreme happiness in marriage.

The course gives a woman the secret of becoming a fascinating woman. She can learn how to understand men, their needs, characteristics, sensitivity and masculinity. She learns how to react to her husband's different moods and feelings in order to build up his confidence and respect in himself. It tells how men look at women and how women can understand men. It tells much more in giving the "key to a happy marriage."

Through the study of Fascinating Womanhood one can learn (1) The "Ideal Woman" from a man's point of view; (2) How to understand men; (3) How to cause a man to protect you, to do things for you and to offer you his truest devotion, and several others.

Leading educators, jurists, marriage counselors, clergymen and sociologists endorse the concepts of Fascinating Womanhood.

New College Director Pays Visit to Elko

Dr. Charles Donnelly, newly appointed director of the Community College Division of the University of Nevada System, yesterday met here with officials and faculty members of Elko Community College and local legislators.

Dr. Donnelly, who has served as president of Flint Community College in Flint, Mich. since 1964, will officially assume duties of the new office in Nevada next June. In the meantime, he is concluding his affairs in Michigan, and plans to spend a few days each month in Nevada becoming acquainted with the duties here.

He conferred yesterday with R.C. Lynch, president of the college; members of the college advisory board; Elko County's three legislators—Sen. Warren L. Monroe and Assemblymen Roy Young and Norman Glaser; and met last night with members of the college faculty.

Dr. Donnelly returned to Michigan this morning, and said he plans to pay another visit to the Elko institution—the only community college established to date in Nevada—in April.

Elko, Pocatello Boxing Clubs Meet Tomorrow

The final home boxing match of the season, tomorrow night at 8 at the Elko Community College gymnasium between the Elko Boxing Club and the Pocatello VFW Boxing Club, should be a top notch show according to Elko coach Russ Lundgren.

Lundgren said tomorrow night's event will feature five boxing champions from three states--Nevada, Utah and Idaho.

There are 10 bouts on the card, including an exhibition match between George Johnson, 101 pounds, the Utah State AAU Champion, and Mike Lopez, 115, the Idaho State Champion.

There will be nine bouts between the Elko and Pocatello clubs with the winning team getting a trophy.

There will also be a trophy for the "Outstanding Boxer" of the team match.

One of the highlights of the card should be the bout between Nathan George, Elko's Nevada Senior Silver Gloves champion at 126 pounds and Doug Dreaver, 132, Idaho AAU kingpin.

The fifth champion on the card will be Elko's Pete Jones; who won the Nevada Silver Gloves 147-pound novice crown last weekend in Stewart.

Admission prices to the fights will be $1.50 for adults, $1 for students and 50 cents for children under 12.

The card:
Exhibition--George Johnson, 101, Utah vs Mike Lopez, 115, Idaho.

102 pounds--Gerry Jones (E) vs Mike Newsom (P).

126 pounds--Gus Vasquez (E) vs Jim Burns (P).

College Enrollment ^{2/28/70} Increases 21 Percent

Elko Community College's second semester enrollment has increased 21 percent over registration for the Fall semester.

College President R. C. Lynch said today that this encouraging growth is unusual in a second semester enrollment and reflects the growing reputation of Elko's College.

This is the fourth straight semester-to-semester increase in enrollment, Lynch said.

A total of 411 students is now at the college and Registrar H. P. Sturm indicated this would figure out to over 170 full-time equivalent students.

To arrive at the full-time equivalent figure a 16-hour course is necessary, so the total hours carried by all students are added and then divided by 16.

Sturm said that he expected a total enrollment of over 500 students for the second semester by counting all the special short courses and in-service training courses that are to be offered later.

First semester enrollment for the 1969-1970 academic year was 338.

Second semester enrollment of 411 includes 213 men and 198 women. These students represent over 20 Nevada communities and six states in addition to Nevada--West Virginia, Utah, Idaho, California, Nebraska and Montana.

Elko Boxers Win Match With Pocatello, 5-4

Elko Boxing Club closed its home season by taking a 5-4 victory over the Pocatello, Idaho VFW Boxing Club before a capacity crowd Saturday night at the Elko Community College gymnasium.

The local team spotted the Idaho boxers a 3-0 lead before running off five straight wins to insure the team victory.

Elko won four decisions and a TKO while all of the Pocatello victories came via the decision.

Winning decisions for the local club were Wayne Peterson, Ron Gallegos, Dick Prunty and Ronnie Hess while Pete Jones chalked up the technical knockout.

Pocatello's wins were garnered by Mike McNabb, Tommy Burns, Keith Ankrum and Bill Muniz.

Two action-packed no-decision exhibition bouts opened the night's activities before the highly vocal and appreciative crowd.

In the first exhibition, Richard Dreaver and Pat Rolley, both 80-pounders from Idaho, had the crowd roaring with their non-stop action through the three round bout.

Tall George Johnson, Utah State AAU champion, at 101 pounds and Mike Lopez, 115, Idaho State AAU champ, gave the fans three full rounds of action in the second non-scoring bout. Johnson seemed to get the better of his opponent but both boys threw lots of punches.

In the first scoring bout of the night, McNabb made good use of his height and reach to keep Elko's Jerry Jones at bay and pick up the decision. McNabb, 104 pounds, was picking up points with his long left jab in the first while Jones, 99, came on late to score with right hands to the head.

In the second McNabb connected with one-two's while Jones managed to get in some right hands late in the round. Jones tried to get in close in the final round, and kept after his taller foe—to the crowd's approval—but McNabb stayed out of trouble with his jabbing.

In a 126-pound bout, tall Tommy Burns used a left jabbing attack to take the nod from Elko's Gus Vasquez.

The first round went to Burns via his jab which kept the shorter Vasquez from getting in close. Vasquez landed several right hands to open the second round and managed to get inside Burns' jab to take the round.

In the third, Vasquez began swarming all over Burns in the opening moments, but Burns went back to his jabbing to move out of trouble. The two were trading right hands at the bell.

Pocatello's Ankrum, 127, Idaho AAU champ, took a hairline verdict from Elko's Nathan George, 126, in one of the top bouts of the night.

Ankrum forced the action in the opening round landing several hard shots to the body. George retaliated with a swift jab that kept the Idahoan at bay in the closing moments of the first round.

George picked up the pace in the early part of round two with a good jabbing and hooking attack. Ankrum came on late in the round landing a couple of hard hooks.

Ankrum rallied late in the final round with a hooking attack to the body—after George had been boxing nicely—to take the narrow decision. Ankrum's efforts won him the trophy as the night's outstanding boxer.

Willing Wayne Peterson gave Elko its first win of the night by never giving up in taking the decision over Danny Newsom in a 135-pound bout.

Newsom belabored Peterson in the early going in round one but the game Elko battler kept throwing his jab and eventually it got home and opened up Newsom for some late right hands.

Peterson continued to force the fight in the second round jabbing continuously and backing Newsom around the ring. Newsom landed a good left-right combination but Peterson never took a backward step.

Both boys tired in the final round but Peterson's two-fisted attack gave him the edge and the verdict.

In another top-notch action bout, Elko's Ron Gallegos, 140, built up an early lead to withstand a late, last-round rally by Doug Dreaver, 129, to give Elko its second victory.

Gallegos made good use of his right hand in the first round to pile up points against the stylish Dreaver.

In the second round the two boxers got into a good exchange early in the going trading rights and lefts without letup. Gallegos continued to land his right hand while Dreaver countered with scoring left hooks.

Dreaver found the range with several left hooks in the final stanza, but Gallegos' early scoring kept him ahead and made him the winner.

Pete Jones demonstrated a powerful right hand to take the TKO over Pocatello's Jack Bailey in a 145-pound bout.

Jones continued to land his right hands in the second round and had the Idaho boxer in trouble throughout.

Jones landed consistently to open the third round only to have Bailey stage a brief rally. The Elkoan got home several more right hands midway through the round and forced the Idaho corner to throw in the towel at 1:53 of the canto.

Elko's Dick Prunty demonstrated a good left jab to take a decision from Jeff Muniz in a 147-pound bout.

Prunty landed his jab without letup in the first round while Muniz was stalking and trying to land on the speedy Elkoan.

Prunty continued to jab and shook up the Idaho boy with a solid right hand in the second round. Muniz however refused to backtrack and landed some good right hands of his own.

The two stood toe-to-toe in the closing moments of round three and had the crowd cheering.

Ronnie Hess showed good power in decimating Mike Saul in a 160-pound bout. Saul was jabbing as the bout opened with Hess countering with hard rights.

In the second round both boys made good use of the left hand and the action was fairly even.

Hess took charge in the third round and dropped his opponent with a good right hand. The Elkoan then began a two-fisted attack that had his foe in trouble throughout the remainder of the round.

Bill Muniz, 163, came on in the third round after two even rounds to take the decision from Elko's Jack Hornbarger, 168, in the night's final match.

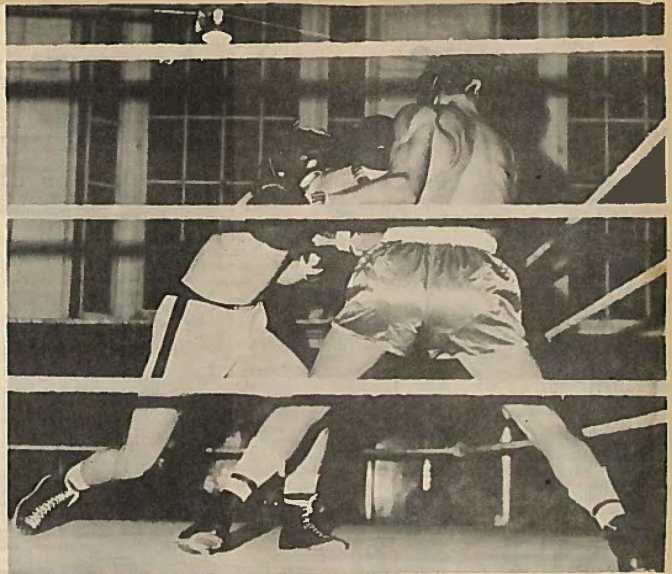

Hornbarger's jabbing attack kept Muniz off balance in the opening round. The Idaho boxer began to land lefts and rights in the second but Hornbarger kept jabbing and held Muniz at a distance.

Muniz began to find the range with his hook in the closing round to take the nod.

Joe Lemon was the referee for the night's bouts and the judges were Charles Crump and Ralph Paoli.

Amazin' UCLA

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA's amazing basketball streak includes 102 victories in the school's last 104 games through games of Jan. 10. In addition, Coach John Wooden became the ninth major college coach to win 500 games when his club recently beat Texas.

KEITH ANKRUM (white trunks) and Nathan George (right) mix it up in a 126-pound bout during Saturday's Elko-Pocatello fight card. Idaho's Ankrum took a narrow decision and also won the "outstanding boxer" trophy.

Lundgren Awarded Oregon Scholarship

Elko, O.P. 3/12/70
President R. C. Lynch announces that Russell Lundgren of Elko Community College, department of mathematics has been awarded a National Science Foundation Scholarship for summer study.

The Summer Institute for mathematics will be at the University of Oregon at Eugene from June 22 through Aug. 14, 1970.

The scholarship will enable Lundgren to continue his Ph. D work this summer. Lundgren has a B.A. degree from Idaho State University and a Masters degree from the University of Montana and has done summer work at the University of Nevada at Reno.

College Qualifies For Program

Elko, O.P. 3/12/70
Elko Community College has qualified for access to the Nevada Wide Area Toll Service, the first step in gaining access to the University of Nevada System computing center, College President Richard Lynch announced today.

Through the WATS system subscribers are charged a flat rate for long-distance telephone calls. In the Elko area the WATS switchboard is located in the state office on Idaho Street.

Russ Lundgren of the Elko College is now investigating use of the computer in Elko classes, Lynch said, and the university plans to furnish a "model" computer on a trial basis.

If present plans work out Elko Community College will have direct access to the Sigma 7 computer at the Desert Research Institute.

The college will need both a teletype and acoustic coupler, Lynch explained, but estimates on next year's budget indicate funds will be available.

Hickson Named To 3-County Library Week Chairmanship

Howard Hickson, director of the Northeastern Nevada Museum at Elko, has accepted the appointment as lay chairman for National Library Week of Elko, Lander and Eureka counties. Hickson will work with all of the librarians of the three counties to formulate a program of interest to the area.

Hickson has been director of the museum since May 1969. Before coming to Elko, he was Curator of Exhibits at the Nevada State Museum in Carson City. A professional artist, Hickson owned the Ranch Art Studios in Reno and Carson City from 1958-69.

The former Nevada Artist's Association president recently finished writing a 150 page history of the U.S. Mint in Carson City, titled "Curry's Compliments." The book will be published by the State Museum, probably in 1970.

Involving himself in local cultural efforts, Hickson has contributed to the advancement of the community and area and is working with Elko Community College in setting up a museology course of study and with the Eureka Historical Society to start a museum. He is acting as consultant to several other museums in the state on expanding their facilities.

A program of activities scheduled during National Library Week will be announced soon.

Fellowship To College Professor

William Reardon, English Department chairman at Elko Community College, has been awarded a full-year doctoral fellowship at Ball State University, Muncie, Ind. He will complete his doctorate degree in English next spring.

Reardon is a graduate of New Jersey State College and received his Master of Arts degree from California Western University and has done post-graduate work at Rutgers, University of California, San Diego State, College of Idaho, and University of California, Los Angeles.

This is the fifth such award received by Reardon for graduate work. He is listed in Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges and was named an outstanding teacher of English in Los Angeles county. He has received three Coe Foundation fellowships.

He has worked with Elko's Silver Stage Players and last fall directed "Star-Spangled Girl."

Reardon, with his wife, Louise, and five sons, will leave for Indiana at the end of the college's spring semester.

'Teach-In' Program
For ECC Announced;
Scheduled April 27

The program for a student "Teach-in" to be held at Elko Community College on April 22 in connection with a similar nationwide activity, was announced by college officials today. The teach-in will start at 7:00 p.m. in the evening and classes will not be held that night giving students an opportunity to participate in the program.

The general public is invited to attend and participate in the program. It will open with a movie to be shown at 7:00 p.m. on a subject dealing with pollution. Len Howard, refuge manager at Ruby Lake Wildlife refuge, will present a talk on refuge management problems following the movie and several students are also scheduled to present talks on the program.

Vern Sylvester of the Humboldt forest district office will speak on population control and on environmental and pollution problems and will show slides pointing out litter in Elko after which the program will be opened to general discussion from the audience.

Work Shop Held In Elko By Northern
Nevada Officers

A work shop has been conducted here yesterday and today by the Northern Nevada Juvenile Officers association in cooperation with the Elko Community College and the Nevada Youth Training Center. Officers from all areas of the state except Clark county have been in attendance at the training and discussion sessions.

The work shop opened yesterday at 9:00 with a welcome by Joseph C. Gardner, superintendent of NYTC; Ernie Hall, Elko county juvenile probation officer, and H. P. Sturm, assistant to the president, ECC.

At 9:30 a.m. Ray Isernhagen of NYTC spoke on "Classification of Delinquency" and his talk was followed by a discussion on the subject. Luncheon at NYTC cafeteria was served at 12 noon. At 1:30 p.m. Charles Crump, State of Nevada adult department of parole and probation, discussed "Parole Problems as They Apply to the Juvenile." Terry Cason of Wittenburg Hall in Reno, followed with a talk on "Transportation of Delinquents."

This morning the session opened at 9:00 a.m. with a talk on "Interstate Compacts" by Gardner, followed by a discussion and lunch at the NYTC cafeteria at noon.

At 1:30 this afternoon Sgt. Robert Brush of the Elko police department, spoke on "Drug Abuse" and the discussion which followed brought the work shop to a close.

Wells Progress 4/17/70
Elko College Talk
Scheduled Next Week

Representatives of Elko Community College headed by Mike Marfisi, a member of the college advisory board, will visit Wells on April 23 to acquaint members of the Wells Chamber of Commerce with the school.

Wes Bowen, president of the chamber and a member of the college advisory board, said the program will be aimed at informing parents in the Wells area about the opportunities for their children available at the two-year school in Elko.

Marfisi has been in charge of a task force from the community college that has visited various high schools in northeastern Nevada to invite graduating seniors to attend ECC.

College administrators and other members of the advisory board are expected to accompany Marfisi here for the meeting with the Wells Chamber, which is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. next Thursday at the Pequot Hotel.

RADIO EQUIPMENT DONATED by the Soil Conservation Service to Elko Community College is examined by Jerry Molof (left), manager of the local SCS office, and Dave Lien, chairman of the electronics department at the college. The surplus equipment will be used, Lien said, to instruct second-year students at the college majoring in communications. He added he plans to have the students change the frequency on the equipment to put the base station on the air as a "ham radio" transmitter.

R. Lynch Announces Resignation

R. C. Lynch, who has served as president of Elko Community College since the summer of 1968, today announced he has submitted his resignation.

During his term at the school the full-time-equivalent-student enrollment has increased from 12 in the fall of 1968 to 181 in the fall of 1969 and more than 200 during the current spring semester. The total student count at the school now stands at 426.

Lynch said his resignation will be effective June 30, 1970. He reported his future plans are indefinite at this time and will be announced at a later date. April 27

Lynch to Take Part in Conferences

R.C. Lynch, president of Elko Community College, has been notified of his selection to participate in one of a series of conferences sponsored by Colorado State University.

In addition to educators, participants in the "Multi-Institute Project" will come from labor, business and industry, rehabilitation, welfare and the Mayors office.

The program objective pertains to implementation of needed change in the development of vocational guidance and placement personnel for metropolitan areas. May 2

Computer Hookup Demonstration At Community College

E.I.N.O. 4/23/70
A computer hookup between Elko Community College and the University of Nevada's computer, XDS Sigma 7, is being made today and tomorrow (Friday).

The hookup is being made in conjunction with the computer mathematics course of Elko high school. Russell Lundgren, the instructor for the course and math instructor at the Community College, has made arrangements with Dr. Allen Brady, assistant director of the University Computer Center. Dr. Brady is in charge of the Educational Uses of the computer and has been giving the local class much help in working with the computer.

This coming fall the Elko Community College will have a permanent hookup with the Reno computer and a course will be offered in basic computer operations.

At 7:30 p.m. today in room 7 of Elko college, Dr. Brady will give a demonstration on the Educational Uses of the computer. Anyone interested in the Computer course to be offered this fall, or anyone interested in computer operations is invited to attend.

Frank Ryan and the staff of the local telephone service, California-Pacific Utilities Company of Elko will be assisting in the teletype hookup. The teletype will be hooked up with a local telephone line. When the line is connected, computer programs can be sent over the telephone and the results wired back immediately.

Elko College Sets Drama Offering

5-20-70
Elko Community College's Department of Speech and Drama will present several scenes from "Tea House of the August Moon" at 10 a.m. tomorrow in the college auditorium.

The public is invited to attend the presentations which will serve as final examinations for the students in college speech and drama classes and no admission will be charged.

The cast includes Pepper Sturm as Sakini; Le An Gilliam as Lotus Blossom; Ed Stephens, Col. Purdy; John Braithwaite, Capt. Fisby; Chet Thomas, Gregovoch; and Alice Babcock will serve as narrator.

Drama Class At College Stages Scenes From Play

Elko Community College's department of speech and drama gave several scenes from the "Tea House of the August Moon," this morning at 10:00 o'clock in the college auditorium.

The presentations of the scenes from the prize winning play served as the final examination for the students in the speech and drama classes.

Cast of the play was as follows:

Sakini, Pepper Sturm; Lotus Blossom, Le An Gilliam; Col. Purdy, Ed Stephens; Capt. Fisby, John Braithwaite; Gregovich, Chet Thomas, and Narrator, Alice Babcock. Elko Ind. May 21, 70

College Grant

Will be paid
A federal grant of $5,705 to Elko Community College to help finance a student work-study program was announced today by members of the Nevada Congressional delegation.

The amount earmarked for the Elko college will provide 60 percent of the funds necessary for 18 students to participate in the program, with the other 20 percent to be paid by off-campus agencies or the college.

Quality not quantity stressed

Elko Community College: pioneer campus of future?

By Nedra Joyce
R-J Staff Writer

"We need more girls!"

The other three young men laughed and agreed with their fellow classmate as they took a break from studying the library at Elko Community College.

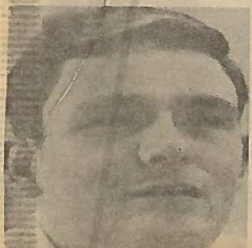

And that was the worst thing any of them could say about the school, the first and only one of its kind in the state. The college officially opened its doors last fall as a state-funded two-year institution—a real life, honest dream come true for the residents of this mountain-rimmed ranching and mining community of 16,000 in northeastern Nevada.

Beginning with only 12 part-time night students attending classes in 16 buildings scattered all over town, the college is now in old Elko Grammar School No. 1, a few blocks from the center of the community.

Its history is like that of the state, with hard-working, determined people who started out on a privately raised budgeting of $45,000 to carve out a new educational future in a community which was the first home of the University of Nevada in 1874 until it moved to Reno in 1887.

Elko citizens put together a fund raising drive during a few years preceding 1967, and worked through the only available legal process at the time, establishing the college first as a division of the school district.

In 1968, a special legislative session officially created the college, but provided

Dick Prunty
Student President

no financial aid. Private enterprise was rewarded, however, when industrialist Howard Hughes donated $50,000 which went to operate and equip the Elko school plus provided future planning for other community colleges.

"He helped us when we were about to go down the drain," said Prof. Russ Lundgren.

Finally in 1969, the Legislature appropriated $1000 per full-time student up to a maximum of 150 students. Shortly thereafter, the university board of regents approved a "community college division" of the statewide university system, bringing Elko under their administrative control.

With enrollment now at over 400, of whom 200 are full-time students, the college hasn't enough money, but President Richard Lynch and his small staff make do, hoping the 1971 Legislature will meet growing demands.

The college has an open-door policy which permits just about anyone to choose from a variety of programs.

There are classes which provide the first two years toward a baccalaureate degree, associate of arts degrees, vocational-technical training, opportunities to gain a high school diploma, adult education enrichment programs and other courses for various educational needs of a community.

There are presently nearly 50 different classes taught during the day and an equal number at night.

Five full-time faculty, a librarian, Lynch, assistant Robert Sturm, and 22 part-time instructors handle the class load.

Next year, two more full-time faculty will be added. There is no salary scale, but wages average $10,000 to $13,000.

The 50-year-old building is leased from the school district at $22,000 a year. It has a new paint job inside, has been the subject of some remodeling, and furniture and equipment are new.

But it will soon be overflowing. The regents own some 100 acres of land at the edge of town, which some day will probably hold a brand new facility.

One of the major supporters behind the college is State School Supt. Burnell Larson, a member of the seven-member advisory board which is responsible to the regents.

The road to establishing a community college was not easy, said Larson, "but I am very pleased with its progress. It fills a real need in the state."

But back to the students—the ones who really know if the school is doing the job or not.

The four young men interviewed were unanimous in their praise. "We are happy here," they said, "and we wouldn't be able to go to college if it wasn't here. The community support is great."

The student body comes from across the state. One student even found his way out from New York, but the majority are from Elko itself and nearby small communities like Carlin and Wells.

Resplendent in levis, boots and cowboy hats, the students express a youthful, carefree zeal for a down-to-earth simple living all but lost in the nation's mammoth universities.

The student publication, a single mimeographed sheet entitled "Wrangler's Revolt," outlines growing student activities.

These include a Young Republican Club (Democrats either aren't organized, or aren't there), a basketball team, boxing squad, theatrical production, local sorority (no fraternities) and job opportunities. Other organizations include aggie, rodeo, judo and chess clubs.

The clubs are struggling for membership right now and students say occasional dances are the big social events, mainly for the purpose of raising money for student government projects.

There are no student fees assessed for extracurricular activities and this year the eight-member student council raised its own funds for basketball uniforms.

"Other than dances, we drink," the men joked. Beer busts are "in" at Elko.

The school provides no dormitory or dining room but arrangements are made with local families or motels to house students and feed them at cut-rate prices.

Many loans and federal grants are available, and are often easier to obtain because there is not much competition.

Tom Anderson of Gerlach, a law enforcement major, and Paul Billrey of Battle Mountain, a mathematics major, rent a trailer together.

Together with Student President Dick Prunty of Elko, majoring in agriculture business, and Bob Ramos, business major from Austin, all said it was cheaper and better to start out at a small college.

One female student, Sandy McEachren, a journalism major from Carlin, typified the many students taking a fling at college while holding down a job. She works as a "21" dealer at night.

All plan to complete four years at a regular university.

The publication's inclusion of the word "revolt" in its title certainly doesn't extend to the attitude of the student body. In an all-white school, students aren't fervent with social idealism.

"Earth Day" activities, however, did reach up to Elko with classes dismissed for a nighttime teach-in sponsored by students and faculty.

While collegians in hundreds of colleges riot against the war, Prunty said, "Probably 50 per cent of us are here to avoid the draft, but we just discuss the war, we don't picket."

Prunty noted that "some hippies" started school in January, "but even though we treated them just like everyone else, they just didn't fit in and dropped out."

Narcotics are of no concern to these men. "Marijuana pushers are around," said Anderson, "but there is no problem with dope or pills. We don't use it."

School spirit is good, and more activities are planned. Students hope to expand basketball into a conference next year and also to start a yearbook.

A lounge has been equipped in the basement with chess board, television set, ping pong table, soft drink machine and magazines. It is well used, "but we sure would like a pool table," said Anderson.

Students commended the faculty and President Lynch. "We can go in and talk with him anytime," said Prunty. One of the faculty members offered his views while setting up a telescope.

"It's great to have a college in the central part of the state," said Rudd, Lundgren, physics and math professor. "It helps to culturally extend the community, boost the economy and bring in residents."

"There's a feeling against a four-year school," said Lundgren. "There are enough of them. We want a school that's really part of the community, a technical school among other things."

Lundgren, who also serves as student activities chairman and lectures class of four to 15 students, came from a former junior college and first taught Elko High School. "It's fun to be in the ground floor here," he said.

President Lynch, who is resigning the end of this year to move into an undecided job at the college level elsewhere, said he came to Elko from South Texas, "because of the challenge."

Lynch also doubles as basketball coach and physical education instructor because of his administrative duties.

"It's going great, and has far exceeded even the most optimistic of our projections," he said.

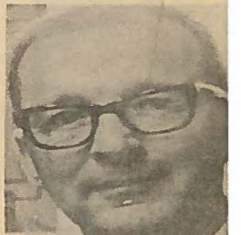

"This college is a big asset to the whole state. It takes care of a segment of people who would never have had opportunity without a community college system."

But, he added, in spite of the students' strong support, "it wouldn't be here if Gov. (Paul) Laxalt had not pushed for it."

"And it isn't too soon to encourage development of similar schools in other cities," said Lynch.

"A community college is valuable where, but would probably be a great asset in Reno or Las Vegas."

Regents are already planning such colleges for those two areas. If they are successful as the pioneer venture in Elko, higher education in the state will take a great leap into the future.

Regents Promise June Vote on Elko Request

Regents of the University of Nevada during a Saturday meeting in Elko promised action early next month on a request from the advisory board of Elko Community College that graduates of the Elko school be admitted to Reno and Las Vegas campuses as regular students.

The request was first presented to the regents in March and has been under advisement since that date. Several regents called upon the presidents of the Reno and Las Vegas campuses to expedite consideration of the proposal so final action can be taken during the June meeting of the board.

The advisory board request was drafted and presented to the regents in an effort to overcome problems that have existed in the past with regard to the acceptance of Elko students by university officials, particularly on the Reno campus.

The resolution by the college advisory board read: "The advisory board requests that the University of Nevada system modify its policy concerning admissions to allow any student graduated from Elko Community College in an Associate of Arts or Associate of Science program to be admitted to the University as a regular student in a baccalaureate level program."

Regents who commented on the proposal during a discussion Saturday morning at the college indicated they favored adoption of the policy change, and President N. Edd Miller of Reno and Roman Zorn of Las Vegas said they expected faculty members on both campuses would endorse the proposal.

The Elko Community College Awards Assembly, Thursday May 21 honored this year's students for their special achievements.

Robert P. Sturm, Jr., Elko, received the outstanding scholarship award for highest grade point average.

Brenda Bigelow, Elko, received the outstanding services award for women.

Fred Beitia, Elko, was awarded the outstanding services award for men.

Awarded trophies for outstanding achievements in various academic fields were

Kevin Dressi, Elko, in Art;
John M. Stephens, Goodsprings, Nevada, received the achievement award in both Biology and the Social Sciences;
Robert P. Sturm, Jr., Elko in English;
John Braithwaite, Elko, in Mathematics,

Craig Crapo, Elko, Physics.
The Scholarship, Service and Achievement awards will be given annually to students if they meet the standards set by the faculty and departments of the College.

Elko College Names Outstanding Students

Outstanding students at Elko Community College were announced this week on the eve of the school's first graduation ceremony, which is scheduled at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the college gymnasium at Eighth and Court Streets.

Gov. Paul Laxalt will be the principal speaker at the ceremony; and H.P. Sturm, assistant to the president reported additional details on the program for the graduation will be announced tomorrow.

Sturm said six students will make up the first graduating class from Elko Community College. Their names will be announced later, he reported.
The outstanding students named today included Robert P. Sturm Jr., scholarship award for the highest grade point average; Brenda Bigelow of Elko, service award for women; and Fred Beitia of Elko, service award for men.

Awards for achievement in various academic fields at the college went to John M. Stephens of Goodsprings, Nev., in both biology and social sciences; Kevin Dressi of Elko, art; Sturm, English; John Braithwaite of Elko, mathematics; and Craig Crapo of Elko, physics.

The awards are to be awarded annually on the basis of standards set by the faculty at the college, Sturm reported.

College Graduation Tonight

Officials of Elko Community College today issued a reminder that the school's first graduation ceremonies are slated at 8 this evening at the school and all residents of the area are invited to attend.

Gov. Paul Laxalt will be the main speaker at the commencement, and music will be provided by members of the Elko Community Orchestra.

Seven graduates will receive associate degrees at the ceremony to mark their completion of a two-year course of study at the Elko college.

Members of the first graduation class are Alice Babcock, John Barney, Fred Beitia Jr., Brigitte Plain, Richard Prunty, Frank Scott and Sheryl Munger.

First Elko College Graduates Announced

Seven members of the first graduating class at Elko Community College were announced today by H.P. Sturm, assistant to the president at the school.

Those named to receive degrees as associates in applied science include Alice Babcock, John Barney, Fred Beitia Jr. and Brigitte Plain; and as associates in arts, Richard Prunty, Frank Scott and Sheryl Munger.

Three other students—Venna Rothlsberger, Murray Stevens and H.P. Sturm Jr.—will receive diplomas under an adult high school program.

Gov. Paul Laxalt, who has been a leading advocate of the Elko college since it was instituted here in the fall of 1967, will be the principal speaker at the first graduation ceremony for the school, scheduled at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

In his announcement, Sturm commented: "It is only fitting that Gov. Laxalt should be the first commencement speaker. The college, then, must not only honor the first graduating students but this graduation is given in honor of all those who made Elko Community College possible. The college administration, faculty, students and board of advisors invite the community to join in this first graduation."

In addition to Gov. Laxalt, Lt. Gov. Ed Fike has indicated plans to attend tomorrow's commencement and members of the board of regents of the University of Nevada system, Chancellor Neil Humphrey, legislators and various other governmental officials are expected to attend, Sturm reported.

He said a full academic procession will be conducted for the occasion; and members of the Elko Community Orchestra, under the direction of Lajla Lyon, will provide music for the graduation.

The Rev. A. Brand of St. Mark Lutheran Church will offer an invocation and benediction; Sturm will present the graduating class and R.C. Lynch, president of the college, will award degrees.

Members of the faculty, graduates and their families and friends have been invited to a president's reception at the college immediately following the commencement exercises, Sturm reported.

College Receives HEW Grant

Elko Community College has received a grant of $7,645 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, President R. C. Lynch announced today.

The grant will be used to provide employment for eligible students in need of supplemental funds to continue their education, and is in addition to the $10,000 educational opportunity grant made earlier by the department.

Funds from the first grant can be given directly to students, matched by funds from other sources, either scholarships or money earned under the work-study program covered by the second grant.

Elko Community College had one one-year scholarship donated last year, but does not yet have any continuing scholarships.

The grants from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare cover the 1970 school year. President Lynch said today he felt the work-study grant one of the most worthwhile federal programs, since it provides work opportunities rather than outright grants.

Editorials...

Elko College Holds Its First Graduation

Another important moment in the history of Elko Community College will be observed this evening when commencement exercises are scheduled for the first graduating class.

The Elko college was formed in the fall of 1967 after residents of Elko County rallied under a campaign to contribute "a day's pay" and nearly $50,000 was contributed to that initial fund. The fledgling institution weathered several stormy periods, such as when the legislature declined to provide the state funds—but other donors like Howard Hughes, George Gund and some anonymous contributors made financing available to keep the college alive.

Constant support and leadership was provided by the local school board, by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Burnell Larson and by Gov. Paul Laxalt; and about a year ago the legislature became cognizant of the rich potential of the community college concept and voted to provide state financing of $1,000 per full time equivalent student, but with a maximum of 150 of those students. Later in the year the Fleischmann Foundation contributed $50,000 for a library that will lead the way to full accreditation.

At the same time the college was made a part of the University of Nevada system and it now operates under the authority of the university's board of regents and the supervision of the office of Chancellor Neil Humphrey. The school has prospered under this arrangement and now boasts an enrollment of more than 400 students and about 200 full time equivalent students, well above the 150 FTE financing lid set by the legislature.

It is fitting Gov. Laxalt, who has assisted the college on so many occasions in the past, is to be the featured speaker at tonight's first graduation ceremony; and several regents, legislators and other state officials have indicated plans to attend the commencement that stands as a tribute to the success of the school during its first three years of existence.

Principal recipients of the honors tonight, of course, will be the seven members of the first graduating class at Elko Community College. Four of the graduates will receive degrees as associates in applied science. They are Alice Babcock, John Barney, Fred Beitia Jr. and Brigitte Plain. Three other graduates will receive associate in arts degrees. They are Richard Prunty, Frank Scott and Sheryl Munger.

Our congratulations to the seven graduates as the first to complete the course work at the new college; and to the people of Elko County for their continued enthusiasm for the college, which guarantees its success.—M

Laxalt Praises Elko College Graduates

Gov. Paul Laxalt last night commended seven Elkoans as recipients of the first diplomas from a community college in Nevada during the first commencement exercise at Elko Community College.

The governor praised the Elko graduates as pioneers of the community college system in Nevada and predicted "hundreds of thousands" will follow them in years to come.

Those receiving associate in arts degrees last night included Sheryl Jean Munger, Richard G. Prunty and Frank J. Scott; and recipients of associate degrees in applied science were Alice Louise Babcock, John F. Barney, Fred Beitia Jr. and Brigitte Plain. High school diplomas earned at the college were given to Venna M. Rothlisberger and Robert P. Sturm Jr.

Gov. Laxalt also praised the system of government that provided the educational opportunity represented by the Elko Community College; and he condemned the dissident minority that poses problems but never offers solutions and would tear down the system that provides such benefits as community colleges.

"We must nourish and preserve America as we have known and loved it in the past," Laxalt declared as he called upon the graduates to apply the knowledge gained at the college toward that goal.

A congratulatory letter to the institution's first graduating class also was read from President Richard M. Nixon.

Dignitaries introduced during the program included

Lt. Gov. Ed Fike, State Controller Wilson McGowan, Reno District Attorney Bill Raggio, Prison Warden Carl Hocker, Regent All Seeliger, Chancellor Neil Humphrey, Vern Howard of the state department of education, State Senator Warren L. Monroe, Assemblymen Roy Young and Norman Glaser and members of the college advisory board.

Music for the ceremony was provided by members of the Elko Community Orchestra, under the direction of Lajla Lyon; and the Rev. A. Brand of St. Mark Lutheran Church offered an invocation and benediction.

The graduating class was presented by H. P. Sturm, assistant president; degrees were awarded by President R. C. Lynch; and introductions were made by D. A. Lien, president of the faculty senate at the school.

The graduates also were guests of honor at a reception held at the conclusion of the commencement for family and friends.

CHARLES GREENHAW

Elko College Professor Announced

Charles Greenhaw has been appointed to the Elko Community College faculty as a professor of English and Literature, H.P. Sturm, acting president of the college announced today.

Greenhaw received his Bachelor of Arts degree from North Texas State University in 1956 with a major in English and a minor in History. He received his Masters degree at the same institution in 1965. Greenhaw is presently completing his Doctoral work at the University of Nevada, Reno, with an English major and a Linguistics minor.

Greenhaw has taught at the University of Nevada, Reno, Arkansas State University and Southern Oregon College. He also has taught in high schools in Evanston, Wyo. and Denton, Tex.

Greenhaw served in the United States Air Force from 1949 to 1952. He has 10 years experience as a printer, linotype operator and some time as a reporter on several newspapers.

Greenhaw's special interests are linguistics, primitive religions, mythology and folklore. He has been a pilot and has owned his own plane. He likes fishing and the outdoor life.

The Greenhaw family consists of Janet, his wife, Greg, a junior high student, and 4-year-old twin sons Aaron and Andy.

DR. ELMER KUNTZ (right) is welcomed as the new president of Elko Community College by H.P. Sturm, acting president of the institution. Dr. Kuntz, who came to Elko from a position as director of research and development at the State Technical Institute at Memphis, Tenn., will officially assume the presidency of the Elko college on Aug. 1. He said today he plans to spend the remainder of this week becoming familiar with the operation at the college and settling his family—his wife, Freda, daughter Leisha Renee, 11, and son, Gregory, 8—in their new home at 1213 Fairway Drive.

Steninger Files For Regent's Post; To Assist College

An Elko county candidate for the board of regents of the University of Nevada will be on the ballot this fall it was learned yesterday when Mel Steninger, 38, chairman of the advisory board for the Elko Community college, filed with the secretary of state for the regent's post being vacated by Al Seeliger of Carson City, one of two small county positions on the board.

Steninger, who is editor and co-publisher of the Elko Daily Free Press, said he believed the development of a community college system for Nevada will be among the most important educational challenges during the next few years. He said he believed it would be beneficial to have a community college oriented representative on the university board.

Chairman of the local board for the past year, Steninger pointed out that the community college system has been designated as one of four major divisions of the University of Nevada system.

NEW EXECUTIVES — Two new executives have assumed their roles in the University of Nevada System. At left is Dr. John M. Ward, former Dean of the School of Science at Oregon State University, who has taken over the directorship of Nevada's Desert Research Institute. Dr. Charles R. Donnelly, former president of the Flint, Michigan, Junior College, is now director of the University of Nevada's Community College Division.

Elmer Kuntz Named Head of Elko College By UN Regents

Dr. Elmer Kuntz, now serving as director of research and development at the State Technical Institute at Memphis, Tenn., has been named president of Elko Community College.

Dr. Kuntz was appointed effective August 1 by regents of the University of Nevada System, on the recommendation of Dr. Charles Donnelly, director of the state community college system, and members of the advisory board for the Elko college. His salary was set at $18,000 annually.

The new president will succeed Richard Lynch, who resigned on July 1 after serving in the post for nearly two years. H. P. Sturm is serving as acting president during the month of July.

Dr. Kuntz supervised and taught vocational education and science programs for five years in secondary schools in Texas; and served as vocational counsellor and assistant to the dean of the graduate school at Texas A & M, as dean of research and supervisor of admissions and counselling at James Connally Technical Institute in Waco, Texas, and as director of the Sweetwater campus of Texas State Institute before moving to his present position in Tennessee.

He holds a bachelor degree in animal husbandry from Midwestern University, a master degree in agricultural education from Texas A & M and a doctorate in education administration from Texas A & M.

Dollinger Named to Elko College Faculty

STEPHEN DOLLINGER

Stephen H. Dollinger has been appointed to the faculty of the Elko Community College. Dollinger comes to the college from the University of Nevada where he was with the Nevada's "Talent Search" program for the culturally and economically disadvantaged youth.

Acting president H.P. Sturm said Dollinger will be serving in a dual capacity as both Director of Counseling and Guidance and heading the Journalism department.

Included in Dollinger's activities will be the responsibility for the newspaper and year book production. He will be teaching three journalism classes, working with student financial aid, and counseling.

After graduating from the University of Nevada with a B.A. Degree in Journalism, Dollinger began graduate work at the University of Arizona where he received his secondary teaching credentials. He holds a Masters degree in Guidance and Counseling and expects to be awarded an L.L.B. degree this summer.

In military service Mr. Dollinger served in the United States Army as a captain in the Infantry. His major duty was training men as instructors for the Army.

Dollinger has a very interesting background, Sturm noted. At the age of six months he took his first job as an extra in the movies and for the next 14 year continued to appear in various movies. He worked for M.G.M., Universal, and 20th Century Fox Studios acting with such stars as Shirley Temple and Spencer Tracy.

Dollinger also had a program on radio station KOLO Reno; and for three years had a University of Nevada news and interest column for the Reno newspapers.

Dollinger has taught in San Leandro, Calif. where he supervised one of the leading high school newspapers in the San Francisco Bay area.

According to Dollinger, the journalism classes at Elko Community College will emphasize news writing, photography, advertising, current events, and newspaper production.

Nevadans Tour Community Colleges

"We want a first class community college system," Nevada Gov. Paul Laxalt said Tuesday.

So he came to Oregon, accompanied by upper echelon Nevada educators and legislators "to observe a first class operation and a first class plant."

Nevada's community college program is in the embryonic stage, the 47-year-old chief executive said.

One small college is operating in the ranching community of Elko (population 7,200). In the planning stage are two more, one each for Reno and Las Vegas, where more than four out of five Nevadans live.

Tuesday the Nevada party concentrated on Mt. Hood Community College. Wednesday the focal point will be Portland Community College. Members of the group also plan to see Clackamas Community College in Oregon City and Clark College in Vancouver, Wash.

Governor Relaxed

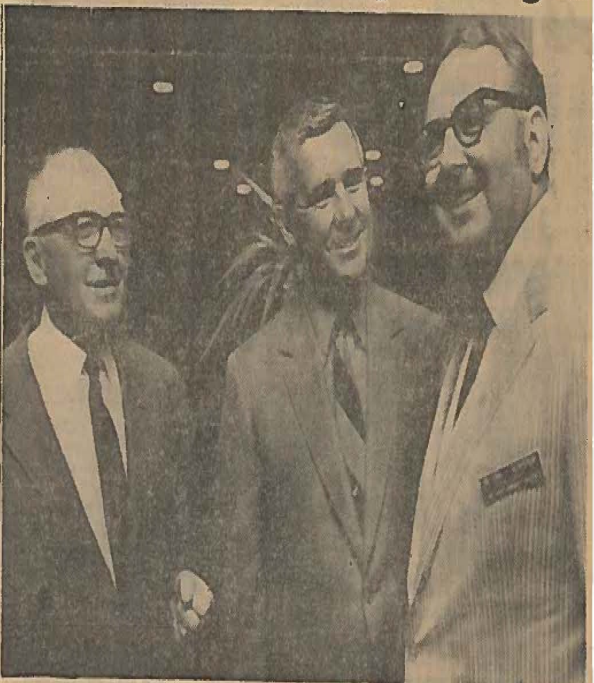

Laxalt, perhaps the most relaxed chief executive in the nation, is not running for reelection. He plans to resume his law practice next January.

In his tour of public office, four years as lieutenant governor, four as governor, he has become an advocate of community college education.

A large percentage of Nevada's high school students have been completely ignored by college-oriented curriculum, he noted.

Nevada's entry into the community college field has had an Oregon connection from the beginning.

When a group of Elko residents first became interested, they turned to nearby (across 300-plus miles of desert) Ontario, Ore., where Treasure Valley Community College made them welcome and offered assistance.

NEVADA GOV. Paul Laxalt, center, led delegation of educators to Portland Tuesday to view area's community colleges. On hand to greet him were Oregon Senate President E. D. Potts, left, and Mt. Hood President Earl D. Klapsiehn.

Funding initially came from a public subscription drive which raised $50,000.

The Elko group launched its school three years ago in the hopes the state legislature would take over financing. But the legislature dropped the ball and the school was about to fold.

At that point "a prominent citizen of our state, Mr. Hughes," telephoned the governor.

Laxalt flew to Elko and in a dramatic meeting, informed 300 residents that multimillionaire Howard Hughes had offered a $250,000 grant.

Half of the money went to Elko to tide over the new school. The balance was used to establish a state community college program.

Elko Community College's first president was Dr. Eugene Voris, Treasure Valley's first executive. He served one year "and did a good job for us," Elko publisher Mel Steninger said.

Hughes, the governor added, does not interfere in state government affairs. In addition to his community college contribution, he also pledged $6 million to establish a medical school at the University of Nevada, the governor pointed out.

Laxalt has never met the elusive Hughes in person. They have had several phone conversations.

"Everybody in Nevada respects his desire for privacy," Laxalt said.

In 1969 the Nevada Legislature funded the Elko school at $1,000 per full-time equivalent student for the first 150 students. Next fall Elko expects an enrollment of 200 and supporters of the institution want the Legislature to raise the 150-student ceiling.

Students in turn pay $27 per semester tuition and some additional money comes from federal sources.

Oregon homeowners would appreciate one facet of the Nevada system as it now stands: Not a dime of property tax money goes to community college support.

In Elko local school facilities are used, but costs are paid by the college.

Governor Laxalt hopes to see two new community colleges launched in 1971 in Las Vegas and Reno.

The purpose of the Portland trip is to examine the methods and policies used in Oregon.

The community college concept is working out better in Oregon than in any state around us, State Rep. Roy Young, a member of the Nevada party, concluded.

Elko College Meet Slated Tomorrow

Members of the advisory board of Elko Community College will meet here tomorrow with representatives of the board of regents of the University of Nevada and the Nevada Department of Education.

Discussion will cover accomplishments at the college during the past year, plans for the 1969-70 school year and a report from R. C. Lynch, college president, on progress toward accreditation of the new school by the University of Nevada and the Northwestern Accrediting Association.

During a meeting scheduled at the Ranchinn Motor Lodge at noon tomorrow, regents will be introduced to the local board by Neil Humphrey, chancellor of the U. of N., and representatives of the department of education will be introduced by Burnell Larson, state superintendent of public instruction.

Representatives of the three boards also are expected to discuss plans for an opening ceremony at Elko Community College early next fall.

College Honor Roll Announced

Seven students made the Dean's Honor Roll for the spring semester at Elko Community College, H.P. Sturm, assistant to the president, announced today.

To be eligible for the honor roll a student must carry 12 or more credit hours and must attain a minimum grade point average of 3.5 based on a scale with 4.00 as all A's.

Those making the honor roll were:

- 4.00—John Braithwaite and Robert P. Sturm Jr., both of Elko;
- 3.7—Helen Inez Holiday, Elko;
- 3.6—Helen Hansen, Pine Valley, and LeAnn Gilliam, Elko;
- 3.5—Janice Davidson, Elko, and John M. Stephens, Goodsprings, Nevada.

Graduation For Nurse School Set

A graduation ceremony for the 11th class of student nurses of the Elko School of Practical Nursing will be held August 8, 1970, at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of the Elko Community College at 9th and Court Streets.

The school was established in 1957 under the joint jurisdiction of the Elko General Hospital, Elko County School District, and the State Department of Vocational Education. When the Elko Community College was opened in 1968, the program was transferred from the County School District to the college, with the Elko General Hospital and the State Department of Education as co-directors with the community college.

The nursing program is a one-year course, during which time the student is involved in the theory of nursing arts as well as having practical application opportunities of these nursing techniques in the clinical areas of the Elko General Hospital. The school is approved by the State Department of Education and is accredited by the Nevada State Board of Nursing.

Students receiving a diploma this year are: Lorraine Bernascone, Grace Bradley, Cheryl Carpenter, Teresa Moon, Frances Odekirk, Betty Pitts, Shirley Warren, Carla Wilber, and Rosella Wilde.

Friends of the graduates and all interested community members are invited to attend the services.

Ceremony Opens Elko College

Special to the Journal
By CHRIS SHEERIN

ELKO — "We are on the road but not over the hump. We are experiencing the dawn of a new education era in the state of Nevada," Gov. Paul Laxalt said at the opening ceremony of Elko Community College here Thursday.

Speaking before more than 100 people at the old Court Street Grammar School, now the permanent home of the college, Laxalt declared, "I have never worked on a project that died so many times but wouldn't stay dead."

He paid tribute to Howard Hughes for his donation of $250,000 to the college when it needed artificial respiration to help keep it alive.

The governor said credit must go to Elko County residents, as the college was started by local donations amounting to $50,000.

The 1969 Legislature made the college part of the University of Nevada system. This year, for the first time since its creation two years ago, it will offer transferable college credits. In the past, it offered extension courses. The college will open for classes Sept. 15.

Richard Lynch, president of Elko Community College, welcomed those in attendance including state officials, Regents of the University of Nevada, led by Neil D. Humphrey, and representatives of the press from as far away as Las Vegas. Thomas G. Bell, vice-chairman of the Board of Regents, represented Howard Hughes.

"I do not know of a community, large or small, which has the enthusiasm Elko has," Bell told the gathering. "Your college has a magnificent start in this building."

Paul Sawyer, a member of the founding committee said Elko County residents made the college possible with original donations. He coined a slogan during the meeting, "1,000 students by 1975."

Mel Steninger, chairman of the Elko College Advisory Committee announced that an anonymous donor had recently given $3,500 for future support of the school.

Master of ceremonies Mike Marfisi introduced George Gund as another donor. Gund is a new resident of Elko County with a ranch at Lee.

The invocation was given by Rev. Charles Lindsay of the First Presbyterian Church of Elko. Three musical selections were played by the Elko Community Orchestra, directed by Lajla Lyon.
