College milestones

1967 — Early in the year, an ad-hoc committee of Elko citizens worked out plans to establish the first community college in Nevada.

On May 10, the citizens committee launched a fund-raising drive to support the infant institution. The "Give-a-Day's Pay" drive eventually netted almost $50,000.

In July, an advisory board was created to supervise the establishment and maintenance of the institution in cooperation with the Elko County School District.

On September 27, the college held its first classes under the name Nevada Community College. About 500 students, mostly part-time, enrolled in community service and adult education classes.

1968 — On February 28, the Nevada Legislature, in special session, approved a feasibility study for community colleges in Nevada, and the name was changed to Elko Community College.

In Late May Howard Hughes donated $250,000 for the advancement of the community college movement. $125,000 for the total was to help sustain the Elko college, and $125,000 went to pilot projects for colleges in southern and western Nevada.

1969 — On April 10, the Nevada Legislature approved funding for the community colleges and transferred governance of Elko Community College to the Board of Regents of the University of Nevada System.

In July, the college occupied the Kate St. Clair Elementary School, at Eighth and Court Streets, under a lease agreement with the Elko County School District.

On September 16, the college held its first classes as a comprehensive, open-door community college.

1970 — On January 15, the Fleischmann Foundation granted $100,000 for the establishment of a Learning Resource Center,

On November 10, the college obtained 58 acres of land on the old Ruby View Golf Course in Northeast Elko.

Off-campus programs commenced at Ely, Winnemucca, Wells and Owyhee.

1971 — Off-campus classes began in Battle Mountain and McDermitt.

1973 — The college moved into its first permanent building in April and into its second in the fall. The name was changed to Northern Nevada Community College.

1974 — In May the college obtained full accreditation from the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges.

1978 — NNCC initiated a two-year registered nursing program.

1979 — NNCC started an on-campus practical experience farm, and a one-year diesel mechanics program.

The Community College Division of the University of Nevada System was dissolved and NNCC became an autonomous college within the system.

NNCC extends registration

REGISTRATION FOR Northern Nevada Community College classes has been extended through next Wednesday, according to college spokesmen. Students may register until 5 this afternoon and between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. next Tuesday through Friday, and from 6 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday only. Inspecting registration figures are Dr. Bill Berg (standing, center), NNCC president, and Richard Culver, buildings and grounds superintendent.

NNCC registration concludes tomorrow

Registration for more than 100 Northern Nevada Community College classes is being held until 5 this afternoon in the college library and again tomorrow from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Enrollment appears to be running close to last year's figures, according to Charles Greenhaw, dean of off-campus instruction.

He said several potential students have not registered because no housing is available locally. He suggested anyone with apartments or rooms to rent to NNCC students call Terry Cataline at the college, 738-8493.

College President Bill Berg said several months ago that efforts are continuing to find a contractor interested in building student apartments on college land.

Greenhaw noted those wishing to participate in auto technology classes may enroll in only one class rather than the entire auto technology series.

Other classes proving of interest to local students include business communications, pilot ground school, and Basque language class, according to Greenhaw.

"This is really a tense time of year for colleges — waiting to see how many high school seniors have accepted them!"

Student Andy Manzini goes over his schedule with Northern Nevada Community College business instructor John Pryor. NNCC registration continues through tomorrow.

College registration dates set

Humboldt
Sun
Aug. 19
1980

The Northern Nevada Community College will open its doors for registration for the Fall Semester September 2 at 8 a.m. Registration will run through September 4 from 7 to 9 p.m. The office will be open, during registration only, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Beginning September 8, the first day of instruction, the office hours will be 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

If you feel you are not creative, a macrame class will delightfully surprise you.

Macrame is an easy method of creative plant hangers, wall decorations and personalized jewelry. Learn to combine various types of materials into your own original creations. This class will combine the basic macrame knots with new and unusual techniques. It will be taught by Donna Clark.

Mrs. Clark will also teach Spinning and Weaving. Members of this class will learn to make yarn by spinning on drop spindles and traditional spinning wheels. The students will then use this yarn in the weaving portion of the class. They will learn basic weaving techniques while they complete an off-loom weaving on a ring, a pillow or a purse and a tapestry rug or wall hanging.

Briefhand or Speedwriting will be taught by Kaylene Knox. This course will include theory, dictation, and transcription. Students completing this course successfully will be able to take dictation at 50 words per minute or more.

A class in Horsemanship, taught by Gary Smith, will give the students a basic knowledge of horse history, types and breeds. There will be lessons on conformation, anatomy, gaits, behavior, feeding practices and health problems of the horse. Training and learning processes of horses will also be studied.

Surveying and Measurements I is geared toward the beginning surveyor through instrumentman, who wish to advance their skills in the survey field. It will begin with the basics and cover field methods and office calculations necessary for advancing to Party Chief. Carl Crosby is the instructor for this course.

Anyone who is interested in taking classes this semester, or who may have questions concerning the program may call the college at 623-4824.

NNCC Child Center registration tomorrow

Final registration for the Northern Nevada Community College Child Center will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. tomorrow only at the child center, formerly known as the child development lab.

Registration for NNCC fall semester classes will be held from 8 a.m. until 9 p.m. tomorrow in the college library. Fall registration will continue from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

Marilee Snyder, director of the child center, noted there are still a limited number of openings for youths between the ages of three and six.

Vacancies exist for all-day and afternoon classes and for some morning sessions. Students may attend every day, or in Monday-Wednesday-Friday or Tuesday-Thursday combinations. Class fees depend upon the number of hours each day and the number of days the student attends.

The first fee installment, one-third of the total fee, is payable tomorrow during registration, noted the director.

"The center provides experience and activities which will promote the development of the whole child in areas of social, emotional, intellectual, physical, moral and creative growth," said Mrs. Snyder.

"The center aims to work in partnership with the parents of the children to coordinate learning experiences and guidance techniques between the home and school."

New to the center staff this year is Joelene Holmes, who formerly served as head teacher for afternoon summer classes and financial manager for the Child and Family Center at University of Nevada Reno.

She taught last year at the Ruby Mountain Christian School in Spring Creek. She has an associate degree in pre-kindergarten education from UNR and is married to Scott Holmes, administrative assistant for Decker Exploration.

Mrs. Holmes will be teaching the morning sessions, and Mrs. Snyder will be teaching the afternoon sessions.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the college, 738-9493, ext. 224.

M. Lundberg honored at NNCC graduation

Mel Lundberg was honored posthumously as a Distinguished Nevadan Friday night by the University of Nevada.

His award was given to his widow, Reva, at the commencement exercises of Northern Nevada Community College.

Making the presentation were Dr. William Berg, college president, and Bob Cashell, chairman of the university board of regents.

Lundberg was recognized for his work in the electrical power industry and his service to the civic, political and educational life of northeastern Nevada. He served on the NNCC advisory board.

He was born in Woods Cross, Utah, attended the University of Utah and graduated in 1930 with a bachelor's degree in engineering.

In 1949 he joined the Elko-Lamoille Power Co. and became general manager in 1953. In 1961, when the company merged with Southern Nevada Power Co. to form Nevada Power, Lundberg became vice president and director, continuing to serve as general manager of the Elko division. He retired in 1973.

He was active in the Elko Chamber of Commerce and was active in the Republican Party.

He died in 1980 in Elko at the age of 75.

Selected as valedictorian at the commencement was Arlene P. Van, and salutatorian was Carole J. Newkirk.

Announcement of two scholarship winners was made Friday night. Darrell W. Hylton received the Hugh McMullen Memorial Scholarship, and Roberta Call received the scholarship offered by the American Association of University Women.

Both scholarships are given to NNCC graduates who are going on to a four-year institution, explained Berg.

The Rev. Caesar Caviglia of St. Peter's Catholic Church in Henderson was commencement speaker. The invocation and benediction were offered by the Rev. Bill Diekelman of St. Mark Lutheran Church.

N.N.C.C. 1981 Graduation

Elko Independent May 20, 81

Dr. Bill Berg, President of N.N.C.C. with 1981 Valedictorian Arlene P. Van and faculty member Dr. Paul S. Hanna.

Under the theme of "Where ever there is an Open Mind, there will Always be a Frontier." Northern Nevada Community College held its annual commencement exercises at the Convention Center on Friday, May 15.

This year ten students graduated with an Associate in Arts, 18 with an Associate in Applied Science, including ten new Registered Nurses, five with an Associate in General Studies, two Certificates of Achievement, and eight with a Certificate of Accomplishment in Diesel Mechanics.

The commencement speaker was Father Caesar Caviglia from St. Peter's Catholic Church in Henderson, Nevada.

The high school Choralliers provided several well-performed musical selections for the event.

Arlene Van was selected as the Valedictorian of the Class of 1981, and Carole Newkirk, a Registered Nurse, was selected as Salutatorian.

Mel Lundberg, a great benefactor to NNCC, was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Nevadan Award by Robert Cashell, Chairman of the Board of Regents. Since Mr. Lundberg died last year, his widow, Reva Lundberg, accepted the award on his behalf.

Robert Bersi, Chancellor of the University of Nevada System was on hand for the occasion and gave the Commencement Greetings.

Reverend William Diekelman, Pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Elko, offered the Invocation and the Benediction.

Each graduate was presented with a long-stemmed red rose by the new Student Body President, Bill Opperman, as they stepped onto the stage to receive their degree.

Following the commencement exercises, a reception was held in the Convention Center for the graduates and their families by the faculty and staff of NNCC.

3 graduate from NNCC

Three area residents were graduated from Northern Nevada Community College on May 15, in commencement exercises in Elko.

Theodore Duke, living in Lund, received an Associate in Applied Science as an automotive machinist.

Ruth resident LeRoy Packer received an Associate in Applied Science as a boilermaker.

David Cauley, of Ely, received an Associate in General Studies.

All three students were able to complete their two-year Associate Degree through off-campus courses offered at the Ely Center of the Northern Nevada Community College.

Sorority happenings

FP 5-24-81

By Patti Crookham
April activities of Xi Alpha Omicron chapter of Beta Sigma Phi were highlighted by the annual Founder's Day banquet of the sorority, which was shared with Sigma chapter. Members and former members of both chapters joined together to share memories, messages and secret sister gifts. In addition, Xi Alpha Omicron's Girl of the Year, Patti Crookham, and Sigma's, Pat Nutting, were announced.

Mrs. Cookham and Mrs. Nutting were chosen by their sisters for their enthusiasm, outstanding contributions and participation in their chapters. Each was presented with a gift to recognize her accomplishments.

On Founder's Day, all secret sisters exchange gifts and members have a chance to show off their surprises and thank their secret sister. Xi Alpha Omicron has Rose Sisters and Sigma chapter has Beta Buddies.

Earlier in the month, Patti Thomas hosted a meeting at which Phil Roche was guest speaker. He showed slides of the EHS band trip to Washington, D.C. and described many of the events of the inauguration.

Marlene Goddard was a guest and Rochelle Nelson gave a Rose sister thank you. Jaylene Gerdes was congratulated on the opening of her new ceramics shop. Gayle Parish announced that the Xi Alpha Omicron bantam bowling team won second place in its league and received a trophy.

On April 11, Rochelle and Dewey Nelson invited all members to a traditional potluck. Members and their husbands attended, as well as guests and members of the other chapter who will be progressing to the exemplar degree. This degree will be conferred during a ritual in the fall.

NNCC Summer Classes

"Making Friends With Your Shadow"

Humanistic Astrology

A special workshop, Making Friends With Your Shadow, will be offered at NNCC on June 5, 6, and 7. Previously publicized as a two-day workshop, the dates have been extended to cover a wider range of information. Registration for this $60 course must be made at NNCC Student Services by May 22. Students registering will need to provide name, exact time and place of birth for their natal chart.

The seminar is being conducted by Robert Kimball, counselor, educator, and author of Transpersonal Astrology. Robert Kimball does not deal with "Sun Sign" or newspaper astrology, but uses the whole natal chart of an individual to indicate potential action between the person and the environment.

The natal chart depicts the major social, vocational, parental, emotional and spiritual challenges that will confront the person in life. It also indicates the "tools" or abilities one is given to help deal with these conflicts or challenges.

In this 2½ day workshop the students will explore their conscious and unconscious beliefs and programming through the use of guided imagery, free association, movement, body awareness and meditation. Psychic and astrological input will be given frequently.

According to Kimball "The activities of this workshop are designed to give the student a deeper understanding of your orientation to life, the various roles you are acting out consciously and unconsciously. By the second day you will begin to see how your horoscope can be used as a practical "map" of the major challenges and potentials you have been given to work with in this life. The astrological work will permit you to gain a deeper understanding of what you are "advertising" to others and, therefore, what your unconscious expectations are in personal relationships." Kimball invites "Come prepare to learn about your ego games and how they affect your need and desire for greater psychological and spiritual intimacy."

The class will be held from 7-9 on June 5 and 10-4 on both June 6 and 7 in LR 20.

A free lecture explaining Humanistic Astrology will be held in Room LR 20 on June 3 at 7 p.m. For further information, call Sarah Campsey at 738-8493 or 738-5770.

DMA Workshop

How would you design your life? What results do you want to create for yourself or in your job? Your personal answer to these questions will be explored in a special DMA seminar given by Tom Walther at Northern Nevada Community College during July. On Thursday, June 25, at 8 p.m. in LR 20, Mr. Walther will conduct a free lecture discussing DMA. The course is offered July 2, 9, 16, 23 and 30 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. In addition to the classes, participants will be working with exercises on tape cassettes for 35 minutes a day.

Mr. Walther relates, "For some, DMA is the expansion and deepening of successes they already have. For many, DMA affects a shift from experiencing life as something that 'happens to you' ... to the ability to see life as a creative process. You are always at the center of that process and in a DMA class, you can learn to use your natural abilities more effectively so that you can directly create those things you choose."

DMA classes are attended by people from all walks of life including top officers of corporations such as Polaroid, Citi Bank, and Bose. DMA students hold in common the willingness to reach for the highest in themselves.

Mr. Walther continued, "The great appeal of DMA is that it works. The results are direct, immediate and lasting. It is a systematic development of abilities you already possess. Abilities last. Your ability to create effectively will not 'wear off' in time. In fact, it tends to increase."

Walther, a native of Elko, Nevada, is a free-lance author, illustrator and teacher. A graduate of California College of Arts and Crafts and the Brooklyn Business School, he is the author/illustrator of two children's books, A Spider Mite and Make Mine Music, published by Charles Scribner's, and illustrator/designer of two other books.

He has taught with the Alvarado Arts Project, Sculpture at California College of Arts and Crafts, drawing at NNCC, and taught and consulted at the Exploratorium Science Museum in San Francisco.

He was certified to teach DMA in the summer of 1979, and students in his class have included an orthodontist, counselors, computer scientists, professional musicians, nurses, housewives, a senior vice president in banking, writers, designers, carpenters, independent business people, and college students.

For further information, contact Sarah Campsey at the college: 738-8493 or 738-5770 after 5 p.m.

Water Color Class Offered

Beginning June 11, Lowell Swendsen will be offering a watercolor class at NNCC.

This class will meet for 5 weeks, 4-7 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays with three Saturday field trips to paint out of doors. The students will be learning a variety of watercolor techniques, both out of doors and in the classroom with classroom critiques.

Registration for this three-credit university parallel class will be held during the colleges summer registration on May 28-29 in the student service office.

Bloodmobile in Elko Monday and Tuesday

By Terry Hickson
Hospital Publicist

"Give the gift of life," by contributing blood, area volunteers urge as they prepare for next week's visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile.

The bloodmobile will be in Elko at Northern Nevada Community College on Nov. 3 and 4, next Monday and Tuesday, and in Wells on Nov. 6.

The bloodmobile calls at Elko twice a year so that local residents may donate blood to reimburse the intermountain facility in Salt Lake City for the blood this community uses during the year.

"By giving your time to donate a pint of blood you may help an accident victim or someone suffering from anemia, cancer, hemophilia, heart disease or one of many other illnesses," a spokesman points out. Dozens of volunteers assist the program. They include donors, workers, physicians and nurses. Blood donated by area volunteers assures the community that blood will be available when needed for only the minimal processing fee. The Elko blood bank is located at Elko General Hospital.

Laura Hunter and Pat Furtney of the hospital auxiliary are the 1980-81 co-chairmen for volunteer workers. Soroptimist Club furnishes juices with Wendy Vega in charge, and Beta Sigma Phi sorority members donate homemade cookies. The college provides space and personnel to set up rooms and facilities for clerical workers.

Hospital employees, as they have done for the past four years, will again participate in a contest. Employees who give time or blood will be treated to a free pizza or other meal.

Many churches have been asked to announce the visit and local companies, law enforcement agencies, the national guard and government offices have been urged to promote donations.

Bloodmobile at college until 8 tonight; tomorrow

EDFP Apr 20, 1981

The Red Cross Bloodmobile is at Northern Nevada Community College until 8 tonight, according to Dr. George Manilla, director of the local blood bank.

The Bloodmobile will also be at the college from 10:15 a.m. until 3 p.m. tomorrow.

Manilla noted there have been several incidents recently requiring use of Red Cross blood, and he stressed it is very important for a large turnout today and tomorrow.

The Red Cross stores blood at a blood bank in Utah, and Elko General Hospital is able to draw that blood when necessary, said Manilla. In extreme emergency cases, the Utah Air Patrol has flown blood to Elko, and in others the Nevada Highway Patrol has carried it.

Volunteer leaders Pat Furtney and Laura Hunter of the EGH auxiliary have announced the auxiliary is donating as a door prize a $25 gift certificate for merchandise at the hospital gift shop.

In addition, Manilla is donating two tickets to Truckin' Rogue Cafe as door prizes. Manilla wrote the musical, which will be presented at the civic auditorium April 23-25.

Red Cross Bloodmobile in Elko next week

On Nov. 3 and 4, the American Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Elko taking donations from 3:15 to 8 p.m. the first day and from 10:15 a.m. to 3 p.m. the second day at Northern Nevada Community College.

A drawing at Wells is also planned from 2 to 6 p.m. Nov. 6 at the Wells Rural Electric Company with Dan Kessler in charge. In June, the Elko drawing totaled 220 donors with 111 women and 109 men contributing.

Donors among all age groups are urged to contribute. Special appeals are being made to newcomers and those in younger age groups. Persons from 17 to 65 may donate blood.

The volunteer efforts which includes donors, workers and physicians and nurses assures the local community that blood will be available when needed for only a small processing fee. The local blood bank is located at Elko General Hospital.

Laura Hunter and Pat Furtney of the hospital auxiliary are in charge of volunteer workers. Soroptimists furnish juices and beverages and Beta Sigma Phi is donating cookies. The college provides space and nurses and doctors give their time free of charge for this joint community effort.

Hospital employees will again participate in a contest for a free pizza feed with the winners receiving a meal on the house.

Bloodmobile at NNCC Monday

ELKO DAILY
FREE PRESS
APR 18, 1981

By Terry Hickson
Hospital Publicist

Giving the gift of life in the form of a volunteer blood contribution to the Red Cross Bloodmobile, donors sometimes wonder if it is worth the time and effort, and they sometimes speculate about who is receiving their personal contribution.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Elko from 3:15 to 8 p.m. on Monday and from 10:15 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Tuesday at Northern Nevada Community College.

President Reagan received Red Cross donated blood following the assassination attempt as did the other men wounded.

Last fall during the bloodmobile visit when a record 293 persons registered, blood from Elko was flown from here to Salt Lake City every hour by the Utah Civil Air Patrol, Dr. George T. Manilla, director of the local program, points out. "There was a serious shortage," he explains. "Blood was needed immediately."

"One patient took nearly all the platelets," Manilla recalls. "He was confined to a veteran's hospital and was a victim of Hodgkin's disease, a form of lymphatic cancer."

"Elkoans who gave blood last time can be proud they gave to help a critical shortage in the bank," Manilla stated, "and they can be assured they were also contributing to an emergency situation."

The doctor pointed out another such case occurred this week, when a Utah Civil Air Patrol unit flew a blood sample from Elko for screening purposes.

After compatible blood was located in Utah, the CAP flew three units back to a patient at Elko General Hospital.

In another incident in the past few weeks, one EGH patient needed 14 units of Red Cross Blood, which was provided along with blood from two local donors because of a requirement for fresh blood on that large of a transfusion.

When potential donors visit the bloodmobile drawings encounter minor delays and have to wait, Manilla says that the volunteers want to apologize. He adds that everyone is trying to do a good job and not abuse the donation of time by donors.

"Support of the Red Cross program insures Elko citizens of a blood supply that will be on hand for elective treatment or can easily be ordered or called for in emergencies," said Manilla.

Bloodmobile draws 255

The Red Cross Bloodmobile concluded a two-day visit here yesterday and Elko General Hospital reports a draw of 255 pints of blood.

This compares to 260 units drawn during the November visit of the bloodmobile when 293 volunteers registered.

Local blood banking personnel pointed out before the drawing that Elko General Hospital last year transfused 569 units, 559 of these supplied by the American Red Cross intermountain blood banking facility in Salt Lake City.

Elko's hospital actually ordered 1,113 units during the year, the amount over transfusions was necessary to keep the local stock current with a range of blood types.

Hospital personnel pointed out Elko's need for blood is growing, and with this growth is the need for more donations.

Volunteer leaders at this week's visit at Northern Nevada Community College were Pat Furtney and Laura Hunter of the hospital auxiliary. Auxiliary members and other volunteers aided in registering and assisting donors and Red Cross workers. Members of Beta Sigma Phi served homemade cookies and punch.

New Chancellor "Comes Out" in

Elko

The Presidents of all four Nevada community colleges, as well as all members of the Board of Regents and the new Chancellors of the University of Nevada systems, gathered in Elko last Wednesday, March 25th.

The group spoke and answered questions for the Rotary Club weekly luncheon, and then toured the facilities at Northern Nevada Community College, here in Elko.

A cocktail party was held in their honor by N.N.C.C. that afternoon and graduates of the Community College were invited to attend, along with the interested members of the faculty and staff and several community.

The new Chancellor and the Board of Regents seemed to be impressed by the Community College and the effect that the Community College system is having on the area, to provide a means for all interested people to continue their education.

They pledged their support to helping N.N.C.C. grow, and in helping to budget improvements in the quality of education provided in this area.

Another cocktail party was held for the visitors that evening in the home of Dorothy Gallagher, our representative on the Board of Regents.

This was the first public appearance of the new Chancellor, Robert Bersi, since he took office.

Elko was chosen for this honor, both because of its Community College and because it provided an ideal non-controversial debut for the new Chancellor, since it would not involve the longstanding rivalry between the University of Nevada at Reno and the University of Nevada at Las Vegas, and their satellite community colleges.

University officials tell outreach plan

Several officials of the University of Nevada system, including the new chancellor, were in Elko yesterday to explain the institution's new program of community outreach.

Chancellor Robert Bersi made his first public appearance in the state yesterday, telling the Elko Rotary Club that Elko was a good spot for that because it was the original site of the University of Nevada and of the state's first community college.

Following his appearance at the luncheon meeting, Bersi spent the afternoon at the Northern Nevada Community College campus, meeting faculty and administrators and the public.

The new chancellor said he intends to have the university system much better recognized throughout the state.

Bersi was introduced by Regent chairman Bob Cashell, who called Bersi "the ingredient we need to sell our programs to the legislature."

Cashell added Bersi would also be the person to eliminate the north-south rivalries in the university system and that Bersi is an excellent administrator and manager.

Another speaker at yesterday's Rotary meeting was University of Nevada Reno president Joe Crowley.

He told club members the atmosphere in the college system is improving for several reasons, including "maybe the best board of regents we've ever had."

Crowley explained the university is involved in a program of outreach "to get the university into the community and the community into the university."

He said that's being done by several methods, including formation of alumni groups and a foundation which will raise funds, a speakers' bureau, the rural medical program, the satellite program called UNITE, and greater information presented to high school students in Nevada about the state's university system.

He said that's all being done despite a budget proposed by Gov. Bob List "which is not absolutely wonderful."

Crowley also suggested yesterday the regents plan a regular meeting in Elko once a year.

Rotarian Bill Bilyeu served as program chairman yesterday and arranged the program in conjunction with Regent Dorothy Gallagher of Elko.

Others present for yesterday's program and sessions at the community college included Regent Frank Sue Del Papa of Reno, Truckee Meadows Community College president James Eardley and Western Nevada Community College president Jack Davis, and NNCC president Bill Berg.

In other Rotary business, three new members were inducted. They were Dennis Duewel, vice president for mining of Chromalloy; Roy Herr, manager of Mayfair Market; and Shelly Hanna, professor at NNCC.

University chancellor sets Elko visit for Wednesday

Elko area residents will be able to meet University of Nevada Chancellor Robert N. Bersi during a reception at Northern Nevada Community College Wednesday afternoon.

NNCC president Bill Berg said the public — and especially University of Nevada graduates — is invited to the college learning resources center between 3:30 and 5 p.m. Wednesday to meet Bersi, who will be making his first public appearance since being appointed chancellor.

Accompanying Bersi to Elko will be University of Nevada regent chairman

Bob Cashell, regent Frankie Sue Del Papa of Reno, and University of Nevada Reno president Joseph Crowley. They will be met here by Regent Dorothy Gallagher of Elko.

Bersi will speak to the Elko Rotary Club at noon, and will hold a press conference at the community college campus between 1:45 and 2:30 p.m.

Following the press conference he will meet with community college administration, staff, and advisory committees until 3:30.

Hunt seeks office

Darwin Hunt, head counselor at Elko High School, has filed as a candidate for University of Nevada regent's seat District 3A representing Elko, Eureka, Humboldt, Lander, Esmeralda, Lincoln, Mineral, White Pine and Nye counties.

Hunt, 49, stated he entered the race because he believes his 23 years of experience in Nevada's schools have provided him with an understanding of the needs of Rural Nevada's students and parents.

"As a counselor I work closely with colleges and universities across the nation. In the areas of student admission, college placement and to meet student needs and problems on a daily basis," said Hunt.

Darwin Hunt

Hunt, a strong supporter of our University system, believes that this single regent's seat, which represents approximately 84,000 square miles or about 1/4 of Nevada, needs a concerned and knowledgeable voice.

Veteran regent defeated in race

LAS VEGAS (AP) — One incumbent University of Nevada regent was defeated and another edged to victory in the closest races among eight for statewide education posts.

Veteran Washoe County regent Louis Lombardi of Reno lost to challenger Frankie Sue Del Papa 16,967-13,102.

In southern Nevada, Chris Karamanos of Las Vegas, after a night-long see-saw battle, edged out Dr. Jim Jones and won by a vote of 19,727 to 19,371.

Dorothy Gallagher of Elko won the race for the rural counties seat vacated by longtime regent Molly Knudtsen. With 87 percent of the vote counted, she lead Darwin Hunt, also of Elko, by a vote of 12,946 to 8,808.

Only three of the eight candidates for statewide education posts had anything to worry about — the other five ran unopposed and had to get only one vote to be elected.

June Whitley of North Las Vegas, appointed to the board in September after Brenda Mason resigned, was running unopposed for the rest of Ms. Mason's term.

The four unopposed candidates for the state Board of Education, all incumbents, were Joan Kenney, who represents Henderson, Boulder City and parts of Clark County; Shirlee Wedow of Sparks; George Earnhart of Carson City and Warren Holmes of North Las Vegas.

Karamanos, who before the primary was caught up in a scandal involving alleged political favors done for his catering firm, ran a distant second in the primary to Jones, a dentist and member of the Las Vegas housing authority.

Lombardi, 72, the senior board member, ran second in the primary to Ms. Del Papa, who was born the same year the incumbent was first elected to the board.

Construction projects under way at college

Several construction projects are under way this summer at Northern Nevada Community College.

Eleven young adults, ages 17 to 20, hired under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act, are working on the projects.

Richard Culver, a construction teacher at the college, is the consultant in all phases of the summer construction projects. Stan Aiazzi is the program coordinator and Louis Horton along with Karen Emerson are supervisors.

The CETA employees are working on a variety of small jobs and two major projects - constructing the front and back face of a large culvert and building an amphitheater, both near the college library.

A barbecue pit and patio are being installed at the amphitheater. Horton said the CETA employees "have done everything in the patio project from design to ordering materials and doing the actual work."

Horton commented that the college's summer construction program is providing youth in Elko a chance to earn some money and learn some construction skills. The CETA employees receive $3.10 an hour. Work began on June 9 and will be finished Aug. 15.

Horton explained that CETA pays the wages and the college is paying for the construction materials.

"The kids have done a really good job," the supervisor added.

Before the program ends in mid-August, Horton said the construction group will also install a sprinkler system at the community college.

Horton stated Dr. William Berg, president of NNCC, is so pleased with the summer construction projects that he is going to host a party for the CETA employees during their last work week, so they will be the first to use the barbecue pit.

The CETA employees working on the construction projects are Brad Bowman, Anna DeLeon, Fernessa Temoke, Leman Temoke, Jill Greening, Aleceja Gamble, Angie Williams, Maureen Blossom, Kim Errecart, Joel Utter and Mark Lenz.

Dogs attack sheep being kept at NNCC

Sixteen sheep at the Northern Nevada Community College agriculture facility near the county fairgrounds were attacked sometime last night or early this morning by dogs, according to Louis Horton, NNCC agriculture instructor.

In August, a similar attack occurred, killing several sheep. Horton said he believes all the sheep mauled during the latest attack will survive.

The sheep were attacked between 7:30 p.m. yesterday and 8 a.m. today while in a barn. The agriculture instructor said the dogs dug underneath several high barriers in order to attack the sheep who belong to his daughter, Kelly.

The dogs were gone when Horton arrived at the scene this morning.

Miss Horton has been stabling the sheep at the community college agriculture area this summer in connection with Future Farmers of America and 4-H projects.

Horton said his agriculture class "doctored" the sixteen sheep this morning.

Horton added that he and others are thinking of ways to prevent further attacks on the sheep.

Two sheep die after attack

Two sheep - mauled by a pack of dogs earlier this week at Northern Nevada Community College's agricultural area - have died, according to Richard Culver, a college instructor.

In addition, Culver reported, three sheep are still in serious condition.

The pack of dogs mauled 20 sheep owned by Kelli Horton early Monday morning before Culver arrived at the scene and killed two of the dogs and frightened three others away.

Culver reportedly shot two of the five dogs who managed to gain entry into the five-acre lot next to the college by climbing under a gate entrance.

The gate has been reinforced with a metal frame in order to prevent a similar occurrence, he said.

Miss Horton had been stabling the sheep on the community college property for the summer as part of a Future Farmers of America project.

• NNCC Hosts <sup>Elko Independent</sup> CETA Program <sub>June 3, 1981</sub>

Northern Nevada Community College will once again be hosting a local CETA program. CETA, or Comprehensive Employment Training Act, is a federally funded program in which qualifying participants learn job skills while working in local projects.

One of the major differences between this year and last is that the college has received funding for two separate programs this year, according to program supervisor Stan Aiuzzi.

The first project available will be a practical experience farm, in which participants will learn how to operate farm equipment such as tractors, swathers, and balers. The workers will also gain experience in plowing, discing and putting up hay.

Mr. Aiuzzi indicated that some of the equipment being used, such as the tractors, is brand new. NNCC Agriculture teacher Louis Horton will be in charge of the practical experience farm. He will be assisted by NNCC and UNR graduate Vince Garcia.

CETA workers on the farm will also become certified tractor operators, according to Mr. Aiuzzi. "Next summer, they'll be qualified to work at any of the ranches," he adds.

The other project open to CETA workers this summer will be the renovation of the child development playground. The program which will use a $8,000 grant from the Max C. Fleischmann Foundation will have participants help design and build the new playground.

The college could have purchased the new playground, but they wanted to "let the kids help develop a totally unique playground," says Mr. Aiuzzi. He also stated that the completed project may be the best of its kind in all of Nevada.

The playground renovation project will be headed by Bill Henderson, who retired as the high school's construction teacher. He will be assisted by Ted Burner.

In past years, CETA programs in other cities have been attacked as "make-work" projects in which students were paid to pick up weeds or litter. That, however, is not the case in Elko, according to Mr. Aiuzzi. Pointing out that the college exists to teach, he says that "If the participants aren't going to learn anything, I don't want it here."

CETA participants last year constructed the amphitheater, patio and barbeque pit which are located behind the NNCC library. They were also responsible for repairing a culvert, working on the campus farm, and clearing areas for construction.

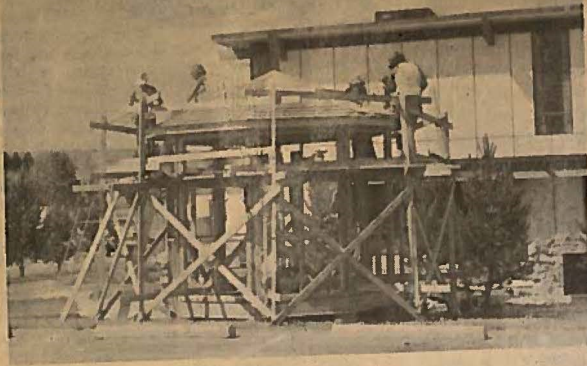

This year participants can sign up for work on the either of the two CETA projects anytime between now and the programs completion on August 14. Mr. Aiuzzi added that new workers are always needed.

N.N.C.C.'s New Playground Special Treats for Pre-Schoolers

Children attending the Child Development Center at Northern Nevada Community College next fall will be in for a very pleasant surprise when the fall session begins.

Since June of this year, 15 young C.E.T.A. employees have been hard at work constructing one of the most entertaining outdoor play areas ever to have been dreamed up.

Funds for construction of the project largely came from a $8,000 grant from the Fleischmann Foundation, just prior to the end of its many years of generous endowments to Nevada arts, historical and education projects.

A C.E.T.A. grant was applied for by the college to cover the salaries of the employees, as well as such protective clothing as hard-hats, safety goggles and steel-toed boots.

C.E.T.A. is an employment training program which has been axed by the Reagan administration, but since fiscal year 1981 does not end federally until October 1; several inexperienced young people from lower-income families were provided with a very unique and diversified opportunity to learn several skills in the construction trade.

Project supervisor is Bill Henderson, a former contractor and vocational construction teacher from Elko High on, a large sand-box, and a School. He admits to being "hard on those kids some-times," many of whom have had no prior experience in even pounding nails, but he feels that he is doing them a service in preparing them for the realities of the construction field. "Nobody's going to be babying them out there!" he said.

Bill Henderson is assisted by high school and developmental instructor, Ted Burner.

The new play area will include a cave, a stone waterfall, a wonderful concrete figure-eight tricycle "dragstrip," a log cabin with a fireman's pole to slide down

The public is invited to tour the construction, which is scheduled for completion around the middle of August. The design concepts were the combined brain-storming efforts of Marilee Harper Snyder, director of the Child Development Center; her assistants, Stan Aiuzzi, and several interesting-looking pictures in books and magazines.

"When it is finished, this could be the best pre-school play area in Nevada," commented Stan Aiuzzi.

Dr. Berg, president of N.N.C.C., has personally contributed $500 to the project, to help bridge the gap between the deadline for ordering supplies, which was June 30, and incidental necessities which have come up since.

Marilee may have to host a special session for older children to join in the fun this fall, to avoid a rash of kindergarten and first grade drop-outs among her former students....

Workshop leaders told for women's conference

Workshop leaders for the Rural Nevada Women's Conference have been announced by conference co-chairmen Carley Sullivan and Bonnie Whalen.

The conference is financed by a grant and will be held at Northern Nevada Community College Oct. 17-18.

Workshops and their leaders include the following.

- Lifelong learning; personal development - Charlene Hunt and Cynthia Smith. Topics include religious enrichment, creative enrichment, family challenge and enrichment, and continuing education.

- Holistic health - Beverly Copley and Denise Galantowicz. Topics include coping, stress, depression; trauma of divorce, death, terminal illness; services available in rural Nevada; abused women and family violence.

- Political activism - State Sen. Jean Ford and Mrs. Sullivan. Topics include women in politics, anatomy of a campaign, effective legislative lobbying; laws, and the volunteer movement.

- Alcohol and drug abuse - Dorothy North and Pat Bates. Topics consist of children and chemical abuse, "lace curtain drinkers," intervention, prescription drugs, services available for chemical abusers and their families.

- The world of work for women - Bonnie Whalen and Judy Anderson. Topics include money matters; small investments; displaced homemaker; consumer concerns; balancing home, work and leisure; and credit, loans, wills, and estate planning.

- Juvenile concerns - Donna Walker and Richard Welsch. Topics include review of delinquency problems, options and alternatives, how the probation and parole system works, the institutions, and communication between parent and child.

The conference co-chairmen said no registration fee is being charged for the conference workshops. However, the luncheon is $8 and the banquet is $11.

A workshop schedule and registration information appears on this page.

Women's conference registration to start

Registration begins this afternoon at Northern Nevada Community College for the Rural Nevada Women's Conference.

Conference co-chairmen Carley Sullivan and Bonnie Whalen said they expect around 150 people to attend the opening session tonight and workshops tomorrow.

All workshops will be held in classrooms at the college. There is no charge for the workshops, but there is a charge for the Saturday luncheon and dinner, both of which will be held at the Holiday Inn.

The conference co-chairmen said those who do not register today may do so starting at 7:30 a.m. tomorrow.

They said women from throughout northern Nevada have already signed up for the conference, and more are expected tonight.

The conference starts at 5:15 this afternoon at the college with welcoming speeches from Mrs. Sullivan, Mrs. Whalen and NNCC president Bill Berg.

Featured speakers tonight will be author Carolyn Bird and Kelly Jackson, deputy director of the Nevada Energy Department.

Following the speeches, entertainment will be provided by local guitarist Mariann LaMorte.

Workshops begin at 8:30 tomorrow morning, following an 8 a.m. speech by anthropologist Tonia Harvey.

Those attending the conference will be able to attend four of the six workshops, which consist of lifelong learning and personal development, holistic health, political activism, alcohol and drug abuse, the world of work for women, and juvenile concerns.

A luncheon will be held at 1 p.m. tomorrow at the Holiday Inn. Master of ceremonies Charles Greenhaw will introduce Jean LaForce of the Small Business Administration.

Workshops will continue in the afternoon.

A banquet will be held at the Holiday Inn at 7:30 p.m. Master of ceremonies Howard Hickson will introduce featured speaker Edna Patterson, a local historian.

Women's Conference Schedule Announced

The 1980 Rural Nevada Women's Conference Steering Committee held its final planning meeting this past week and conference co-chairwomen, Carley Sullivan and Bonnie Whalen have announced a schedule of outstanding and recognized local, state and national speakers and participants at the conference site, Northern Nevada Community College.

Carolyn Bird, Poughkeepsie, New York, author of the The Two Paycheck Family,

Born Female, The Invisible Scar and several other books, will keynote the first Rural Nevada Women's Conference Friday evening, October 17 at 5:15 p.m. Registration has been set for 3 to 5 p.m. on Friday and 7:30 - 8 A.M. Saturday, October 18.

Kelly Jackson, Deputy Director, State of Nevada Department of Energy will also speak Friday evening at the opening session on "Nevada's Energy Future: An Alternative View."

A "Get Acquainted Champagne and Refreshment Hour" will be held at the college at 8 p.m. for all conference delegates and Marianne LaMorte, folk singer and guitarist, will entertain during the Friday evening reception.

Interested men and women are invited to attend.

Saturday's program will begin with completion of registration at 7:30 a.m. and Dr. Tonia Harvey, Anthropologist and specialist in women's studies will give an address at 8 a.m.

Six workshops will be offered the delegates, and they may select four out of the six to attend - all will be two hour seminars - moderators and speakers will be announced in a release next week.

The Get Acquainted Hour and coffee and refreshment breaks are being coordinated by Marilee Snyder and Karen Martin. Home-made breads will be prepared by members of the steering committee.

Sara Campsey and her Northern Nevada Community College Craft Classes will have a special exhibit showing a film festival is also planned.

A luncheon in the Gold Pan Room of the Holiday Inn will feature Jean LaForce from the Small Business Administration in Washington, D.C. as guest speaker and Dr. Charles Greenhaw, Dean of Students at Northern Nevada Community College and a member of the Nevada Humanities Committee which is funding the conference, will be Master of Ceremonies.

A banquet Saturday evening at the Holiday Inn will be honored by the presence and remarks of an eminent Nevada historian and author, Edna Patterson of Elko, with Northern Nevada Museum Director Howard Hickson as Master of Ceremonies. Special presentations by the conference co-chairwomen will conclude the banquet schedule.

This is a conference funded by a grant from the Nevada Humanities Committee and co-sponsored and supported by contributions from the Elko Business and Professional Women, Northern Nevada Community College, U.S. Forest Service, Nevada Attorney General Richard Bryan, The Sperry and Hutchinson Company, Women's Division; Commercial Hotel, Stockmen's Motor Hotel, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, American Association of University Women, Elko Chapter, Nevada Lung Association, Elko Seroptimist Club, Elko Chamber of Commerce, Elko Convention Center, Elko Independent, Radio Station KELK, Elko General Hospital Auxiliary with contributions from interested individuals in Rural Nevada.

Co-Chairwomen, Whelan and Sullivan have expressed thanks to the organizations and individuals who have so enthusiastically supported this first rural Nevada women's conference; they particularly thanked their steering committee and the workshop participants.

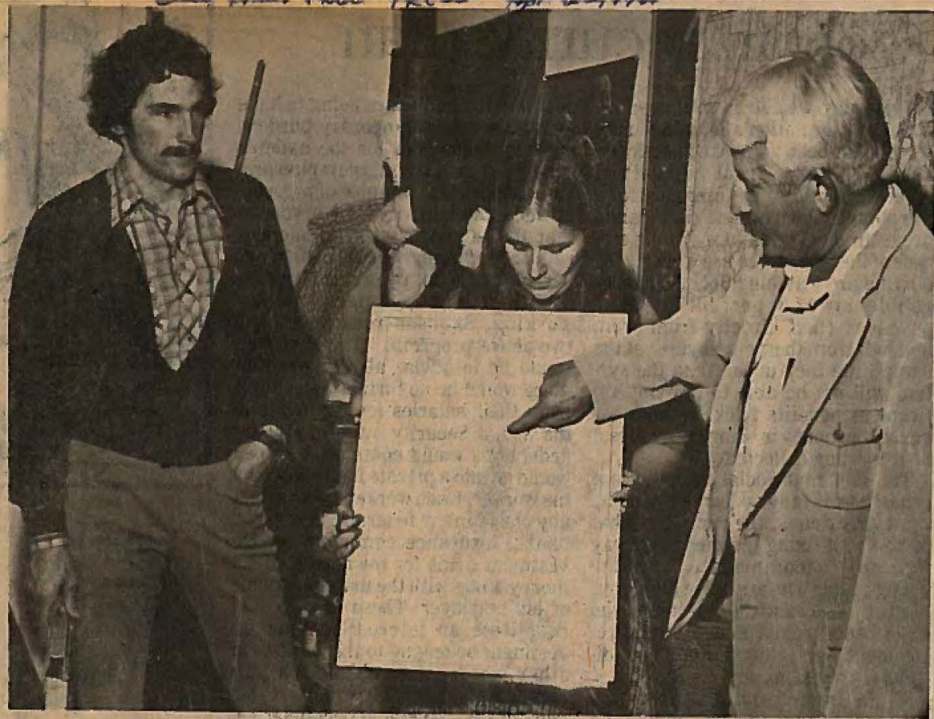

The Child Care Center at the college will be available for child care services during the conference hours for those attending and these parents are urged to register early so services can be provided. Meals will be the responsibility of the parents.

The conference theme is "Rural Nevada Women - Their Options in The Eighties - Their Challenges."

The conference co-chairs stated the conference is to be a communication and learning experience with the philosophy that "a women's place should be and will be anywhere and everywhere, wherever our dreams, our energy, our aspirations and our abilities lead us."

MX report blasted at college meeting

Elkoans learned about perceived shortcomings in the Air Force's report on the MX missile system during a meeting held last evening at the college.

The meeting was designed to prepare Elkoans for next Wednesday's Air Force hearings in Elko on the MX. Those sessions will be held at 1:30 and 7 p.m. at the convention center, and each will last four hours.

Tony Lesperance, director of the University of Nevada's Gurd Ranch, spoke at length last evening to an audience of 20 about the effects of the MX system on ranching in Nevada.

Lesperance was introduced by Paul Bottari of the Nevada Cattlemen's Association. Both men said they were not opposed to the MX missile itself but are opposed to the present basing mode which calls for installation of silos and roads to connect the silos in Nevada and Utah.

They and Abby Johnson of Citizen Alert, a Reno-based group, criticized the draft environmental impact statement prepared for the Air Force at a cost of $18.5 million. Lesperance noted that's a cost of $9,000 per page of the finished document. They agreed the statement is "very inadequate."

Lesperance, who serves as co-chairman of the state committee for producing agriculture studying the MX, stressed his concern "is for what's the best ultimate use of land."

He said that if the MX is installed in its present mode, "We face the loss of major agricultural production capabilities within 10-20 years."

In addition to withdrawing great amounts of acreage, the MX system would also use great amounts of water — amounts which the Air Force hasn't even measured, said Lesperance.

The major deficiency in the Air Force report is that "secondary impacts are not measured," he said.

For example, the report deals only with the acreage over which roads will actually be built and where the installation pods will be built.

The report does not deal with the half-mile radius around the roads and the pods which will also be withdrawn, nor does it deal adequately with loss of water and grazing capability of ranchers near the MX sites, said Lesperance.

The Air Force report says disturbance will occur on only 180,000 acres of land, but the actual figure is closer to seven million acres, he said.

He added that in the Dry Lake Valley of central Nevada, vegetation has already been "permanently altered just because of the survey conducted for the Air Force."

The Air Force report says a total of 7,200 AUMs will be lost, but the actual figure with secondary impacts is closer to 700,000, he said.

An AUM is the amount of forage required to sustain one cow for one month.

The Air Force figures are low because secondary impacts are not counted, he said.

Lesperance explained the MX system would draw approximately 100,000 construction workers who would be working 10 days on, four days off. With overtime, they would be averaging $50,000 annually.

The MX will require tremendous amounts of water, and many of the Air Force applications for water rights are within a quarter to half mile of existing water wells for livestock use. He said those wells would soon go dry because of the much deeper and larger MX water wells.

If the MX goes as is now planned, the average cattle rancher in Elko County will have his per-cow income reduced by $75. "If he's making $25 per cow now, he'll be losing $50 after MX," said Lesperance.

Affecting the income will be higher labor costs, and greater costs for water, feed, fuel, and construction supplies, he explained.

He added that apparently "only the Air Force wants the MX," and that there is considerable debate about the system among the other service branches.

He agreed with a statement by Miss Johnson that if there had been no change in administration in Washington, "we would not be having this meeting because it would make no difference. The MX is Carter's baby, and it would be started by now."

Miss Johnson added other effects of the MX would be to curtail or prevent mining in the areas where the MX will be installed and to place "a lot of demands on health facilities like Elko General Hospital."

She urged Elkoans to attend next Wednesday's Air Force hearings about the MX, to ask questions there, and to make public statements opposed to the MX.

She also urged letters be written to Nevada's congressional delegation, especially to Senator Paul Laxalt "who appears to be the key."

Bottari noted that information about the MX is available through the Elko office of the Nevada Cattlemen's Association. The information was provided by Citizen Alert, he added.

Meeting on MX planned for college on Tuesday

A meeting to help prepare Elkoans for an Air Force hearing on the MX missile system will be held Tuesday evening, according to Abby Johnson of Citizen Alert.

Tuesday's meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. in room LR-12 of Northern Nevada Community College.

Paul Bottari of the Nevada Cattlemen's Association said his organization is urging members to attend Tuesday night's meeting at the college and to provide written comments to the Air Force about affects of the MX on cattle ranching operations.

He said specific information about the "impact on ranching" will be available at the Tuesday meeting.

He added the NCA is continuing its policy of recommending against participation in the Air Force hearings because of "inadequate time allowed for comment."

Miss Johnson said the meeting has two purposes. One is to discuss the MX impact on Elko County, and the other is to inform Elkoans on what to expect during an Air Force hearing here about the MX.

The Air Force hearing is scheduled for 1:30 and 7 p.m. on April 29 at the convention center. Elko was added to the list of Nevada cities having the meetings after requests were filed by Senators Paul Laxalt and Howard Cannon and Congressman Jim Santini.

Citizen Alert is one of the organizations in Nevada opposed to the MX, explained Miss Johnson.

NNCC sponsors movie

Northern Nevada Community College will present its third film in the series "Power and Politics on the Potomac" this Sunday, February 15th, at 7:00 p.m. in the Learning Resource Center, at the College.

"All the President's Men", starring Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman is a 1977 production which accurately reflects all the events, times, places and people involved in the Watergate cover-up.

Dr. Owen Ulph will speak at the conclusion of the film on the "Myth of Political Democracy" and the "Mesmerizing Power of the Presidency." Dr. Ulph is a semi-retired professor of History and Humanities from Reed College in Portland, Oregon. As a contributing editor to American West Magazine, he has always loved Nevada and western mountain country.

Dr. Ulph purchased his ranch in Lamoille in 1961 and has been commuting to Portland ever since. His special interest is the aspect of the cattle empire in the west.

NNCC Series On Politics Begins

Northern Nevada Community College continues its film series, Power and Politics in Washington, D.C., with the showing of "Advise and Consent" at 7 p.m. Sunday in the learning resource center.

Professor Paul Hanna of NNCC is featured speaker. His talk will follow the film, which stars Henry Fonda and presents a president in conflict with the Senate over a controversial executive appointment.

Hanna's lecture is titled The Agony of Decision Making and will proceed from the premise "that despite our tendency toward cynical stereotyping, we usually do have men of good will and good sense making national decisions," said Hanna.

Those men have a difficult time deciding what is "the right thing," he added.

Hanna will also compare situations in the movie with past moral dilemmas faced by leaders.

The program is made possible through a grant from the Nevada Humanities Committee.

White House presentation at Lamoille

Northern Nevada Community College's Little Theatre will present the White House from 7 p.m. to 9 Wednesday, March 25, at the Lamoille Women's Clubhouse.

Admission to the play is free and the Lamoille women will serve refreshments.

Vicki Rossolo directs the play in which 10 actors participate and Lamoille Women's Club president Sue Mollison points out the public is invited to an evening of "family entertainment."

"This play is enjoyable to all ages," Mollison said, "and it provides a lesson for history students."

Speakers for weekend youth rally announced

Speakers have been announced for this weekend's Christian youth rally being conducted in Elko by local churches.

Teenagers from the surrounding area are invited to attend the rally being conducted Friday and Saturday at First Presbyterian Church, St. Mark Lutheran Church and the Church of the Nazarene, according to Carla Hoegger, coordinator of the event.

Friday night's schedule includes singing led by the Rev. Ray Ossa of the Carlin Assembly of God Church and worship led by the Rev. Mike Shay of St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

In addition, the Rev. William Diekelman of St. Mark will be the keynote speaker during Friday's and Saturday's sessions.

A number of workshops will be conducted Saturday by local church members and ministers.

The Rev. Dave Peterson of First Presbyterian will discuss the topic of death and dying. The Rev. Lynn Brown of the Nazarene church will comment upon "Expressions of the Christian Faith."

Cults will be the topic of discussion for the Rev. Lowell Drake of First Baptist Church. Religious history will be reviewed by Shelly Hanna, NNCC professor.

"The Role of Rock" will be a topic presented by Bill Preiss of First Presbyterian. Drugs usage will be reviewed by Darrell McGowan of Carson City's Catholic church.

Worship on Saturday will be led by the Rev. Bruce Braman of St. Paul's Episcopal Church and the Rev. Charles Hartman of First Assembly of God. Music will be provided by Dennis Hugh of St. Joseph's.

Food is being provided by several local churches and arrangements will be coordinated by Joy Larson.

Mrs. Hoegger said junior and senior high school age students can attend and they do not have to be members of local churches.

A $4 registration fee will cover the cost of food and refreshments, she added.

Individuals may register in advance by calling First Presbyterian at 738-3430. In addition, registration will be conducted at 7 p.m. Friday and 8:30 a.m. Saturday at First Presbyterian Church, 1559 Sewell Drive.

"One In The Spirit" is the theme of the youth rally. "Idols Of Our Times" will be Diekelman's topic for the keynote address.

The Friday evening session begins at 7:30 p.m. and the Saturday session will begin at 9 a.m. and conclude at 6:30 p.m.

The Gamma Study Report

Apr 15,

In order to understand the purpose and objectives of the Gamma Study, it is necessary to back-track about five years to the Beta Project.

"Beta Project had its beginnings in the need to obtain accurate data to provide a basis for scientific analysis of the people of Elko and their views and needs." This is the beginning of the introduction to the Beta Project report.

In the mid-Seventies, it became apparent to the Chamber of Commerce and members of the faculty of the Community College, that Elko was starting to change very rapidly, and that there was almost no statistical information available on Elko.

At the request of Chilton Engineering, who needed the information for initial studies on the environmental impact of the Project Lifesaver track relocation project, Professor Gano Evans of the University of Nevada, Reno, had begun preparing a limited questionnaire.

It was decided that this questionnaire could be amplified to include the type of information the Chamber of Commerce would need for demographic data on Elko.

The entire Beta Project was budgeted at $1200, with Professor Paul Hanna, of the N.N.C.C. Social Sciences department, and Professor Jewell Hanna of the Psychology department drawing up an "extensive survey of the citizens of Elko."

This household survey was distributed to 200 homes in four areas, divided by 5th Street and Idaho Street. Students of N.N.C.C. conducted the questionnaire in April of 1975, as part of sociology projects.

The results of the survey were keypunched at N.N.C.C. and then sent to the computer at the University of Nevada, Reno.

Since everyone else had donated their time and expertise, the data processing was the only expense.

Even so, funding caused delays, and the final results were not sent back from Reno until April of 1976.

Mrs. Amy Emerson, of the N.N.C.C. faculty, supervised the data processing and analyzed the results.

Between the Hannas and Amy Emerson, and final Beta Project report was put together and presented to the Chamber of Commerce in June of 1976, and published that summer.

Elko has continued to grow since 1976 and it became apparent that the information contained in the Beta Project was now out of date.

Added to that concern, the Chamber of Commerce, had begun to see the need for controlled economic development in Elko, and the broadening of our economic base from total dependency on mining and casinos.

In order to attract clean, light industries, the Chamber felt that it would be advantageous to have demographic data on the community which was specifically related to the workforce, and to publish that data in a form which would be useful to industries considering a move to Northeast Nevada.

It was also decided to include other areas of Elko County not involved in the Beta Project, and the survey was set up to also be distributed in the Carlin, Wells and Spring Creek areas.

This new project was named the Gamma Study.

All of the expansion from the original concept to update Beta, and the amount of time that would be involved in putting such a comprehensive study together, necessitated a great deal more funds.

The Elko Chamber of Commerce applied for and received a special grant from the Governor's office, funded through the State Commrchen sive Employment and Training Office. The grant was for $45,000. The approval was complete in August of 1979, and the grant was signed in October.

The grant was specifically to be used "to conduct a study relative to Elko's potential for industrial expansion and the attitudes of area residents toward such a possibility."

It was determined that the study fall into three separate parts. The first would be conducted by a community planner who could provide industrial planning expertise. Paul Holley, an engineer from DeLeuw, Cather and Company in San Francisco, was contracted for this portion.

In order to make the maximum use of existing household survey data, Professors Paul and Jewell Hanna and Amy Emerson of N.N.C.C. were contracted to upgrade and administer the household survey.

In addition, the Employment Security Department in Elko provided the Gamma Study with population and other statistical data to be used in assessing the workforce in Elko.

Two surveys were compiled: a household and a business.

Please see page 10

ELKO INDEPENDENT

survey. The household survey was extended to 294 completed questionnaires, 184 from the four sampling areas of Elko, randomly selected homes, and 40 each from Carlin and Wells, and 30 from the Spring Creek/Lamoille Pleasant Valley area.

The compiled data was entered into the computer at U.N.R. under the supervision of Professor Mark Melrose at N.N.C.C.

The Elko community showed a much greater interest in industrial expansion than five years before but 82% of those surveyed emphasized clean air and beauty as "the first consideration in future development." 89% of those surveyed favored the construction of a dam on the South Fork of the Humboldt for recreational purposes.

29% of the Elko surveys favored doubling the population in the next ten years, and 36% favored increasing the current population by one half.

In the area of community services, police and fire protection, N.N.C.C. and the elementary schools received the highest levels of household confidence.

Almost everyone surveyed favored developing more affordable housing, with a surprising 55% willing to see "a new, modern mobile home park in the part of town where I live."

As part of the workforce survey, Elko statistics were compared to Reno and showed that there is a greater job turnover in Elko. Also, that with the exception of grocery store personnel, wages tend to run at least $20 a week lower for all types of jobs, with sometimes as much as $100 a week difference. That must be the quality of life differential.

All the data from the Gamma Study has finally been compiled and is currently available through the Chamber of Commerce in published form.

In order to appeal to the widest possible number of users, the data was presented three ways.

The smallest booklet is called Elko, City of Festivals and presents only the Elko data. It is, as Nick Halton, Director of the Chamber of Commerce, put it, "a sales brochure for Elko. It is an overview, aimed at people thinking about locating a business here."

The complete Gamma Study Report contains the information for all the areas surveyed and contains a comparison of the Beta and Gamma information. The household survey is analyzed in written form, with bar charts and graphs.

The third published report is a "data bank" of all the statistical information with no analysis.

If this information is kept current, the Gamma Study should have a much longer life-span.

The Economic Development Committee of the Chamber of Commerce is in the process of "developing a marketing strategy" to "stimulate the appetite" of "target industries." They will use the Gamma Study as a tool.

The Gamma Study makes surprisingly interesting reading and reveals a great deal about the attitudes and potential of our community.

All three report formats are available at the Chamber of Commerce, and should prove to be an excellent research tool for the community and our surrounding towns for years to come.

Like Project Lifesaver, the Gamma Study will be used as

NNCC exhibits at Elko museum

An estimated 200 art works submitted by Northern Nevada Community College instructors and students are currently on display at the Northeastern Nevada Museum.

Eighteen instructors from the college's art department and several students enrolled in art classes and in the Pioneer Arts and Crafts program have provided articles for display, said chairman of the NNCC art department and Arts and Crafts Program coordinator Sarah Campsey.

This is the seventh year the college has sponsored the exhibit. Some of the items are available for sale, Mrs. Campsey said.

The exhibition will continue until June 5.

"It's wonderful to be able to display in the museum where we can reach a wider viewing public," commented Mrs. Campsey.

"I've watched the quality of art produced by these students and instructors improve tremendously through the years," she continued. "Elko is fortunate to have such a variety of professional artists teaching at the college."

Among those instructors who have presented certain works for display are Chris Burkham, folk art painting; Dick Lane, photography; Chad Smith, photography; Kay Thompson, needlepoint; Candace Hixon, Wendy Benkowski, pottery; Phyllis Vogler, applique; Gene Meeks Paul, oil painting; Lowell Swetdseid, watercolor; Patricia Fox, drawing, basketry and silk screen; Lenore Rush, weaving; Bill Chreste, antique Christmas ornaments; Shirlene Wiscombe, tole painting; John Dits, stained glass; and Sarah Campsey, sculpture, crafts and furniture refinishing.

Also on display is a group of masks created by Nevada Youth Training Center students.

Three Wells Boys Compete In NNCC Jogathon Saturday

Wells progress May 29, 81

Three Wells boys competed in the fifth bi-annual Northern Nevada Community College Jogathon which was held in Elko Saturday, May 23.

All three boys competed in the boys 10-15 Division. Earl Larsen finished the three mile run with a time of 19:50. He finished second in the division and eleventh overall in a field of approximately 50 competitors.

Luke LeBaron finished with a time of 22:36, third in the division and nineteenth overall. Robert Parsons finished in a time of 24:04, 7th in the division and 30th overall.

George Hernandez of Reno did it again Saturday, outdistancing 48 other runners to win the bi-annual Northern Nevada Community College Jogathon, run through the streets of Elko.

Hernandez, who holds the course record at 15:35, covered the three-mile distance in a time of 16:00. Mark Wynne of Elko was second at 16:34 and Mari Jaynes was the first woman to finish with a time of 23:53.

Following the race, an awards ceremony was held with race director Ted Burnet, Bill Davies of the NNCC staff and Bill Opperman, NNCC student body president, presenting trophies and prizes. All contestants were furnished free liquid refreshments by Blach Distributing.

Jogathon set here Saturday, May 23

Northern Nevada Community College's fifth bi-annual Jogathon will be run through the streets of Elko on Saturday, May 23, according to information released by the race director Ted Burner.

The race will follow a three-mile course through the streets of Elko, starting in the city park. Maps of the route are on the entry blanks, which will be available at NNCC's Student Services office or at the sports desk of the Elko Daily Free Press.

There will be an entry fee of $4 per person or $7 per family, with a late fee of $8 to be charged after Friday, May 22. Proceeds from the race will go to the NNCC scholarship fund and refreshments, to be served in the city park after the run, are compliments of Blach Distributing.

In addition to trophies and awards, there will be a giveaway of items such as jogging shoes, socks, T-shirts, shorts and other running gear following the race.

There will be a total of 23 trophies awarded to: the fastest male and fastest female; plus males and females in age groups - 9 and under; 10-15; 16-19; 20-29; 30-39; 40-49; and 50 and over. There will also be special categories: first and second place Businessmen's Trophy (three or more runners from the same business with the fastest combined time); 200 pounds and over category (persons weighing more than 200 pounds at the start of jogging) which will be given to an individual who has never won the award; oldest runner; youngest runner; family award (three or more members with lowest combined time); husband-wife (lowest combined time).

NNCC Jogathon set for Nov. 8

Northern Nevada Community College will hold its fall Jogathon, in conjunction with a "turkey trot," on Saturday, Nov. 8 starting at 11 a.m.

The event will be run over a three-mile course, starting at the college and continuing through the streets of Elko, ending at the college.

Turkeys will be given to the fastest male and female runner and an additional four turkeys will be given away during awards ceremonies following the race.

Ribbons will be awarded through third place in the 14 age group categories, with first place ribbons going to special category winners.

Once again the businessman's trophy will be given to the firm having the three runners posting the fastest combined time and other special category ribbons will go to the oldest runner, youngest runner, family award (combined time for three or more entries), and husband and wife team.

Entry fees for the race will be $4 per entry or $7 per family (husband, wife, children) and the entry deadline is Thursday, Nov. 6. A late entry fee of $6 will be charged.

Money from the race is used for scholarships at NNCC.

Entry blanks are available at the college or at the sports desk of the Elko Daily Free Press.

Elkoan competes in race

Bill Davies of Elko, a member of the Ruby Mountain Running Club, participated in the fourth annual Bridge To Bridge Run in San Francisco, Calif., Sunday, finishing 1,100th in a field of 7,000.

Davies ran the 7.9-mile distance from the Golden Gate Bridge to the Bay Bridge and back to the Marina Green in a time of 58:30. His brother-in-law, Jim Roberts of Forest Hill, Calif., finished 139th with a time of 48:12.

The event is sponsored by radio station KNBR in San Francisco and was won by Duncan McDonald in a time of 37:14. Janice LeCocq was the first woman finisher with a time of 47:15.

Paddle tennis offered at NNCC

Paddle tennis—a cross between tennis and ping-pong—is now part of the Intermural program at Northern Nevada Community College and is played at the college tennis courts each Tuesday evening between 4 and 6:30 p.m., according to NNCC instructor Ted Burner.

Burner said the new game is similar to tennis in several ways except is played with a paddle slightly larger than a ping pong paddle.

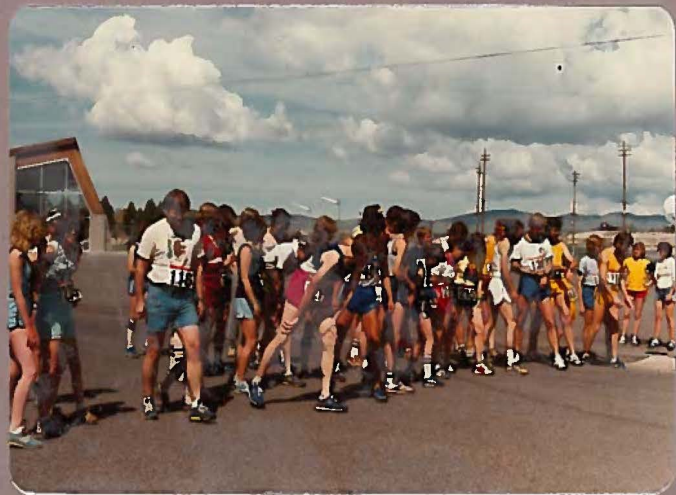

"It's a game that doesn't take the expertise of tennis," stated Burner.

Paddle tennis differs from the traditional tennis game in that the court is smaller and the ball is served below the waist. Scoring, however, is similar to regular tennis, said Burner.

He invited anyone interested in playing or observing the game to come to the college courts on Tuesdays or contact him for information.

College pre-school students decorate a living memorial

A living Christmas tree has been decorated by pre-school students at the Northern Nevada Community College Child Center in memory of two boys who died in an automobile accident earlier this year.

The tree, a Colorado Blue Spruce, was purchased from funds donated to the NNCC child center in memory of Mason and Joe Noble. The two youngsters and their father, Larry, were killed June 12 a few miles from Elko on the Lamoille Highway.

Approximately 60 students in four pre-school classes helped pick out the tree, make ornaments and decorate last week, according to center instructors Marilee

Snyder and Joeline Holmes.

Students, their parents and friends are invited to view the tree during an open house at the college this evening from 5:30 to 7 p.m.

The tree was purchased from Four Seasons Floral shop and will be replanted near the center in the spring during a play yard expansion project, said Mrs. Snyder.

When the tree is replanted, a permanent plaque dedicating the tree to the Nobles will be installed.

She said an $8,000 grant from the Fleischmann Foundation will finance the yard expansion. Contracts for the project will be awarded in June.

NNCC child center accepting applications

Northern Nevada Community College is accepting applications now for students in next fall's pre-school program at the child center.

Program director Marilee Snyder noted enrollment is on a first-come, first-served basis for children aged three through six. Included is an after-school program for kindergarten children.

She said, "The pre-school program is designed to provide a variety of experiences for young children. There is a balance of structured and unstructured activities and of individual, small group, and large group experiences.

"Observation and assessment of each child allows for individualization to meet the needs of all children. Daily and long-term developmentals are planned in this way."

She explained a variety of class options are available between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. daily.

Information is available by phoning the college at 738-8493 and asking for the child lab.

Mrs. Snyder said approximately 200 people — parents and children — had lunch in the child lab last week on the last day of school of this year.

The children prepared the meal by themselves.

Child center staff is now designing a new playground using an $8,000 grant from the Fleischmann Foundation.

Mrs. Holland named to college nursing post

Ruth Holland, R.N., is the new nursing program coordinator at Northern Nevada Community College.

She replaces Georgeanna Smith, R.N., moved with her husband to Utah.

Mrs. Holland, who lives in Spring Creek, moved to the area from Salt Lake City, where she had worked as a public health nurse and as a psychiatric nurse.

She received her basic nursing training at the University of Cincinnati in Ohio, and her master's degree at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City.

As nursing program director, Mrs. Holland will not only be responsible for coordinating the nursing program at the college, but she will also be doing most of the teaching of registered nurse classes.

She explained the program at the college consists of Licensed Practical Nurse classes at both Elko and Ely, and RN classes at the Elko campus only. Nurses aide classes are also part of the program.

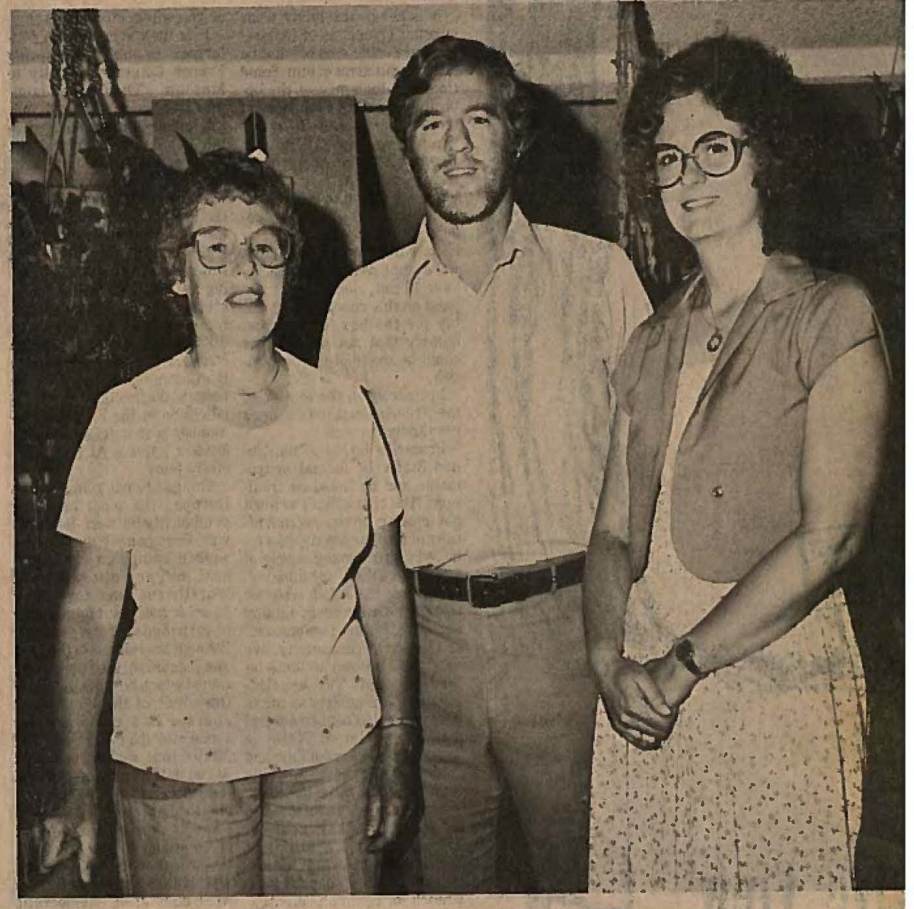

Mrs. Holland expressed that she was attracted to NNCC by the "career ladder system" at NNCC, which is unique to Elko.

"Upon completing the one-year LPN program, the students can choose if they want to continue training, and complete the RN program, or take their state board examination to become an LPN," she explained.

Other schools in Nevada require the student to enroll in either the LPN or a longer RN program before taking their state board examination," she added.

Summer graduation for practical nursing students will be held on July 17. Nine nurses will be graduating in the NNCC Library at 7 p.m. The ceremony will be followed by a reception in the student lounge.

Heat on the Hospital Board

April 22, 1981

There was a very heated meeting of the Board of Trustees for Elko General Hospital in their regularly scheduled monthly session on Tuesday, April 21st.

The reason for the tension revolved around a contract currently up for bids. This contract involves the staffing of the Emergency Room with qualified physician's services from 5:00 p.m. Friday to 7:00 a.m. Monday and on holidays.

This post has been primarily held by Dr. Rick Martin, from a Salt Lake City physician's group.

Since Dr. Rick Martin has taken over at Elko General, the number of patients treated in the Emergency Room has risen dramatically from an average of 11 per weekend to an average of 4800 patients per year.

All areas of the local medical services groups have highly praised the quality and professionalism of Dr. Martin.

His most loyal fans are the Emergency Medical Technicians, a largely volunteer local group who staff the local ambulances, and are often first on the scene of accidents. The E.M.T.s reported that Dr. Rick Martin has donated hours of his time, throughout the years he has been in Elko, to training them on emergency medical procedures. They claim that, without his instruction, many lives would have been lost.

Now the Emergency Room contract is up for negotiation, and Dr. Rick Martin's bid, based on actual experience from this hospital, is almost $30,000 higher than the other leading contender, a group called Spectrum, whose intermountain headquarters is in Colorado Springs.

Spectrum claims to be able to provide the same type and quality of care based on an hourly rate of $28 per hour. Dr. Rick Martin's fees are based on receiving 80% of the money generated by Emergency Room billings.

It was pointed out that Dr. Martin may generate more income for the hospital because he is so well thought of in the community and that the $30,000 is actually a conceptual figure rather than an actual financial gain or loss to Hospital.

It was also pointed out that intangible amounts of money may be saved, due to his excellent training of the EMTs, and that their confidence and morale could be a serious, and perhaps life-saving factor.

Dr. Martin seemed unwilling to lower his bid, despite continual promptings to do so by the Hospital Board members, and stated that he was "dijsgusted" by the constant pressure to lower his rates or eliminate some billed expenditures, such as travel time and malpractice insurance, which he has already agreed not to charge for.

He said that he believes that he is charging a fair amount for the service he provides.

Dr. Hogle, a representative from the Elko Clinic, announced that the Clinic was withdraw-

April 22, 1981

A special meeting between Dr. Martin and the Hospital Board has been called for 4:00 p.m. on Friday, April 24th, at which time the board will announce its decision.

Dr. Martin agreed to take the full scope of the contract into consideration in the meantime, and weigh the suggested options of lowering his fees, following a posted fee schedule, or lowering his percentage to reflect Emergency Room charges which cannot be collected.

Bill Welch, Hospital Administrative Director, noted that the Hospital Board is required to act fiscally responsible, and if comparable quality is available for $30,000 less in annual expenditures, it must be seriously considered.

In other business, the Hospital Board:

1. Donated the old cardiac monitor machine to the nursing program at N.N.C.C., provided that it can be used for a back-up if necessary.

2. Heard a report that too many and too frequent visitors may be causing difficulties in non-private rooms.

3. Approved the action of the special committee to work with the LPN's in negotiations.

4. Received a letter from the state medical screening panel that the Hospital has no direct liability in the Dale Perry malpractice suit.

5. Agreed to change the wording in a memo to Emergency Room staff which would instruct all personnel to advise incoming patients of their right to contact their own personal physician before summoning the on-call doctor.

ing its bid to provide Emergency Room services.

Governor backs student nurses in drug dispute

Special to the Journal

ELKO — Gov. Robert List stepped into a student nurse controversy last week, urging the state pharmacy board allow the students to administer medication.

List met with the board's chairman, attorney, executive secretary and Attorney General Richard Bryan. He said the pharmacy board requested the meeting to get advice from the governor.

"I told them without any question whatsoever the pharmacy board should take steps to have student nurses authorized to administer medication," List said after the meeting.

Nursing education programs throughout the state were jeopardized by a pharmacy board decision that student nurses could no longer administer drugs, according to Georgeanna Smith, director of the nursing program at Northern Nevada Community College here.

Mrs. Smith noted student nurses must administer medication to be eligible to take their state licensing tests.

The problem surfaced during a state licensing inspection of Elko General Hospital. Inspectors told administrator Bill Welch the hospital could not use student nurses to administer drugs because of a pharmacy board action. Welch asked the pharmacy board for administrative relief but was denied.

Pharmacy board Executive Director Bob Tucker said the board was concerned it did not have the legal authority to allow student nurses to administer medication, although he said students have been administering drugs under supervision of instructors for 30 years.

List said he expects a formal opinion from Bryan this week. He said he is confident it will allow student nurses to administer medication.

"I feel very strongly we cannot effectively have a training program for nurses unless they are given an opportunity to give shots and handle drugs," List said.

The training period is when nurses learn "in a technical sense and integrity is tested. They learn how they respond under stress, and the time to do that is when they're under supervision," he said.

List also said use of student nurses helps hold down hospital costs. He noted there is a shortage of nurses.

Michael Joyce employs Feldenkrais methods with his wife, the former Marcia Stenovich of Elko.

Feldenkrais workshop for nurses at NNCC

A two-day workshop for nurses, Therapeutic Movement — Feldenkrais for Nurses, will be presented Feb. 21-22 at Northern Nevada Community College.

Instructors will be Michael C. Joyce, a member of the Feldenkrais Guild who is in private practice in California and Nevada, and Linda Bark, R.N., who has extensive psychiatric and clinical nursing experience.

Joyce is married to the former Marcia Stenovich of Elko. The couple resides in Dutch Flat, Calif.

The session is sponsored by the Professional Education Resource Services of Nevada (PERSON), and a spokesman said the workshop will be a first for Nevada.

"This will be first time in Nevada this proven technique will be taught by two professionals," said Ethelda Thalen, R.N. "A registered nurse and a Feldenkrais teacher will be able to integrate these lessons with the nursing process to the benefit of the patient."

She noted an article in the current edition of Smithsonian magazine explains the Feldenkrais method as using the conscious brain to instruct the body to move in ways that will in turn instruct the brain to permit the body to function at a level much closer to its full potential.

"What (Feldenkrais) does," reads the article in part, "is apply principals and exercises that help the body program the brain so that the whole mind-body system benefits."

Mrs. Thelan said the workshop will be a "good opportunity to discover how to use movement development techniques to reorganize neuromuscular patterns for greater ease, comfort and range of motion in nursing care."

The Elko-session has been approved for 15 contact hours of continuing education credit for nurses by the Nevada State Board of Nursing, the California Board of Registered Nursing, and the Nevada Nurses' Association Committee on Continuing Education Approval and Recognition Program.

Six-hour sessions will be held on both Feb. 21 and 22 with a three-hour follow-up session in March.

The fee is $125, and applications are available by writing PERSON, P.O. Box 3332, Reno 89505.

Applications ready now for nurses

EMKO DAILY FREE PRESS Apr. 4, 1981

Applications are now being accepted for the 1981-82 practical nursing and registered nursing programs at Northern Nevada Community College.

The practical nursing program is in 11-month course classes. Registered nursing is a two-year program.

The course sequence is built on the career ladder concept which considers the practical nursing course the first year and the registered nursing course the second year said Georgeanna Smith, RN, program coordinator.

Upon completion of the two years, students graduate with an associate in applied science degree in nursing.

Application deadline is May 1. Student selection will be completed by mid-June. Course work for those students selected for either program begins with the fall semester in September.

For application forms or information about either nursing program, persons can contact the student services office at NNCC or from Mrs. Smith.

Practical nursing course offered-Ely <sup>Ely Record June 6-81</sup>

Applications are now available for the 1981-82 Practical Nursing Course to be taught in Ely. The accredited 11-month course is again being offered through Northern Nevada Community College. The necessary funding will be provided jointly through the University System and the State Department of Vocational Education.

In addition to nursing courses, students are required to complete English 101, Psychology 101, Biology 223 and 224, Human Nutrition 121, and Child Development 102. Upon graduation in July 1982, a Certificate of Achievement is awarded and the students are then eligible to write the State Board Examination for licensure.

Twelve students will be selected. Application deadline is July 1. Applications can be obtained from the NNCC Ely Coordinator, Sharon Fraser, at 962 High Street, or the White Pine County Library.

Selection of students will be completed in mid-July and classes will begin Aug. 31. Approximate cost of the program is $900. This includes tuition, textbooks, uniforms, and supplies for the year.

Completed applications, along with letters of recommendation, and transcripts are to be mailed to the Nursing Program Coordinator, Northern Nevada Community College, 901 Elm Street, Elko, Nev. 89601.

Grads Pass Exams

by Terry Hickson
Hospital Publicist

All graduates of the registered nursing program class of 1979-80 at Northern Nevada Community College have received notification they passed state board examinations.

The class includes nine women and one man. Six of the class are employed at Elko General Hospital. They are: Vonnetta Nelson, Vonna Bajoneta, Karen Mowrey, Marjorie Mariluch, Carol Turney and Terry Armstrong. Armstrong, the male graduate, is employed in the respiratory therapy department. The others work in various units including pediatrics, obstetrics, intensive care and the emergency room.

Others receiving certification include Wilhelmina (Willie) Abeleman, Kitty McDonald, Rosemary Poljack and Marilyn McCrae.

Instructor and director of the nursing program is Georgeanna Smith, R.N.

Students in both the RN and LPN programs take a large part of their training in the hospital under on-the-job training situations. They also work in other health care fields in the community.

Roberta Morgan, new director of nursing at the hospital, praised the graduates and spoke warmly of their contributions to nursing care at the local facility. Most of them have worked there part time during their course of study.

NNCC nurse graduates now licensed LPNs

All of the 1980 practical nursing graduates of Northern Nevada Community College have become licensed practical nurses.

Patti Crookham, instructor at NNCC, said the graduates took the state board exams last October and the results were received recently indicating that all had passed and had been awarded licenses to practice nursing.

The new LPNs are Susan Clemons, Andrea Christensen, Christy Cothrun, Sharon Davis, Betty Derro, Pearl Mawson, Richard McClure and Kaye Quist.

Six have been employed by Elko General Hospital, one by Ruby Mountains Manor, and one is currently living in Arizona.

The practical nursing program is one year in length, and all of the training is provided at the college and at various health agencies in Elko. Information concerning the nursing programs at NNCC is available from Georgeanna Smith or Patti Crookham at 730-4491.

Attorney general's opinion supports Elko student nurses

Nevada Attorney General Richard Bryan ruled today in Carson City that the state board of pharmacy does have the authority to allow nursing students to administer controlled substances under the direction of a licensed physician and the supervision of a registered professional nurse.

The state nursing and pharmacy boards had requested the opinion from the attorney general when a question arose during a licensing inspection of Elko General Hospital by other state agents. Inspectors from the state bureau of health facilities said student nurses could no longer administer medication because student nurses were not specifically mentioned in the Nevada law listing who may dispense medication.

But Bryan said the pharmacy board can promulgate regulations approving persons to administer controlled substances and dangerous drugs. "If student nurses were unable to administer medication under the direction of a physician or registered nurse it would be impossible for them to complete their training and the citizens of Nevada would lose the benefit of a vital part of the health care chain," the attorney general commented.

After Bryan announced his ruling today, Bob Tucker, executive director of the pharmacy board, said in a telephone interview the board would consider a proposed regulation along the lines described by Bryan during a meeting Sept. 25 in Las Vegas.

Tucker said he does not anticipate any problem with adoption of the new regulation by the pharmacy board; and he anticipated the new rule would be in effect about 30 days after expected approval at the Sept. 25 meeting.

In the meantime, Tucker declared, he believes student nurses can continue to administer drugs under appropriate supervision — just as they have been doing for years.

Bryan noted in his opinion that for the last 30 years Nevada student nurses have administered medication under the direction of physicians and registered nurses.

"Such a regulation is consistent with legislative intent and with historic precedent in Nevada. The student nurses perform a valuable service to the medical profession," Bryan concluded.

Pharmacy board ruling on student nurses questioned

Special to the Journal

ELKO — Three organizations have asked the state attorney general to review a pharmacy board action which they say jeopardizes nursing education programs at Northern Nevada Community College and other nursing programs in the state.

Elko General Hospital Administrator Bill Welch said the state nursing board ruled student nurses were not among those who could legally dispense medication. That ruling was first enforced when state agents conducted a re-licensing investigation at the Elko hospital.

Welch said the Nevada Nurses' Association and the Nevada Hospital Association are questioning the action.

Georgeanna Smith, nursing coordinator at Northern Nevada Community College, said the ruling jeopardizes the nursing program. Ruth Ann Purhonen of Elko, a member of the state nursing board, said nursing students must administer medication — under direct supervision — to qualify for their state licensing tests.

They said the ruling immediately affects Elko and will apply to other hospitals in re-licensing re-views.

Hospital trustees veto staffing move

By DICK SNYDER
 Special to the Journal

ELKO — Trustees of Elko General Hospital have rejected a bid by the city's physicians for round-the-clock staffing of the hospital's emergency room.

The hospital already contracts with a Utah physicians group for emergency room coverage from 5 p.m. Fridays to 5 p.m. Sundays, but its medical staff and Elko doctors wanted the facility to contract for weeknights, also. Currently, the city's local doctors are on call for weeknight emergencies.

However, several private physicians have given the hospital a Nov. 1 "deadline" for contracting for weeknight coverage, also hinting they will not cover the emergency room after that date.

At a recent meeting with county commissioners, Dr. Roger Seyferth complained local doctors were tired of "donating" their time to the hospital. He said they are frequently called to the emergency room in the middle of the night for problems as minor as sunburns.

Dr. Cal Lewis said some local doctors are getting too old to respond to night calls and carry on their practice during the day.

At last week's hospital board meeting, Seyferth said local doctors would be willing to be on call for emergency room cases if they were compensated. He said the doctors have set a Nov. 1 deadline for the hospital to respond to their request.

However, Hospital Administrator Bill Welch said the Nov. 1 deadline was set by Seyferth — not the medical staff — and doctors would lose their staff privileges if they refused to help cover the emergency room.

Hospital Board Chairman Tony Primeaux said physicians have an obligation to the hospital to staff the emergency room.

Board member Stan Aiazzi agreed. "In a sense we subsidize the doctors," he said. "The community provides this hospital — the nurses and staff, the equipment, the heat, the lights. There is no overhead for them. They need us, and we need them. We can't live without each other."

Welch said to contract for the additional coverage would cost the county hospital $31,408 annually. He said there is little use of the emergency room.

Asked if doctors would continue to cover the emergency room, Dr. John Read replied he was speaking only for himself and not the medical staff but, "I think they (the doctors) don't want to continue." Read said he thought a figure of $25 hourly for being on call "was not that bad, even though it's not as good as the lawyers make. It's certainly better than nothing, which is what we're getting now."

Hospital Trustee Gibbs, who also is a county commissioner, asked Welch what would happen to doctors who did not take emergency room duty.

Welch replied that medical staff must take emergency room calls or lose staff privileges. He said the doctors may either take the calls themselves or find someone else to cover them.

Trustee David Emerson was the only board member to vote against the motion to maintain the status quo. He said he favored extended emergency room coverage.

"You'd better sharpen your pencil then, Dave," said Aiazzi. "It would cost $200 for each emergency room visit if you go that route."

Aiazzi moved to maintain the present coverage and Marion Sorensen seconded the motion.

Three EHS seniors get NNCC scholarships

Three Elko High School seniors have been awarded scholarships from the Northern Nevada Community College Scholarship and Awards Committee, according to NNCC spokesman Terry Cataline.

Cataline, who acts as scholarship officer at NNCC, recently presented Elkoans Sherry Roysden, Debbie Wright and Mike Roche with scholarships.

Miss Roysden, 18, received $200 from the Elko Knights of Pythias Endowment, according to Cataline. The young woman has not yet declared a major.

Miss Wright, also 18, will use her $100 award from the University System Board of Regents to begin her study of nursing at NNCC, she says.

Mike Roche, 18, also received $100 from the Board of Regents; the money will be used to further his education in the field of art, he says.

Cataline said the scholarships are a means of rewarding outstanding high school seniors who make an early decision to attend NNCC for the coming school year.

"All three of these Elko High School seniors have distinguished themselves with high grade point averages and membership in community and youth activities," Cataline stated.

"We are very pleased to have them begin their college educations at NNCC," he said.

Information about financial aid programs and applications for other NNCC scholarship awards can be obtained from the Financial Aid and Student Services Office at the community college, according to Cataline.

He encouraged students interested in applying for scholarships or other forms of financial aid to visit the college by April 20.

Elko AAUW scholarship marks club's anniversary

Elko branch of the American Association of University Women announces the offering of a new scholarship as it observes the 100th anniversary of the national organization.

The new $500 AAUW Continuation Scholarship will be awarded to a Northern Nevada Community College female student who has completed at least 30 credit hours at NNCC since 1970.

Purpose of the new award is to assist the chosen student in the completion of a baccalaureate degree at a four-year college or university and must be used at that institution.

Elko AAUW will also award the annual Mildred McBride Scholarship to a Senior girl who plans to attend a four-year institution in pursuit of a baccalaureate degree. The McBride scholarship was established in 1966 through a gift from Mrs. McBride, a charter member of the local AAUW chapter. Some of the past recipients include Sheila Crapo, Laura Paoli, Anne Wallace McMullen, Jennifer McPhee, Rachel Harris, and Christine Vlamis.

Both scholarships will be awarded on the basis of academic excellence and financial need.

Applications forms for the McBride scholarship may be obtained from Darwin Hunt of the Elko Senior High School Guidance Department. Applications for the AAUW Continuation Scholarship can be obtained through Terry Cataline, extension 200, at NNCC.

Fleischmann Foundation dissolved in court action

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — One of the nation's biggest foundations went out of business Wednesday after giving away $192 million in line with wishes of its founder, gin and yeast magnate Max C. Fleischmann.

"You're all fired," joked District Court Judge Frank Gregory in issuing the final order dissolving the trust set up following "Major" Fleischmann's death in 1951.

Gregory, who has overseen the trust for the past 28 years, added to trustees Thomas Little, Julius Bergen and Fran Breen that "we've grown old and white-haired in the service of the foundation."

Over the life of the foundation, 1,962 grants were given to individuals and organizations — the smallest for $250 and the largest for $19 million — to the University of Nevada.

Bergen noted that in trying to reflect

Fleischmann's personal philanthropy, the trustees gave $39.7 million for education, $33.7 million for medical programs and $18.8 million for medical facilities, $28 million for youth programs, $18.5 million for conservation and environmental projects and $13.6 million for law.

Judge Gregory praised the trustees for their handling of the foundation, and ruled that they had "fully and completely" carried out their responsibilities. Not present for the session were trustees Walter Orr Roberts and Sessions Wheeler.

Under terms of Fleischmann's will, the money had to be disbursed by July 4, 1980. That marked the 20th anniversary of his widow Sarah's death. The couple had no children.

The foundation gave away nearly half of all its grants — $95.8 million worth — in the last year of its existence.

Publicity over the giant private giveaway, from what at one point was the 13th largest foundation in the nation, produced many more requests for grants. Even now, with all the money gone, requests are still coming in, Little said.

Fleischmann maintained a home at Glenbrook, on the Nevada side of Lake Tahoe. He also had a ranch in Santa Barbara, Calif., and a plantation in North Carolina.

Fleischmann, who inherited a gin and yeast fortune called Standard Brands from his father, was known as "Major" as a result of service in the balloon corps in World War I in Europe. He actually held the higher rank of lieutenant colonel, but Breen said "it sounded like an honorary Kentucky colonel. So everyone called him major."

NNCC Offers Financial Aid

By NNCC

As the fall semester approaches, many may be thinking of attending NNCC to learn skills or to earn a college degree. But one thing stands in their way — money. In this kind of situation, don't despair; there is a way around the money problem.

NNCC has a financial aid program that may be able to help, as it has hundreds of full and part time students in the past. And don't assume that the family's income must be below poverty level in order to qualify. Students from families with incomes up to $25,000 per year have the possibility of qualifying for a Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG) of at least $200 for the school year. With a half hour of free time and a 15 cent stamp, students can find out if they qualify.

In addition to BEOG, NNCC offers seven other types of financial aid. There are loan programs that offer loans for as little as 3 percent interest to students who qualify. Part time jobs are also available to qualifying students.

This school year, more than six million dollars in financial aid will be available to Nevada college students.

The deadline for applying for a BEOG is March 16, 1981; but students are urged to apply as soon as possible. The sooner they apply, the sooner they may receive financial aid.

Those who served in the military on active duty for more than six months, and were discharged less than ten years ago, can use the education benefits provided by the Veteran's Administration on the G. I. Bill. These benefits range from $311 to $422 or more per month, depending on the number of dependents claimed and the number of classes in which the student is enrolled.

So, if your budget keeps telling you that you can't afford college, don't stop there. Contact the Financial Aid Veterans Office at NNCC and find out for what benefits you may qualify.

Monthly benefits raised for veterans at NNCC

Northern Nevada Community College has recently raised its monthly allotments to veterans attending the school under the GI Bill, according to Terry Cataline.

Cataline, NNCC counselor and veteran's advisor, encouraged veterans interested in using their educational benefits at NNCC to contact him as soon as possible before spring registration, which will be held Jan. 14 to Jan. 16.

Cataline said a single veteran taking 12 or more credits per semester is now eligible for $342 dollars a month at NNCC. The monthly allotment for a married veteran, taking 12 or more credits a semester, with one child, is now $464. Part-time student benefits are also available.

NNCC offers programs transferable to any university in addition to vocational, skill-building and a wide variety of other interesting classes approved for Veterans Administration benefits, Cataline said.

Veterans who served more than six months on active duty and were discharged under honorable conditions are eligible for the benefits and in most cases are allowed 10 years from the date of separation from active duty to take advantage of the program, the counselor explained.

Cataline said veterans who served at least 18 months of active duty are eligible for 45 full-time months of schooling. Veterans who served between six and 18 months are eligible for reduced benefits he added.

Surviving spouses or children of deceased or 100 percent disabled veterans are also eligible for benefits.

At least 50 veterans in the Elko area are presently receiving benefits at NNCC, Cataline said.

NNCC plans test Friday

Northern Nevada Community College has announced that the next date for the Career Planning Profile test will be 8:30 a.m., Friday, April 24.

The CPP is an admission requirement for degree programs in nursing and business and should be taken prior to the completion of one full semester at NNCC.

The test fee is $5 and the exam is open to students in all programs. All inquiries should be directed to the NNCC student services office.

CPP test set Friday at NNCC

The Career Planning Profile test will be given at 8:30 a.m. Friday at Northern Nevada Community College.

The three-hour test will be given in the Voc-Tech Building and will cost $5.

The CPP is an admission requirement for the nursing and business programs and should be taken before or during a student's first semester at NNCC, according to the student services office.

Students in other programs are welcome to take the test to aid them in vocational placement. More information may be obtained by calling the NNCC student services office.

Deadline told for scholarships

April 20 is the deadline for applying for fall scholarships and financial aid programs at Northern Nevada Community College, according to counselor Terry Cataline.

Over 150 full and part time students received scholarships, grants, or loans last year. According to Cataline, many of them could not have completed their university transfer education or vocational training without this aid.

Financial assistance is awarded for a variety of reasons, said Cataline, including superior academic achievement, the encouragement of specific vocational transfer programs, and the creation of opportunities for students just out of high school and adults seeking additional vocational training.

"Students contacting NNCC about scholarships or financial aid by mid-April will have the best chance of obtaining aid for next fall," said Cataline, who coordinates these programs for NNCC.

Dewar art scholarships available to local students

A $40,000 endowment for art scholarships has been left jointly to the Northern Nevada Community College and the University of Nevada-Reno by the late Jessie Dewar, a former Elko County artist.

The money will be used to establish the Jessie Dewar Scholarship Fund which will be divided among the "most deserving" art students at NNCC and UNR, according to a press release.

Each scholarship is worth approximately $1,200 and will be distributed during a four-semester period.

art students are urged to apply for the scholarships which will be available beginning in the 1981 spring semester, said the release.

Applications are available at NNCC from the financial aid office, student services office or Sarah Campsey.

Applications for the first scholarship must be received by Jan. 12, 1981, in advance of NNCC registration.

In addition to the application, persons interested in receiving the scholarship are asked to provide a portfolio of at least three art works or photographs. A statement of the student's future plans in art also is required.

Anyone desiring more information is asked to direct questions to NNCC at 738-8493.

NNCC scholarships

The Scholarship and Awards Terry Cataline, "an impressive array of private scholarships donated by N.N.C.C. to successfully enable prospective full-time students to compete with much larger institutions for high ability, and 82 academic year (starting highly motivated students of September, 1981). Over the all ages. More and more past three years, according to students who used to go counselor-scholarship officer, directly to universities from high school are now stopping in at community colleges for 1-2 years before attending four year institutions," he stated.

Recognition of the growing preeminence of community colleges in lower division (freshmen and sophomore) college education was recently seen in UNR's master plan for the 1980's. According to the UNR Times, "UNR is becoming more attuned to upper division (junior-senior level) and graduate study." In addition to the lower cost of tuition and high quality instruction offered in Northern Nevada by N.N.C.C., the scholarships available should be considered by every high school senior and adult interested in college or vocational training.

Scholarships are available in a wide range of categories for 1981/82 including science/math, agriculture, law enforcement, accounting, art, nursing, and at least 25 for students in virtually any vocational or pre-university course of study. Awards range from $100 to $1200 for a school year.

"Scholarship applications received by March 1, 1981 will be given priority for early awards," stated Mr. Cataline. Applications and information about all types of financial aid are available at NNCC's Financial Aid of Student Services Offices, or may be requested by telephone at 738-8493.

NNCC scholarship program

Northern Nevada Community College agricultural department has formed a scholarship committee and hopes to offer 10 scholarships for $200 each by the fall semester of 1981.

Kathy Sarman, committee member, explained the scholarships would pay for approximately one half of the tuition of a student taking a normal credit load.

The scholarship committee is accepting donations of between $25 and $200. Mrs. Sarman explained people contributing more than $100 to the program will have their names placed on the scholarship.

People wishing to participate in the program can contact any of the committee members. Committee members and their phone numbers are: Louis Horton, 738-8493; Connie Satterthwaite, 738-7846; Les Sharp, 779-2264; Jim Connelley, 778-6644; and Kathy Sarman, 753-6330.

Among the agriculture classes offered at NNCC is a "hands on" program developed by Louis Horton, head of the agriculture department, which enables students to gain actual experience on the school farm and on area ranches.

Scholarships Offered Art Students At NNCC

The late Jessie Dewar, one of Elko County's best loved artists, left an endowment to Northern Nevada Community College and the University of Nevada at Reno in the form of a "Jessie Dewar Scholarship Fund".

Mrs. Dewar's natural talent became evident as early as the third grade. She studied art at the University of Nevada, and also at the Pratt Institute of Art in New York City. Her art work was and still is much in demand.

Mrs. Dewar wanted to be sure that deserving persons would be able to further his or her education in the field of art, so she left to the Board of Regents of the University of Nevada System $40,000 to be used to establish an endowment fund. Fifty percent of the revenue from the fund is to be given as a scholarship each year to the most deserving art student at the Northern Nevada Community College in Elko. The other 50+ is to be used for an art scholarship to the most deserving art student at the University of Nevada in Reno. Each scholarship is worth approximately $1,200 to be distributed over four consecutive semesters.

All interested students and prospective art students are urged to apply for the Dewar Scholarship. There will be one scholarship available for a one-year period beginning at the Spring, 1981 semester. Applications for the first Dewar Scholarship must be received by January 12, 1981, in advance of the NNCC registration on January 14-16. There will also be a Dewar Scholarship available for the 1980-81 school year; applications received before March 1, 1981 will be given first priority. In addition to the application, a portfolio or photograph of at least three art works are required and a statement of the student's intent concerning his/her future in art.

Applications are currently available from NNCC's Financial Aid Scholarship office, the Student services office or from Sarah Campsey, Chairman of the Art Department. Persons with questions concerning the scholarship can call Northern Nevada Community College at 738-8493.

Ag. Dept. Forms Committee

A scholarship committee has been formed by the Agricultural Department of the Northern Nevada Community College, to provide scholarships to Agricultural students by the fall semester of 1981. The committee hopes to provide ten $200 scholarships, an amount which would pay approximately half the tuition of a student carrying a normal credit load for one year.

The scholarship committee is accepting donations of $25 - $200 at this time, with the names of those donating $100 - $200 to be printed on the scholarship. Anyone interested may contact committee members: Louis Horton, NNCC, 738-8493; Connie Satterthwaite, Elko, 738-7846; Les Sharp, Ruby Valley, 779-8493; Jim Connelley, Mountain City, 778-6644; or Kathy Sarman, Lamolille, 753-6330.

NNCC gets energy grant for solar training program

Northern Nevada Community College has received a grant from the Nevada Department of Energy and the Western Solar Utilization network for the development of a portable solar energy training program.

As the result of a proposal written by Associate Dean Stan Aiazzi, NNCC will receive $10,000 towards the development of an educational program in the design, use, and cost of applying solar energy to domestic and small commercial hot water systems.

The aim of the project is to stimulate awareness of the availability of products used in domestic water systems and aid in the determination of the cost effectiveness of constructing new systems and converting old ones.

Another primary objective is the construction of a live domestic water system which will be mounted on a trailer in order to allow off-campus training demonstrations.

Chilton Engineering of Elko has agreed to loan the college the use of one of its trailers in support of the project.

Along with training seminars and live demonstrations, the project will also function as a distribution point for printed materials pertaining to solar energy. Included in these materials will be bibliographies for people who wish to do their own solar research.

Carl Diekhans will assist Aiazzi in the development of the solar project.

NNCC Students Seeking Aid Can Contact Iris Dahl

Northern Nevada Community College students seeking scholarships or financial aid for the Fall, 1981 semester, are encouraged to contact NNCC personnel by April 20. In Elko, the Financial Aid or Student Services Office (738-8493) can provide applications and information. In Wells, Nevada NNCC Coordinator Iris Dahl can be contacted at 752-3342.

Scholarships ranging from $100.00-$500.00 are awarded for a variety of reasons, according to NNCC Counselor Terry Cataline, including:

To reward superior academic achievement.

To encourage students to specific vocational or transfer programs.

To provide opportunities for students just out of high school or adults seeking training.

Additionally, NNCC administers the College Work Study Program, Basic Educational Opportunity Grants, B.I.A. Scholarships, three student loan programs and several others to serve student needs. Acceptance to one or more of these programs is based on the student's assets and ability to pay for college expenses. The Basic Grant application form is used by NNCC to make this determination.

Students of all ages planning to attend half-time (six credits or more) may apply for aid. All students must make satisfactory academic progress to remain eligible for these programs.

During the past year at least 150 full time and part time students received either scholarships or financial aid at NNCC. Many of them could not have completed their university-transfer education or vocational training without this aid.

"Students contacting NNCC about scholarships or financial aid by mid-April will have the best chance of obtaining aid for next Fall," stated Mr. Cataline, who coordinates these programs for NNCC.

New course slated at NNCC this fall

A new course to be offered by the Northern Nevada Community College this fall is a community health education course, entitled "The Activated Patient."

Primary goal of this course is to teach persons how to prevent illness and to attain and maintain optimal health.

Equally important, the course will teach how to cope with the physical and emotional aspects of chronic diseases.

Family members will be taught how to use health care resources more effectively.

Instructor will be Irene Little, R.N.B.S. A minimum of 12 students is needed in order to present the course. Interested persons should call Northern Nevada Community College, Winnemucca Center, at 623-3824.

UNR offers teachers two local courses

Two University of Nevada Reno courses designed for teachers will be offered in Elko this fall, according to a press release from UNR.

The courses deal with production of multi-media displays and development of science curriculum.

Teachers will learn how to develop displays for classroom use in "Advanced Media Design and Production," scheduled between Sept. 26 and Oct. 25. Classes will be from 7 to 10 p.m. on Fridays and from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays in the art room at Elko Junior High School.

Course instructor is Linda R. Loeffler, a consultant in media and design for Lassen Community College in Susanville, Calif.

She said participants will choose a topic to be used in the classroom and will design multi-media displays about the subject. Emphasis will be placed upon developing, producing and organizing the module to effectively communicate the topic to the students, according to press release.

The second class is called "Curriculum Development in Science" and will be offered between Sept. 19 and Nov. 15 in room 14 of the junior high school.

Instructor Kenneth Johns said the class covers content and procedures used for developing and improving science programs in the schools. He is director of laboratory experiences in UNR's college of education.

Each class is for three credits and costs $69. Registration information is available by calling Paul Billings at 738-5196 in

UNR offers real estate classes through UNITE

Real estate professionals can concentrate on real estate law or real estate exchanging in two seminars offered in Elko by the University of Nevada Reno.

The seminars, presented by UNR's Division of Continuing Education, are offered on the university's UNITE system which provides teleconferencing for business and education in 15 Nevada communities. In Elko, the classes will be held in the UNITE center located in the Elko Junior High School library.

Real Estate Law is offered from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. tomorrow. The seminar provides the broker or salesperson with current information on Nevada real estate law. Topics include malpractice and professional liability; property and emergency case law; agency relationships; the broker's responsibilities and contract problems. Faculty for the seminar are from the Reno law firm, Hale, Lane, Peek, Dennison and Howard, who specialize in real property practice.

Real Estate Exchanging is scheduled from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 22. The seminar will provide real estate licensees with current information; the reasons for and advantages of exchanging; financing and mortgage requirements; basic exchange techniques; the broker's responsibilities; tax consequences and handling problems. Seminar instructor is Robert Newson, a licensed real estate broker in California and Texas who specializes in real estate syndication and exchanges.

Both classes are administered by the Nevada Real Estate Division and are funded through its education, research and recovery fund. Participants receive .8 continuing education units and eight hours of Nevada Real Estate Division recertification credit.

Licensed Nevada real estate agents or brokers pay only a $10 deposit that will be refunded upon attending the class. Non-licensees pay $25, which is non-refundable. To register or for further information, call 784-4801.

American family in transition

Profound changes in family structures are the subject of the Courses by Newspaper fall program that explores "American Families in Transition." The credit or non-credit course at Northern Nevada Community College is offered in cooperation with The Free Press, publishing a 15-part series of articles written by outstanding scholars.

The program, coinciding with the implementation phase of the 1980 White House Conference on Families, examines the changing roles of men and women, working mothers, single parents, the role of the child, and other components of modern families.

Those who want to enroll in the course for credit or who want to participate on a non-credit basis, may register Aug. 27-29 at NNCC.

The program is coordinated by Dr. Elizabeth Douvan, Professor of Psychology and former Professor of the Program on Family and Sex Roles at the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research. The fall series is authored by noted scholars and writers who explain today's upheaval in traditional family patterns, analyze its causes, and project the future course of the American family.

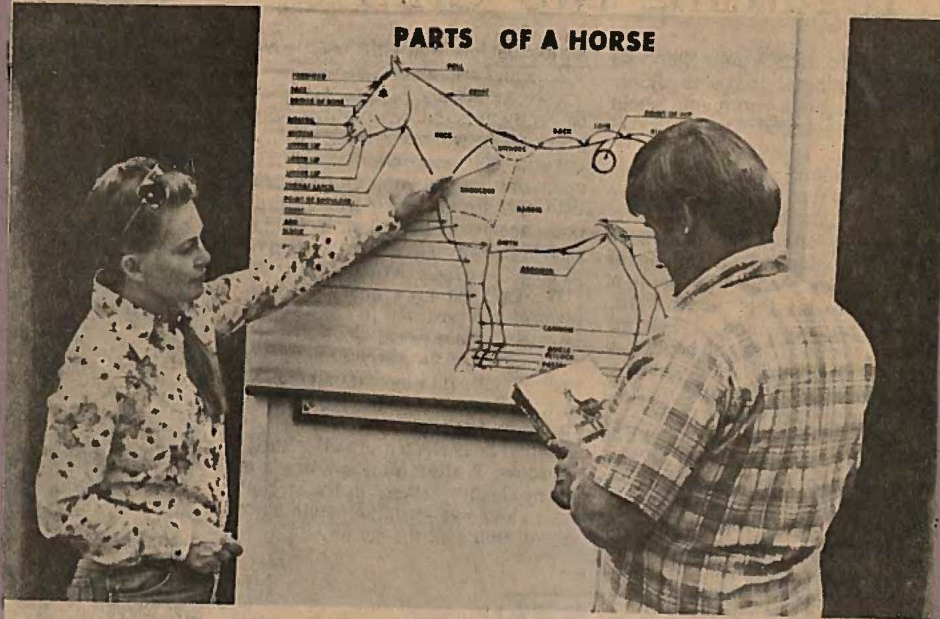

Among the authors are Phillip Slater, author of The Pursuit of Loneliness and former Professor of Sociology, Brandeis University; Kenneth Keniston, Andrew Mellon Professor of Human Development, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Lillian B. Rubin, Research Associate, Institute for the Study of Social Change, University of California, Berkeley; Robert S. Weiss, Professor of Sociology, University of Massachusetts, Boston, and Lecturer in Sociology, Harvard Medical School, Boston; Jesse Bernard, Research Scholar Honoris Causa, The Pennsylvania State University; Barbara Laslett, Associate Professor of Sociology, University of Southern California; and Natalie Zemon Davis, Professor of History, Princeton University.

For students and readers seeking additional perspectives on the series topics, Courses by Newspaper has prepared a package of educational materials that include a Reader Study Guide edited by Dr. Douvan and her associates.

Course materials can be purchased from the NNEC bookstore or by mail from Kendall/Hunt Publishing Company, 2400 Kerper Boulevard, Dubuque, Iowa 52001.

For additional information on the "American Families" course, contact Charles Greenhaw, Dean of Instruction, NNCC.

Combining the resources of the nation's newspapers, colleges and universities, Courses by Newspaper has been offered since 1973. The national educational program is a project of University Extension, University of California, San Diego. Courses by Newspaper is funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Chocolate lovers have been invited to learn how to create delicious desserts during a three-hour class Friday evening at the Northern Nevada Community College, according to spokeswoman Sarah Campsey.

Visiting cooking instructor Gisele Berube-Moritz has been teaching cooking arts throughout the week at NNCC.

The only class still open to the public is the Friday evening section in which the Frenchwoman will demonstrate how to make chocolate desserts such as mousse au vin blanc, strawberry galeau au chocolat, truffes au chocolat and chocolate covered cherries.

All interested students who wish to sign up for the 7 p.m. to 10 class must preregister by Thursday at 5 p.m., said Miss Berube-Moritz. The class is being held in room 12 of the Learning Resources Building.

There is a $10 fee which can be paid at the college business office, she explained.

Miss Berube-Moritz recently learned how to make some of the desserts during an international cooking class entitled the Sweet-Tooth Olympics.

She has traveled to Elko for the past four years to offer her expertise to the public in the cooking field.

She is a resident of San Francisco.

NNCC offers cooking class next Friday

A special one-night workshop in French chocolates and desserts will be held next Friday at Northern Nevada Community College.

Gisele Berube-Moritz will instruct the workshop. She has just completed two courses in San Francisco, in Auchocholat and in French desserts.

She has studied cooking in Europe, Canada and the United States. For the past two years she has been teaching gourmet classes in a variety of international foods.

If enrollment is sufficient, she will offer the class from 7 to 10 p.m. next Friday for a cost of $10.

Pre-enrollment at the NNCC business office is necessary by Friday in order to obtain supplies for the class.

NNCC offers opportunity in auto, mechanic classes

Several new classes and opportunities exist in automotive and mechanic classes at Northern Nevada Community College, according to Gary Hertel, instructor.

Hertel noted the college now has a Hunter alignment service system and an Ammco brake system.

The said the alignment system will allow teaching of alignment and suspension courses as well as wheel balancing.

The Ammco device will allow full brake remanufacturing.

He said both devices are the most commonly used equipment in the field. The alignment device is mechanical, but can easily be adapted to an electrical system to allow students to learn both methods of alignment, he added.

Classes offered next semester will be aimed both at the advanced mechanic or for the novice.

Block classes will be offered in engine rebuilding, air conditioning systems and power train and suspension.

Evening classes will include Ford and Chrysler transmissions and engine rebuilding.

Another night class will be called "Everybody's Automotive," and will include instruction on basic electric system, tuneup, cooling and air conditioning, brake systems, and chassis and suspension.

He said the class will include some theory and practical application and will allow novice mechanics to at least know what is happening to their car when they take it to an auto shop.

All other courses are designed for advanced mechanics, he said.

Another new course next semester will be industrial and agricultural maintenance, which will be taught one night a week for 15 weeks.

Basic maintenance of diesel engines will be taught, as will maintenance of an automobile, small engines and pneumatic and hydraulic systems.

"This course will be very helpful to those in the mining industry, the construction trades and for ranchers," said Hertel.

"A maintenance program will help people save money by keeping equipment running," he added.

Beginning and advanced welding will also be taught at the college next semester, teaching both tig and mig welding, said Hertel.

He said most classes are designed for between 12 and 15 students, and he hopes the newly redeveloped NNCC program will prove popular with students.

Hertel is a graduate of the University of Nebraska, and has been employed previously as an auto mechanic, construction mechanic and shop foremen and as a high school instructor.

He has also owned his own auto repair shop and construction repair service.

He is in his first year at the college.

Anyone wishing more information about the program can call Hertel at the college. 738-8493.

Plant course offered at community college

A course in plant care is among the wide offerings of fall semester classes at Northern Nevada Community College.

Registration for the course and all other offerings will be held from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. tomorrow at the NNCC library, and again from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Thursday and Friday.

All students wishing to take university parallel, community service and other classes should register this week, according to Charles Greenhaw, dean of off-campus instruction.

Registration fee is $13 per semester credit hour, and new students must pay a one-time, non-refundable fee of $5. There is no fee for senior citizens, except that they must pay half the fee for community service classes.

Fees are payable at registration.

The plant care course is taught by Rosie Bowers and will cover subjects from indoor plant care to propagating trees and shrubs.

During the semester, students will be encouraged to bring cuttings from home, as well as older plants which need rejuvenating.

"This should give students a chance to practice on a wide variety of plant materials and to trade and enlarge their plant collection," said the instructor.

The class meets on Wednesday nights, and class time will be devoted to the project for the week. A short lecture dealing with the topic will begin each class, and time will be provided for questions and answers.

Automotive course offered at NNCC

Lamoille rancher Bill Mollison will teach a basic automotive course at Northern Nevada Community College during the spring alternate semester, according to NNCC spokesman Gary Hertel.

The evening class will be held in the NNCC Vocational-Technical Building from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday and Tuesday evenings.

Mollison said the course is designed to aid the average consumer, male or female, who possesses only a limited amount of knowledge and experience in vehicle repair.

The three-part course will consist of lectures, labs and demonstrations, according to Mollison.

Students who sign up for the class will be instructed on tune-up procedures, vehicle electrical systems, brake repair and heat and air conditioning, stated Mollison.

The purpose of the class is to teach people how to make common repairs using only basic tools, he said.

Prospective students will be encouraged to bring their own vehicles to class to work on, according to Mollison. The reason the class is being held on two consecutive evenings, he indicated, is so students can learn about and diagnose problems one evening, purchase parts the day before the Tuesday meeting and then make the repairs during the Tuesday class.

All tools and equipment to be used during the class will be provided, said Mollison. Cost of the three credit course is $39, he said.

Registration for the spring alternate classes will be held Feb. 26-27 on the college campus.

This is the first time Mollison has taught for NNCC, although he reports he has extensive experience in the automotive field and has taught classes before. He said he often makes repairs on his own vehicles and on his farm equipment at his Wild Meadows Ranch home.

Mollison is a graduate of California-Polytechnic School and possesses a bachelor's degree in chemistry.

He and his wife, Sue, have been in the local area for approximately five years. Prior to moving to Elko, Mollison worked as a consultant for the Hughes Corporation.

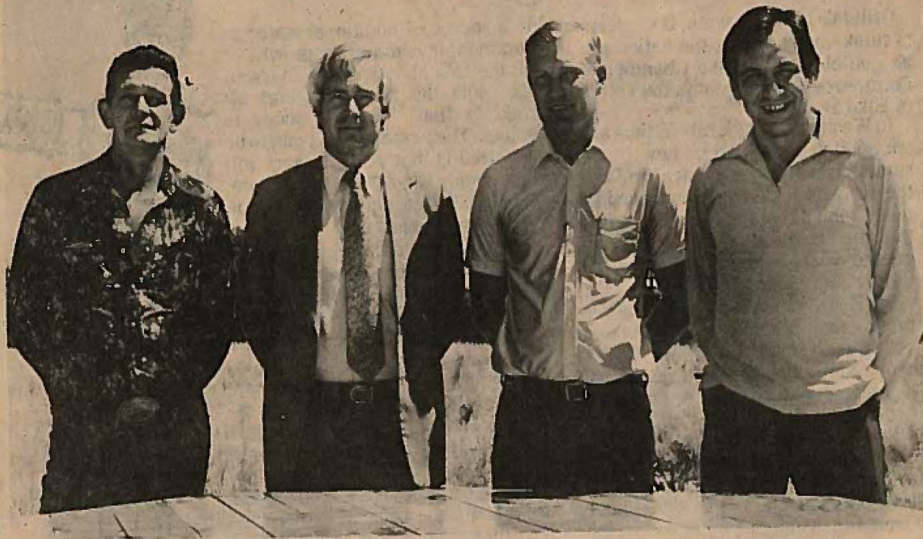

Local rancher Bill Mollison will be teaching a consumer automotive repair course Monday and Tuesday evenings during the spring alternate session at Northern Nevada Community College.

NNCC hires four new instructors

Four new instructors at the Northern Nevada Community College were introduced at the campus yesterday.

Bill Howard, 47, will be teaching diesel mechanics for the college in coming semesters.

He reported 30 years of experience in the mechanics field, 20 of those working as a diesel engineer. He was raised in Twin Falls.

He and his wife Maree have a nine-year-old son, Shane.

The business administration teacher recently hired is 36-year-old John Pryor, who is new to the teaching field. He previously owned a marketing business in Salt Lake City where he has lived the past six years.

Pryor stated he has a bachelor's degree from Williams College in Massachusetts and a master's degree from the Babson Institute in Boston.

Gary Hertel, 33, has been hired to head the automotive department and teach, he said.

He has previous teaching experience in a Nebraska high school and a bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Nevada Reno. He is currently pursuing a master's degree, he stated.

"I hope to build the automotive program at the college to the point where classes can be certified with UNR," he said. "The college has great potential."

Hertel said he is moving to Elko with his wife Jilliane.

The 36-year-old Carl Diekhans is another of the new instructors at NNCC. He will be teaching math, physics and computer science.

He has eight years of previous teaching experience at a community college in Ontario, Ore., where he taught the same subjects.

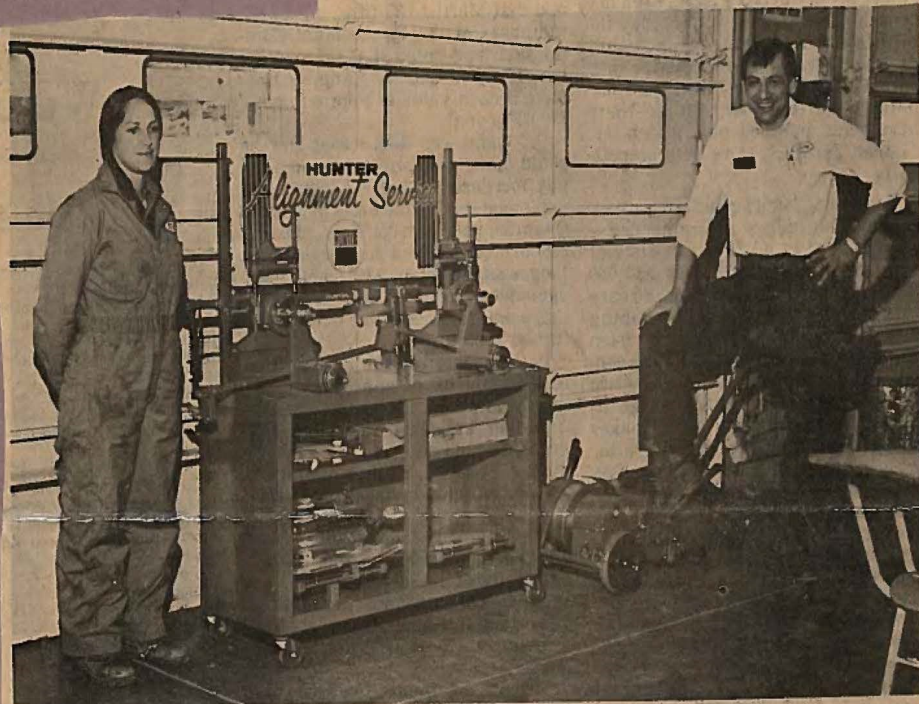

He said he had a bachelor's degree in math from the Great Falls College in Montana and a master's degree from Montana State University in Bozeman, Mont.

He and his wife Nadine have three girls, Bonnie, 14, Carline, 12, and Cheryl, 10.

Also returning to NNCC this fall will be English instructor Fred Pogo, who had taken a leave of absence last year.

NNCC slates workshop on local, family history

Northern Nevada Community College is sponsoring a day-long workshop Saturday for persons who want to learn how to preserve their family history and local history, according to spokeswoman Sarah Campsey.

The workshop runs from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and will be held in the Adult Basic Education Room at the Learning Resources Building on campus.

Elkoans Sarah Campsey, Shirlene Wiscombe, Dick Lane and Ellen and Tony Primeaux will lecture throughout the day on a variety of topics relating to the recording, researching and filming of history.

"Whether you are interested in collecting oral history from your family or community members; documenting this research with photographs; researching special topics from newspapers, diaries, photographs or manuscripts," said Mrs. Campsey, "this workshop will explain methods for such documentation."

Mrs. Campsey will open the workshop at 10 a.m. with a discussion of basic techniques used in interviewing and recording the spoken word.

She invited anyone who would be interested in learning how to interview subjects or anyone interested in transcribing from tapes to attend the workshop or to contact her.

The tapes will be stored at the Northeastern Nevada Museum, said Mrs. Campsey, if permission to do so is received.

Longtime area residents Tony and Ellen Primeaux will show workshop attendees how to research newspapers and other written documents beginning at 11 a.m.

The Primeauxs have several years of experience in this field, reported Mrs. Campsey. They have researched the Elko Daily Free Press, the Elko Independent, and the Weekly Post, from 1889 to 1898, she said.

Information concerning mining, community growth, church history and family history can be obtained from sources such as these, Mrs. Campsey stated.

At 1:30 p.m. Dick Lane, a researcher employed by the museum, will show how to photograph and preserve historical landmarks and materials.

Lane will also discuss types of films and how to use them, said Mrs. Campsey.

Shirlene Wiscombe will conduct the final session beginning at 3 p.m.

Mrs. Wiscombe will explain how to start a family genealogy and sources available for doing so, said Mrs. Campsey.

She reminded the public that the workshop is free.

NNCC schedules astrology seminar

A special seminar in humanistic astrology will be offered through Northern Nevada Community College in June by Robert Kimball, counselor, educator and author of Transpersonal Astrology.

Sarah Campsey of NNCC says Kimball does not deal with "Sun Sign" or newspaper astrology, but uses the natal chart of the individual to indicate potential interaction between the person and the environment.

The natal chart, she explains, depicts the major social, vocational, parental, emotional, and spiritual challenges that will confront a person. It also indicates the "tool" or abilities one is given to help deal with these conflicts or challenges.

Mrs. Campsey noted it is necessary to have a natal chart for the workshop. Those interested must contact Mrs. Campsey at the college at least two weeks before the workshop.

She added that registration for the NNCC class must be completed in the student services office May 18-20.

A free introductory lecture will be given at 8 p.m. on June 3 in room LR-20 at the college. From 7 to 10 p.m. on June 5 and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on June 6, Kimball will give a workshop, "Your Shadow Self," for $40.

The workshop is designed for individuals who are interested in becoming better acquainted with "hidden" or "projected" aspects of their nature, said Kimball.

He added "The Shadow is often the polar opposite of who we think we are. Often we can see a reflection of our shadow in the people we are drawn to or repelled by."

Kimball said astrology is an intellectual approach to self-discovery. "Most of us are familiar with the ancient proverb: 'While humanistic astrology can be an incredible tool for self-examination, it can also be used to ascertain the major conflicts, strengths, and unconscious expectations that develop in our personal relationships.'"

Kimball has studied and lectured throughout the country and in Europe. He recently completed a study in the Bhagwan Rajneesh Ashram in Poona, India. From there he traveled to Norway and Sweden to conduct several astrology workshops.

Just prior to his Elko workshop, he will be attending an advanced seminar in Switzerland on psychosynthesis and transpersonal astrology.

More information is available by contacting Mrs. Campsey at the college.

Walther to offer class at college on DMA

A special DMA seminar will be given by Tom Walther at Northern Nevada Community College next month, and registration is open now for a DMA class he will teach here in July.

DMA — the letters have no special significance — according to Walther is "for some the expansion and deepening of successes they already have. For many, DMA affects a shift from experiencing life as something that 'happens to you' to the ability to see life as a creative process."

"You are always at the center of the process and in a DMA class you can learn to use your natural abilities more effectively so that you can directly create those things you choose."

Walther continued, "The great appeal of DMA is that it works. The results are direct, immediate and lasting. It is a systematic development of abilities you already possess. Abilities last. Your ability to create effectively will not wear off in time. In fact, it tends to increase."

Walther is a native of Elko — the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Walther — and is a free-lance author, illustrator, and teacher. He is the author of two children's books and illustrator/designer of two other books.

He has taught with the Alvarado Arts Project, instructed sculpture at California College of Arts and Crafts, drawing at NNCC, and taught and consulted at the Exploratorium Science Museum in San Francisco.

He was certified to teach DMA in the summer of 1979.

Sarah Campsey of NNCC said DMA students "hold in common the willingness to reach for the highest in themselves."

Walther's free DMA lecture is scheduled for 8 p.m. on Thursday, June 25. The course will be given July 2, 9, 16, 23 and 30 from 7 to 10 p.m. In addition to the classes, participants will be working with exercises on tape cassettes for 35 minutes a day.

Those interested in taking the class can contact Mrs. Campsey at the college (phone 738-8493) or at home (738-5770).

New building for college

The Winnemucca branch of Northern Nevada Community College will finally have its own building, thanks to Wild West Enterprises.

The former Kaleidoscope Child Care Center on West Minor Street has been leased by Wild West from T.G. Sheppard for the use of the college, according to Wild West Chairman Bob Cashell.

The college offices, now located in the basement of the post office, will be moved to the new building late this month and will open there Aug. 3.

"As chairman of the Board of Regents I saw the need here and I didn't think they could get the funds from the state to to fulfill it," Cashell said this morning. "I thought it would be a fine gesture on he part of my company."

According to college pokesman Charles Greenhaw n Elko, the new building will provide room for a new, self-paced business education program.

NNCC registration starts tomorrow

Registration starts tomorrow for the spring semester at Northern Nevada Community College.

NNCC president Bill Berg said registration will be held from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. tomorrow in the college library for a wide variety of classes.

Registration will continue in the library from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

Charles Greenhaw, dean of instruction, said university equivalency courses are being offered as are many community service classes.

He said that whether students want to learn a new language, develop computer or automotive repair skills, or meet requirements to transfer to a university, the local community college has a class to meet the need.

Several courses to develop creative skills are also offered.

Terry Cataline, financial aids officer, noted many scholarships and grants are available, and information will be available during registration.

Greenhaw urged anyone interested to register for classes this week.

Berg calls registration 'very good'

Registration during the first two days has been described as "very good" by Northern Nevada Community College President Bill Berg.

Regular registration for spring semester classes concludes at 5 p.m. today, and Berg said about a half dozen classes are full.

Late registration for classes runs through next Friday, he added.

"It looks like enrollment will be as good as it ever has been," said Berg.

He explained the college catalog includes a variety of courses in such classifications as career management, university equivalent, community service, and physical education and recreation.

Students interested in developing artistic skills might be interested in calligraphy, weaving, silk screen, basketry, watercolor painting, drawing, sculpture, ceramics or tole painting.

Information about loans and grants for students is also available, he added.
