GBC graduates first Bachelor of Science in Nursing Students

Special to the Independent

ELKO — Nearly two years ago, a group of motivated registered nurses met for the first time as part of their orientation to Great Basin College's budding Bachelor of Science in Nursing Program. Four of those of students, who began the degree program in January, 2005, were awarded a Bachelors of Science in Nursing during a graduation ceremony held at Great Basin College on Saturday, Jan. 6. Peggy Drussel, Paula Green, Diana Stundze and Starla Ricks were the first to complete requirements for the one of GBC's innovative baccalaureate degree programs. Dorothy Gallagher, Regent for the Nevada System of Higher Education, spoke during the ceremony and oversaw the conferral of the degrees.

"Two years ago I described the first group of BSN students as pioneers" said BSN Program Director Dr. Margaret Puccinelli. "A pioneer after all is a person or group that originates or helps open up a new line of thought or activity. Clearly, these four individuals have helped open up and prepare a new path for others to follow. History has been made today as these individuals will be receiving the very first bachelor's degree in nursing offered by a community college in the Nevada System of Higher Education."

GBC's first BSN graduates stated; "When we applied to this program we were asked to identify both our personal and professional goals. Our responses centered on improving our abilities as nurses to care for our patients. As registered nurses from diverse backgrounds with different experiences, we were seeking the next step in understanding the care that we provide. By exploring and learning what motivated our actions as nurses, we have gained insight into ourselves, our co-workers and most importantly those we care for."

"GBC's Bachelor of Science in Nursing Program is a wonderful addition to our long-standing, highly successful Associate of Applied Science Degree in Nursing Program," according to Dr. Puccinelli. "Many of our associate degree nursing students have taken or are in the process of taking BSN required general education courses and several are already planning on beginning their upper division nursing coursework as soon as they graduate from the associate degree program and successfully pass the national licensing examination for registered nurses. We currently have 13 registered nurses in the process of completing BSN Program course requirements and they are doing this while they work full-time. We plan on graduating another individual this spring and possibly four this time next year. Most of our nursing courses and many of the non-nursing courses are offered via the web so this makes our program very achievable.

Registered nurses can even begin working on their bachelor's degree by taking two courses this upcoming spring semester in advance of program admission this fall."

GBC's Bachelor of Science in Nursing Program was recently surveyed by the National League for Nursing Accreditation Commission, Inc. and was recommended by the survey team for the maximum five year accreditation status. Information regarding the BSN Program as well as applications for admission can be obtained by contacting Margaret Puccinelli, PhD, RN at 753-2135.

GBC holds nurses' pinning ceremony

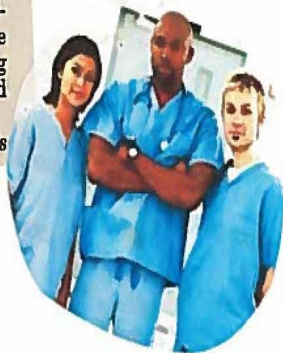

ELKO — Sixteen graduates participated in the nursing pinning Friday at Great Basin College. Nurse Organization and graduation speaker Mari Hunter.

The nurses pinning is an annual event at the college that leads up to graduation, which will be held Saturday morning.

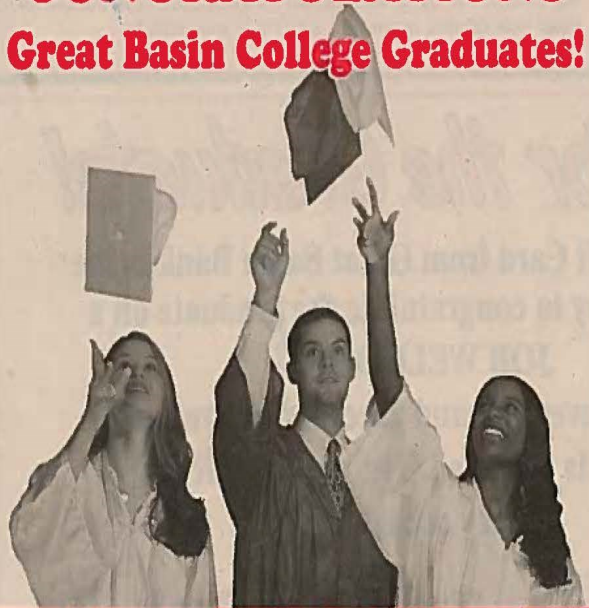

The college's director of nursing, Dr. Margaret Puccinelli, introduced the ceremony, which included speeches from Matthew Motten of the Student Nurse Organization and graduation speaker Mari Hunter. Students in the ceremony have completed all requirements for an associate of applied science degree in nursing. They are eligible to apply to a state board of nursing for consideration to take the National Council Licensing Examination for registered nurses.

Eleven students complete studies in Great Basin College/UNR program

ELKO — Students from Elko, Ely, Owyhee and Winnemucca this week celebrated their graduation and transformation from student to professional social worker at a pinning convocation at Great Basin College.

Students participating in Monday's ceremony were: Crystal Bastin, Sarah Goicoechea, Shannon Jacobs, Shirley King, Barbara Ludington, Lorraine Marshall, De Dee McKnight, Karen Meyers, Robin Panecaldo, Kimberly Rasmussen and Pam Sheets.

The students earned their bachelor's degrees by taking three years of coursework at Great Basin College, then completing their final year of studies through classes offered by UNR in their home towns.

Last fall, students in Carson City were also linked with the rural sites through interactive video technology.

In addition to UNR professors, local instructors Wendy Charlebois and Michelle Sandoval taught the social work courses while local agencies provided field placement opportunities and the necessary oversight for students to actually work in child and family services, welfare, foster care, school counseling and drug and alcohol counseling during their senior year.

Nevada faces a severe shortage of social workers in the coming years, and this program has successfully educated and graduated 19 social workers so far. Most of the graduates are already employed in their chosen field and a few have been admitted to graduate school to further their studies.

"Most of these students would not have been able to earn their bachelor's degrees at this time in their lives if the program had not been offered in rural locations," said UNR Assistant Director of Distance Education Angie de Braga.

"They have families, jobs, and other commitments which they cannot leave in order to attend university 250 or 300 miles away from home. It's great that the University of Nevada, Reno, and Great Basin College have collaborated to bring this program to the people who need it. It really benefits everyone."

Sisters graduate together today

ELKO — Sisters Carrie and Anna Rowley are three years apart in age, but will graduate together from Great Basin College today.

"It is a good ending to a great year," Carrie Rowley said.

The Rowleys have been active at GBC. Carrie, 24, is the president of the Student Government Association and Anna, 21, is the secretary. They said they didn't plan to graduate together, but are glad it has worked out that way. Post-graduation plans include a trip to Italy together from June 12-24.

It is Carrie Rowley's fourth college degree. She already has an associate of art, an associate of science and associate of general studies. Her newest degree is an associate of applied science in nursing, and she plans to go into the field.

She is currently working on a bachelor's degree through Washington State University.

Anna Rowley will receive her associate of general studies and associate of applied science and criminal justice degrees. She is undecided of what career path she will take.

Carrie Rowley said it is fitting that they would graduate together.

"We share pretty much everything," Carrie Rowley said. "Graduation is just one more thing to share."

ELKO — The Great Basin College Class of 2007 will step forward into the professional world with its graduation ceremony at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Elko Convention Center.

The college will issue 263 bachelors and associate degrees, including its first graduates from Nye County.

Dr. Paul Killpatrick, president of Great Basin College, will preside over the ceremony. U.S. Rep. Dean Heller, R-Nev., was chosen by the student body as the commencement speaker. Dale Porter will be honored as a Distinguished Nevadan by Dorothy Gallagher of the Nevada System of Higher Education Board of Regents.

Carrie Rowley, outgoing president of the Student Government Association, will address the class. Rowley will receive her associate of science degree in nursing. Regent Scholar Heather Steele of Spring Creek will be acknowledged as well.

Steele is working towards her bachelor's degree in secondary education, with a concentration in agriculture. She was honored by the Board of achievements and leadership.

The college will award 34 bachelor of arts, 22 bachelor of applied science, five bachelor of science nursing, 74 associate of arts, 15 associate of science, 19 associate of general studies, 81 associate of applied science, two post baccalaureate certificates in education, and 15 certificate awards. Five associate degrees will be awarded to students who will graduate from GBC's new campus in Nye County. The college began to deliver higher education programs to that region in July of last year.

An honorary bachelor of arts degree will be awarded to Mike Marfisi of Elko. Marfisi, an attorney, was one of 10 visionary businessmen who, in 1967, created what would become Great Basin College. Elko Community College, as it was originally called, was Nevada's first community college. It later became Northern Nevada Community College.

In 1995, the name was changed to Great Basin College to better reflect its mission in the college's service area, which now covers 62,000 square miles. Marfisi continues

Tickets required for GBC graduation

ELKO — Because of the large number of graduates at this year's Great Basin College commencement ceremony, only ticketed guests will be admitted to the theater in the Elko Convention Center.

Guests who do not have tickets will be seated in an overflow area at the convention center with live large-screen television coverage. Graduates who are planning to accept their diplomas at Saturday's ceremony have already been issued four tickets each to distribute to their guests. Students with unused tickets may share them with other graduates, if they so choose.

"It's just something we have to do because of the limited number of seats at the convention center," said Sue Alexander, admissions and records assistant at the college.

The graduation ceremony begins at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Elko Convention Center. The college will issue 263 bachelors and associate degrees this spring, including its first graduates from Nye County.

Dr. Paul Killpatrick, President of Great Basin College, will preside over the ceremony. U.S. Rep. Dean Heller, R-Nev., was chosen by the student body as the commencement speaker.

GBC names first distinguished alumni

ELKO — Jean M. Sloan, a graduate of Great Basin College, has been named the college's first Distinguished Alumni.

Sloan, the senior vice president and chief financial officer of Great Basin Bank, will be honored at the college's commencement ceremony Saturday.

"Jean exemplifies the commitment and accomplishment we would hope for all of our graduates," said GBC President Dr. Paul Killpatrick. "Her service to our community and to Great Basin College is admirable, and I am proud to be able to honor her in this way."

Sloan received her associate of applied science in business administration from GBC in 1989. In 1991 she graduated Cum Laude with her associate of science, and in 1993 her associate of arts.

After completing her studies at GBC she enrolled and graduated with a bachelor's degree from the University of Nevada, Reno, and later earned her master's in business administration. She also has a graduate degree in banking from Pacific Coast Banking School.

At Great Basin Bank she is responsible for financial operations and serves as the secretary to the board of Great Basin Financial Corp. Great Basin Bank has two offices in Elko, along with offices in Winnemucca and Fallon.

She has been active in the college community, having served as the office manager for Great Basin College Foundation and as a trustee on the foundation's board of trustees.

She presides over the Elko Sunrise Rotary Club and has volunteered with many other civic organizations.

"Mrs. Sloan is an example to us all," Killpatrick said. "The Great Basin College experience offers an individual many opportunities, and Jean seized on all that she could. We can all learn from her commitment and her enduring spirit."

Art teacher is ever the student

Well traveled Ben Parks to graduate with his third college degree

By JOHN SENTS
Free Press Staff Writer

ELKO — Tuscarora resident Ben Parks, 47, has followed what some refer to as a non-traditional career path. After graduating with a Bachelor's in Economics from Stanford University in 1982, Parks worked as a carpenter in Seattle. He graduated with a Master's in Fine Arts in 1990 from Claremont Graduate University in California and taught for a short time at the University of Nevada at Reno. Since then, he has worked as a potter, run the Tuscarora Summer Pottery School and taught beginning and intermediate pottery at Great Basin College.

Now, after four years as a part-time student at GBC, Parks is graduating today with an associate of applied science in nursing, and planning a career in the field.

"It feels like a real adventure," Parks said. "It does feel like pushing my own envelope. I'm doing something I really never thought I would."

Parks said there were many factors in his decision to study toward a third degree at GBC. He sought an outlet to help other people that he wasn't getting from art. Teaching at GBC made it convenient and affordable for Parks to take nursing classes there. Moreover, nursing was a more practical career financially for him than art.

"What attracted me to nursing is the idea of service to people and not just doing your own thing," Parks said.

As a final reason, he divorced his wife in 2003, and said he needed to get his mind focused on something else.

Parks said he expects nursing will leave him some time to continue his art. Nursing shifts sometimes run in 12-hour shifts three days a week.

"I don't feel I'm giving up art for nursing, I just think I will be integrating the two," Parks said. "I'll have the solitude and self time with art but then have the part where I am out there helping people too."

He said he will continue running the pottery school, although he may have to manage his time there differently.

In a few years, Parks said he may continue his nursing education and go on to become a psychiatric nurse practitioner. Because he already has a bachelor's degree, he said he could go on to be a practitioner without going through another bachelor's program.

"I'm going to kind of take it as it comes and see where it leads,"

Parks said.

While he is excited, he conceded that there are some practical things that will take time to get used to.

"I've spent so much of my life where I am the person that controls my time," Parks said. "Now I'm going to be working on someone else's schedule for most of my days. I'm a wage laborer for the first time in a long time."

He said the program at GBC has given him a great foundation. The training includes clinical rotations and a 90-hour preceptorship, where he worked with a nurse.

"I really did have a good experience where I felt like I was really helping people," Parks said. "That feels really good. Really rewarding."

Parks likes staying busy. He has a daughter and wants to stay in the community where he is rooted.

"It feels like a good, healthy stretch," Parks said of nursing.

ELKO — An estimated 1,200 people packed the Elko Convention Center's theater and an overflow area Saturday for Great Basin College's graduation ceremony, in which about 165 students received diplomas.

U.S. Rep. Dean Heller, R-Nev., was the commencement speaker, opening his speech with a moment of silence to remember Lance Cpl. Raul Bravo Jr., Sgt. Anthony J. Schober and other men and women killed while serving in the armed forces. He also recognized Crescent Valley resident TuesDay Henderson, who has spent more than 25 years trying to prove her birthright to her father, a pilot killed in Vietnam.

Heller told the graduates they are ahead of 75 percent of their peers because they have a degree.

"The other 25 percent, that is up to you," he said.

Heller said "learning is a lifelong endeavor" and encouraged the graduates to read from the best books, respect history, listen to their elders and be curious.

He also cited former Nevada governor, senator and writer Paul Laxalt, who once said "wrong is wrong, even if everyone is doing it, and right is right, even if no one is doing it."

Great Basin College Foundation Executive Director John Patrick Rice said Laxalt's daughter, Kevin Marie Laxalt, is a member of GBC's faculty and was very pleased to hear her father cited.

"It was a wonderful little serendipitous moment," Rice said.

GBC President Dr. Paul Killpatrick presided over the ceremony, telling graduates, "you are doing something that is making a difference."

As an analogy to achieving goals, Killpatrick said everyone has to "wrestle gorillas."

"You've succeeded. You've wrestled your gorillas and won,"

Killpatrick said. "But there are more gorillas out there."

He cited American journalist Dorothy Thompson, who once said, "Courage, it would seem, is nothing less than the power to overcome danger, misfortune, fear and injustice, while continuing to affirm inwardly that life with all its sorrows is good; that everything is meaningful even if in a sense beyond our understanding; and that there is always tomorrow."

Killpatrick added graduates should enjoy a sense of success, because they have earned it.

"I would like to add, you will always have tomorrow because you have earned today," he said.

Carrie Rowley, outgoing president of the Student Government Association, addressed the class.

Focus on women's clubs

ELKO — The History Lives series continues Tuesday with a group of representatives from rural women's clubs. The Great Basin College Library and the Northeastern Nevada Museum are co-sponsors.

Years ago every rural community in Elko County had a women's club and five of these still remain. These clubs will be represented in a panel discussion by Lou Basanez of Mountain City, Virginia King of Jiggs, Jane Stevens of Lamoille, Karen Winchell of Starr Valley and Val Wines of Ruby Valley. They will discuss the history of each of these clubs and talk about the current activities and membership.

The remainder of the History Lives programs will feature "Early Mining in Elko County" by Jim Muth April 3, "Mystery!" on April 17, "Carson City Mint" by Jim Nysten May 1 and "Murder They Wrote," by Tom Gallagher and friends May 15. Each program will held at the Northeastern Nevada Museum at 7 p.m. and admission is free.

Sweet success: Just Desserts fundraiser a delicious event

5-1-07

By Carol Petrie
Special to the Independent

ELKO — An abundance of sweet treats awaited attendees to the 19th annual Just Desserts fundraiser hosted by the Friends of the Library on Saturday, April 21.

In addition to the decadent desserts, the event boasted a large selection of fine wines, champagne and specialty coffees from around the world.

The ladies of the Bhakta family once again graciously provided a table of Indian delicacies and were on hand to serve desserts during the evening's festivities.

Participants listened to music provided by Deborah Foley and Kevin Darveaux from Blue Feather Music as they perused the more than 100 silent auction items on display.

According to Friends of the Library Interim President Carol Fertig, the wide variety of silent auction items were donated by local merchants and community members.

A dessert-a-month and two chocolate baskets were also donated by the members of the Friends of the Library, and not to be outdone, Dewey, the library cat, donated a basket of cat care items.

The event concluded with the much-awaited drawing of the $1,000 door prize, which went to lucky Spring Creek resident Stephanie La Palm.

The Friends of the Library plan to use the proceeds from the fundraiser to purchase a variety of library materials, including enlarging the library's current collection of Playaways.

"The evening's event was a wonderful success," said Fertig who added that the fundraising goal set by the group had been exceeded.

"We are so thankful for the generous donations and outstanding support of the community," she said. "We look forward to seeing everyone again next year at the 20th annual Just Desserts."

PAHRUMP

Reduced hours set at college

PVT

Services at Great Basin College will be reduced during the week between Christmas and New Year's Day, Dec. 26-29. During that time most college services will be unavailable. The college will be closed New Year's Day.

Online registration for spring 2007 courses will be available continuously during the reduction in services. Normal operations will resume Tuesday, Jan. 2. Most spring classes begin on Jan. 22.

Great Basin College is a member institution of the Nevada System of Higher Education and is accredited by the Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities. For over 35 years GBC has provided opportunities in higher education for central and northeast Nevadans.

GBC awards certificates of achievement, associate and select baccalaureate degrees using a variety of instructional methods.

GBC sets student fiscal aid session

PVT

Students squirming over applications for financial aid can find relief Jan. 28 at an informative seminar called College Goal Sunday.

The Great Basin College campuses (Elko, Ely, Pahrump and Winnemucca) will hold a seminar to help students complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) and to help advise them on ways they can afford college. Current college students and high school seniors are encouraged to attend.

The event begins at 2 p.m. in the High Tech Center on the Elko campus, the Ely Center on Bobcat Drive, the Pahrump Valley Center on Calvada Boulevard, and the Winnemucca Center on Kluncy Canyon Road.

"The FAFSA is a tough form to fill out," said Scott Nielsen, GBC's student financial services director. "We hope to lower the anxiety level."

The FAFSA is a mandatory step in securing financial aid, Nielsen said. The federal government uses the application to determine students' and their parents' expected contribution and how much money they are eligible to receive toward their education. Financial aid can come in the form of need-based grants and federally backed student loans.

Volunteers from the colleges' student services and academic affairs offices will be available to walk students and their parents through the forms. Lynn Mahlberg, GBC's vice president for student services, said the seminar will also connect students with the financial aid officers they'll be working with.

"It's a great opportunity for students and parents to meet financial aid officers and begin financial planning. It's a good example of the kind of service a Great Basin College can provide to the community," she said.

College Goal Sunday is based on a program established by the Lumina Foundation for Education, a private foundation based in Indianapolis. It has been successfully implemented in Indiana, Arizona and now Nevada to help improve access to higher education. The state of Nevada applied for and received a $170,000 grant from the Lumina Foundation to host College Goal Sundays for the next three years, always either right before or after the Super Bowl.

GBC's Mahlberg and Jeanne Rosenthal, GBC's grants coordinator, led the effort in Nevada. Mahlberg said students should apply for a personal identification number to fill out the FAFSA application online in advance by visiting www.pin.ed.gov, but students can also fill out a paper application at the sites.

If under 23, students should bring their parents along with a copy of their 2005 income tax information for both student and parents. Students 24 and older only need their own tax information.

Community service courses set at GBC

PVT
Great Basin College is offering some new non-credit community service classes in Pahrump.

The Pahrump Valley Center has added a new section of Beginning Ballroom Dance for couples from 5 to 7 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The course begins Feb. 13 and runs through March 8. Professional ballroom dance instructor Lynn Bankson will introduce participants to basic fundamentals of ballroom dance.

Participants will enjoy the fitness benefits of dance and feel confident on the dance floor at weddings or on a cruise ship or in a trendy club. Basic ballroom steps and turns will be covered.

The cost is $100 per couple. Call Lynn Bankson at 513-4333 for more information.

A Country Two-Step Basic Dance Workshop will be held Saturday, Feb. 10, from 2 to 3:30 p.m. in the Pahrump Valley Center.

Participants will learn the most popular dance in the country-western Bars. This easy step was made popular by the "Urban Cowboy." Learn the basics along with some fancy spins and turns from instructor Kim Sakren, an award-winning, certified ballroom dance instructor. The cost is $25 per person.

Sakren will also offer Cardio Latin Line-Dancing workshop on Saturday, Feb. 10, from 1 to 2 p.m. Students will get a great cardio workout while learning salsa, cha-cha, mambo and more.

"No complicated choreography — just good music, lots of fun and plenty of line dancing," Sakren promised. Cost is $25 per person for the one-hour workshop.

Advance registration is required for all workshops. Students can register on GBC's website at www.gbcnv.edu. More information is available from the Pahrump Valley Center on Calvada Boulevard, or by calling 727-2000.

Scholarship available at GBC

PVT
The Great Basin College financial aid office announced a USA Funds Access to Education Scholarship open to high-school seniors, currently enrolled college students or incoming college students.

Students must be planning to enroll or be enrolled in full- or half-time undergraduate full-time graduate- or professional-degree course work. College bound students with a GED are also eligible.

The application deadline is Feb. 15. To qualify, an applicant must have an annual adjusted gross family income of $35,000 or less, as documented on a 2006 federal 1040 income-tax return on which the applicant is claimed as a federal tax exemption. The scholarship award is open to U.S. citizens and eligible non-citizens.

For more information on this and other scholarship opportunities at Great Basin College, contact the office of student financial services in Pahrump at 775-727-2000.

GBC to hold social work program orientation

PVT

In recognition of National Social Worker Month, the Great Basin College/UNR 3+1 Bachelor of Social Work program will host an orientation March 14 from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. at locations throughout the college's service area.

Prospective students interested in working with children, families, the elderly, or in substance abuse intervention can find out more about the field of social work, degree requirements and how to get started in a rewarding career. Representatives from UNR and GBC will be available to answer questions.

GBC Bachelor of Social Work Program Director Wendy Charlebois says Nevada needs social workers.

"There are currently many jobs available in public and private agencies and non-profit organizations throughout Nevada. We'd like students to join us," she said.

The locations for the orientation are: the GBC Battle Mountain Center on Second Street, the GBC branch in Ely on Bobcat Drive, the GBC campus in Elko, Greenhaw Technical Arts Center, Room 128, the Pahrump Valley Center on Calvada Blvd. in Pahrump, and the GBC Winnemucca branch on Kluncky Canyon Road.

For more information or to RSVP, call 775/753-2244.

GBC offering late political science online course

3-9-07

PVT

The Great Basin College social sciences department is offering an online late spring course. Political Science (PSC) 103, Principles of American Constitutional Government, examines a fascinating array of political and constitutional history.

GBC political science instructor Danny Gonzales encourages students who have ever wondered why the elephant is the symbol of the Republican Party and the donkey is the symbol of the Democratic Party to enroll.

"Do you know how much money is going to be spent in the 2008 presidential election? Is burning the American flag a form of free expression protected by the U.S. Constitution? These are just a few areas to be covered along with the U.S. and Nevada Constitutions in the online class starting this week," he said.

PSC 100: The Nevada Constitution takes a similar look at Nevada political issues. Gonzales said the course examines the major events leading to the Great Basin region's development. The one-credit online class satisfies the Nevada Constitution requirement for Nevada's teaching with a provisional license. The course begins March and runs through May 16.

GBC nursing program accredited

PVT

Great Basin College's baccalaureate degree nursing program was granted initial accreditation by the Board of Commissioners for the National League for Nursing Accrediting Commission Inc., according to Dr. Margaret Puccinelli, Great Basin College's director of nursing.

According to the Commission, as a result of being accredited by NLNAC, Great Basin College and its nursing faculty have demonstrated their commitment to the highest standards of nursing education.

Great Basin College's associate of applied science degree nursing program is also accredited by the National League for Nursing Accrediting Commission. Both programs are scheduled for their next accreditation visit in the fall of 2011.

The NLNAC's accreditation visit was the last step in the process that affirms the BSN Program's full accreditation status. During the three day visit, evaluators met with approximately 40 individuals from the college and community including registered nurses currently enrolled in the program.

"The site visit was very successful," said Puccinelli. "The evaluators recommended initial accreditation of our BSN Program for the maximum of 5 years based on the program's compliance with all accreditation standards. I couldn't be more pleased with this very favorable outcome."

The evaluator report with the full accreditation recommendation was presented to the NLNAC Commission for approval during their board meeting earlier this year. GBC's Associate of Applied Science in Nursing Program hosted a similar accreditation visit in 2003 and was approved for continuing accreditation until 2011.

"GBC's Bachelor of Science in Nursing Program is a wonderful addition to our allied health science programs," said Puccinelli. "Many of our associate degree nursing students have taken or are in the process of taking BSN required general education courses and several are already planning on beginning their upper division nursing coursework as soon as they graduate from the associate degree program and successfully pass the national licensing examination for registered nurses."

GBC currently has over a dozen registered nurses in the process of completing BSN Program course requirements. Most of those students are working full-time in health care in rural Nevada.

College is earning its own ID

By MARK WAITE

PVT

While administrators applauded the improvements after the Pahrump Valley Center shifted from the Community College of Southern Nevada system to Great Basin College last summer, the close proximity of Pahrump Valley High School doesn't make it seem like a real college campus.

The 30,000-square-foot building was completed in time for the fall 2001 school semester. Advocates for a new community college on the southeast part of the valley, east of Highway 160 near Manse Road, made a pitch to the state legislature last week.

"We need more classrooms and more facilities in the morning," Carina Kalleja, a nursing student at the Pahrump Valley Center, said. She said most of the classes scheduled in the evening are convenient for working people, but not necessarily

SEE GBC PAGE A6

for her.

"I don't like the fact that I'm going to have to go to my last class at seven at night and get out at 9:45," she said.

Kalleja echoed the sentiments of a friend sitting nearby, who said, "Oh, yeah, get the high schoolers out of here. It's more of a high school than a community college."

Pahrump Valley High School, just behind the center, had 392 students enrolled in the dual-credit courses at the Pahrump Valley Center, offering students the chance earn college credits at the same time as they take high school classes. Sixty-six high school students were taking a full load of 12 college credits under the program.

Last fall the count of high school students in dual-credit classes at the Pahrump Valley Center was 418.

By comparison, the duplicated head count for strictly college students dropped from 731 to 521 from fall 2005 to spring 2006, then rose sharply to 936 last fall and 974 this spring after the Great Basin College takeover.

The full-time equivalent was 157 college students in fall 2005, dropping to 112 last spring, then increasing to 188 last fall and 190 this spring.

Al Daniels, who took over as site administrator of the Pahrump Valley Center following the death of Kelcy Thompson in January 2006, said there's been a number of changes with the conversion to the Great Basin College system based in Elko.

"One of the biggest boosts that hasn't been accepted with open arms by Pahrump students is the interactive video. We have five interactive video stations and we're going to add one more," Daniels said.

The interactive video allows even just a few students sitting in a classroom in Pahrump to watch instructors beamed from Elko. The only problem is a limit on the bandwidth, Daniels said. The interactive video allowed the Pahrump Valley Center to expand its offerings from 80 sections per semester to 140 sections, he said.

Eight months before

Thompson's death, CCSN had frozen her account, taken away her signature authority and she wasn't able to market the center, Daniels said.

"The biggest amount of our enrollment, other than the dual credit, is in the evening. Part of that is people work. That's just a customary part of a community college. Adults can't get off in the day if they're employed, and a lot of people who take these classes are people who work in Las Vegas and live out here," Daniels said.

A major bone of contention with CCSN is the unfinished biology lab, Daniels said. That was needed for the prerequisite classes for the nursing programs to meet the needs of the new Desert View Regional Medical Center, he said — one of the more popular of five bachelor's degree programs now offered at the Pahrump center.

When students enrolled in the certified nursing assistant program finish that program, the college will start a registered nurse program in the fall, Daniels said. Nursing students complete their clinical work in areas like phlebotomy and radiology at the hospital itself, he said.

"If you do your training in the community, your chances of keeping (students) in the community increase tremendously," Daniels said. "That's what my mission is: to make that commitment we didn't make five years ago, which I always felt guilty about and felt it was an absolute crime against Pahrump."

Elementary education is another popular four-year program, Daniels said. There's a plan to offer a four-year degree in secondary education as well. Students may also complete their entire four-year college career in Pahrump for social work, or receive a bachelor's degree in applied science or a degree in integrative and professional studies.

The teacher situation seems to be improving with the influx of retired people to Pahrump, Daniels said. He said there are 35 adjunct instructors and two full-time instructors, one in English and another in biology.

"This full-time biology instructor is huge. I think the next one they're going to bring down is math and possibly follow that with history," Daniels said.

The addition of modular buildings at the high school reduced the number of classrooms being used for dual credit at the Pahrump Valley Center, Daniels said. Five out of the 16, instead of 10, are used for high school classes. High school students take up three classrooms, a science room and two computer labs.

While some college students may not like to share space with their high school counterparts, Daniels said he's proud of the fact the dual-credit program at Pahrump Valley High School has been recognized both by the chancellor of higher education and the state legislature as a model program between a school district and a college.

Two high school seniors will actually complete their two-year college associate degree programs at the same time they receive their diplomas this spring, he said.

But Daniels referred to the rapidly rising 9.7 percent annual enrollment increases at Pahrump Valley High School when he added, "To be honest, the high school needs this center. We need to give them every room we got to alleviate the overcrowding."

Some college students at the Pahrump Valley Center were grateful to have a college campus in town, period.

"It's good for Pahrump," said Vanessa Mitchell, who's taking four courses including English, math, sociology and history. "It's nice to have something here you don't have to go to Vegas for."

Cory Thomas, however, said it's nothing like the community college he attended in Kansas. He will have two and a half years left to receive his degree in broadcast journalism after he transfers to the University of Nevada, Reno.

"They had more classes, they had places where they'd like help you out with living and the class schedules, they had times from in the morning all the way until late at night," Thomas said.

Social work degree program now ready through GBC-UNR

ELKO — With registration well under way for fall courses at Great Basin College, the school is encouraging students with an interest in social work to consider the school's offerings.

"Students thinking of a career that can make a difference in the lives of children, the elderly or those living in poverty ... might consider a career in social work," according to the school.

GBC's program offers a mix of traditional live instruction, online courses and interactive video technology. Thanks to a collaboration with the University of Nevada-Reno, students participate interactively with classes in Reno. Those who finish the program earn a bachelor's of social work degree from the UNR School of Social Work.

Many in the social work field expect that bachelor-level social workers will be in high demand over the next 10 years.

For more information, contact Wendy Charlebois at 753-2466.

Social workers in high demand

Great Basin College courses begin soon

Special to the Independent

ELKO — Students thinking of a career that can make a difference in the lives of children, the elderly or those living in poverty, or who have ever wanted to change things in their own community to help citizens lead healthier, more productive lives might consider a career in social work.

Through a collaborative effort between Great Basin College and the University of Nevada, Reno, students can obtain a Bachelors of Social Work degree without leaving their community. The program engages students in traditional live instruction, interactive video technology and on-line classes. Students will also participate in internships that promote dignity and social justice for vulnerable populations. Successful students will ultimately receive a bachelor degree from the UNR School of Social Work.

In the next ten years bachelor level social workers will be in high demand, especially in rural Nevada. It is estimated that 60 percent of Nevada State Employees, where many social workers are employed, will be eligible for retirement. According to the National Association of Social Workers, social workers will be needed in the areas of children's services, the elderly, substance abuse and schools. Out of the six students in the GBC/UNR program that completed their graduation requirements in May 2006, two of them found immediate employment in local social service agencies.

Registration is underway for courses in social work and every other discipline at Great Basin College for Fall 2006. Introduction to Social Work will be held via interactive video throughout the GBC service area on Mondays and Wednesdays from 5:30 p.m.-6:45 p.m. Call Wendy Charlebois at (775) 753-2466 for more information or contact your local Great Basin College Advising Center.

Nursing courses available at GBC

Special to the Independent

ELKO — The Great Basin College Nursing Program will hold training sessions for students interested in becoming a Certified Nursing Assistant (CNA). The course will be offered in a "compressed" schedule, Mondays through Thursdays, Oct. 9 through Oct. 24, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

NURS 130, "Nursing Assistant," (registration call number 13973) will be taught by Norma Cozby, RN. The four-credit course qualifies the successful student for the Nevada CNA licensing examination. Students must provide evidence of a negative TB skin test or negative chest x-ray and have a current CPR certification. CPR certification is available through the Elko chapter of the American Red Cross.

The Nursing Assistant course provides students with the classroom, laboratory and clinical experience to make them eligible to take to the State Certified Nursing Assistant Examination. A CNA licensee qualifies for an entry-level position in the health-care industry. It also opens the door to further study and advancement in health care. For more information on the CNA Program at Great Basin College, contact Jo Dean at (775) 753-2216.

GBC will start course in Industrial Energy Efficiency

ELKO — Great Basin College has been given approval from the Nevada System of Higher Education's Board of Regents for a new program in Industrial Energy Efficiency.

Students who complete the program will be awarded an associate of applied science degree and will be prepared for careers as energy efficiency technicians.

The demand for skilled technicians is growing, said Bret Murphy, dean of Career and Technical Education programs at GBC. Murphy said IEE techs are employed in manufacturing, mining, energy service, energy consulting and power and utility industries.

"Rising energy costs throughout Nevada and the United States have created an urgent need for employees trained to manage and assess energy consumption," Murphy said.

GBC is the lead institution in the state engaged in providing education and training in IEE.

Great Basin College offering online driver's ed classes

Special to the Independent

ELKO — Great Basin College will now offer driver's education to high school and non-high school students in Elko, Eureka, Lander, Humboldt, Nye and White Pine counties.

According to Pat Warren, the college's director of Continuing Education, the course can cut the amount of training the Department of Motor Vehicles requires of a student driver in half. "DMV requires 100 hours on a log of hours driven with an adult. With a driver's ed course the time is reduced to just 50 hours," she said.

Students can enroll in the course by clicking on the "driver's ed" icon on the college's Web site at www.gbcnv.edu

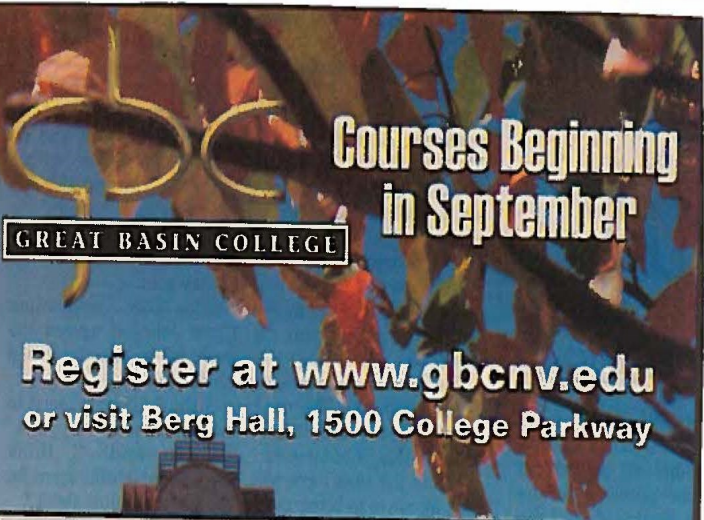

The eight-week, two-credit course is delivered online and is taught by experienced local school district instructors with the driver's education endorsement. The first class starts Sept. 11 and a second section starts Oct. 16. High school students enjoy a special $35 tuition fee. If a student has not been enrolled at GBC in the past, a once in a lifetime $10 admission fee will also apply. Non high school students may also enroll but will pay the regular tuition fee.

In order to enroll, students must be 15½ by the end of the course. The class provides the student with sufficient knowledge to pass the Nevada state written driver examination. A passing grade on the written examination enables the student to obtain their driver's permit. One of the chief benefits of completing a driver's education course are the discounts provided by many auto insurance companies.

For more information on driver's education at GBC call (775) 753-2231.

GBC, NSBDC propose new opportunity

ELKO — Have you ever considered having your own business, but are unsure as to what business you could start with minimal startup costs, that would allow you to stay home to take care of your family, have flexible hours, and make it worth your time financially to pursue?

Great Basin College and the Nevada Small Business Development Center are co-sponsoring a seminar on how to start a home-based medical transcription business. "Current industry trends show that demand for medical transcriptionists is soaring," said Judy Emerson of the NSBDC,

"so now may be the time to investigate this opportunity to see if it is right for you."

In this course, participants will discover a step-by-step guide to what medical transcription is; medical transcription versus medical billing and coding; learning medical transcription simply and cost-effectively, and avoiding expensive and common mistakes.

According to Emerson, "Participants will also learn everything from obtaining working capital and marketing their business easily, to pricing, collections, computers and software, transcription machines, electronic files, business taxes, professional organizations, growing the business throughout the U.S., how to get hands-on work experience and much more."

The instructor for this class is Deborah Burns, president of Deborah's Touch, Inc., a national medical transcription service located in Phoenix. Deborah's Touch provides medical transcription to medical facilities and has been in business for 20 years.

The cost of the course is $45, said Emerson.

This class will be held on Nov. 30 from 7 p.m. to 9:45 p.m. at Great Basin College. Those interested need to register either on line at www.gbcnv.edu or visit Student Services on the Great Basin College campus in Elko before Nov. 17.

Training sessions scheduled

ELKO — The Great Basin College Nursing Program will offer two training sessions for students interested in becoming a certified nursing assistant.

The first session, NURS 130 Nursing Assistant, will be offered between Jan. 9 and May 30 from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. There are also clinical days from 6 a.m. to 10 a.m. on several Thursdays.

The second session of the same course will be offered from Jan. 9 to May 30 from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. There will also be clinical days from 6 a.m. to 10 a.m. on several Fridays.

The course provides students with the classroom, laboratory and clinical experience to take to the State's Certified Nursing Assistant Examination. Students must have proof of a current negative one-step TB test or negative chest x-ray to enroll in the class and a current adult CPR certificate.

The American Red Cross and American Heart Association teach CPR certification.

A CNA licensee qualifies for an entry-level position in the health care industry.

It also opens the door to further study and advancement in health care. For more information call Jo Dean at 753-2216.

EMTs earn certifications

ELKO — Great Basin College held examinations for the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians (NREMT) Dec. 8 and 9 at the college's Elko Campus.

The examinations were held in conjunction with the State of Nevada Emergency Medical Services.

Candidates were from GBC's Emergency Medical Technician-B program and EMT personnel from Carlin, Battle Mountain, Winnemucca, Owyhee and Carson City.

The examination process included both practical and written testing.

Successful completion of the exam results in NREMT certification. NREMT was established in 1970 as the result of President Johnson's Committee on Highway Traffic Safety recommendations which included uniform standards for training and examination of personnel involved in the delivery of emergency medical services.

GBC offers nursing program seminar

ELKO — The Great Basin College nursing department will present an informational session regarding the school's Certified Nursing, Associate of Applied Science in Nursing, and Bachelor of Science in Nursing programs at a session on Jan. 4.

The event will begin at 7 p.m. in room 109 of the Gallagher Health Sciences Building on GBC's Elko campus.

The certified nursing course provides students with the classroom, laboratory and clinical experience to make them eligible to take to the state's certified nursing assistant examination. A CNA licensee qualifies for an entry level position in the health care industry. It also opens the door to further study and advancement in health care.

The Associate of Applied Science in Nursing integrates courses in nursing with general education requirements in a variety of areas. Laboratory and clinical experience are offered on campus, at Northeastern Nevada Regional Hospital, long term health care center and other community health facilities.

GBC's Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree provides a high-quality and innovative educational opportunity for registered nurses. Graduates will be prepared for enhanced practice and leadership in a variety of rural health care settings. Students may be admitted to the program after having completed an approved Associate of Applied Science degree program in nursing.

Many practicing nurses have chosen to return for the BSN degree. The program has been designed to enable working professionals to complete the degree in a timely manner. For more information on nursing programs at GBC call 753-2301.

GBC offers driver's education course

Special to the Independent

ELKO — Great Basin College is offering driver's education to high school and non-high school students in Elko, Eureka, Lander, Humboldt, Nye and White Pine counties.

According to Pat Warren, the college's director of Continuing Education, the course can cut the amount of training the Department of Motor Vehicles requires of a student driver in half.

"DMV requires 100 hours on a log of hours driven with an adult. With a driver's ed course the time is reduced to just 50 hours," she said.

Students can enroll in the course by clicking on the "driver's ed" icon on the college's Web site at www.gbcnv.edu. The call number for the course is 38951.

The eight-week, two credit course is delivered online and is taught by experienced local school district instructors with the driver's education endorsement. The first class starts Jan. 16, 2007. High school students enjoy a special $35 tuition fee. If a student has not been enrolled at GBC in the past, a once-in-a-lifetime $10 admission fee will also apply. Non high school students may also enroll but will pay the regular tuition fee.

In order to enroll, students must be 15½ by the end of the course. The class provides the student with sufficient knowledge to pass the Nevada state written driver examination. A passing grade on the written examination enables the student to obtain their driver's permit.

For more information on driver's education (775) 753-2231.

GBC nursing program gains accreditation

ELKO — Great Basin College Director of Nursing, Dr. Margaret Puccinelli, recently announced GBC's baccalaureate degree nursing program was granted initial accreditation by the Board of Commissioners for the National League for Nursing Accrediting Commission, Inc.

The commission, and its predecessor, the National League for Nursing, have stood for standards of excellence for all types of nursing education for more than 50 years.

According to the commission, Great Basin College and its nursing faculty have demonstrated strong commitment to the highest standards of nursing education.

Great Basin College's associate of applied science degree nursing program is accredited by the National League for Nursing Accrediting Commission. Both programs are scheduled for their next accreditation visit in the fall of 2011.

The accreditation visit was the last step in the process that affirms the BSN program's full accreditation status. During the three-day visit, evaluators met with approximately 40 individuals from the college and community, including registered nurses currently enrolled in the program.

The evaluator report, with the full accreditation recommendation, was presented to the commission for approval during a board meeting earlier this year. GBC's associate of applied science in nursing program hosted a similar accreditation visit in 2009 and was approved for continuing accreditation until 2011.

GBC has more than a dozen registered nurses in the process of completing BSN program course requirements. Most are working full-time in health care in rural Nevada.

The program graduated its first students at the end of the 2006 fall semester, and will graduate others next month and again after this year's fall semester. Most of the BSN nursing courses and many of the non-nursing courses are offered via the Web, making access to the BSN degree convenient for working professionals.

For information, call 753-2102.

Students must provide evidence of a negative TB skin test or negative chest X-ray, and have a current CPR certification. CPR certification is available through the Elko chapter of the American Red Cross. The course provides students with the classroom laboratory and clinic experience to make them eligible to take the state certified nursing assistant examination.

A CNA licensee qualifies for an entry level position in the health care industry. The certification also opens the door to further study and advancement in health care.

GBC offers new fire science program

4-14-07

By JOHN SENTS
Free Press Staff Writer

ELKO — Great Basin College will begin classes this fall for a new fire science management program open to anyone from high school students to seasoned professionals.

The curriculum for the program was established by the National Wildfire Cooperative Group — which includes the Bureau of Land Management, the U.S. Forest Service and Nevada Division of Forestry. It will offer an associates degree or certificate, with emphasis on wildland fires and leadership, said Bret Murphy, Dean of Applied Science at GBC.

"(The program) has been requested by the local (fire) agencies," Murphy said. "Given our fire situation, it just makes sense for us to have a wildland program in northern Nevada."

Prior to the program, the closest Nevada school offering college credit for wildfire science training was in Reno at Truckee Meadows Community College, Murphy said. He said the training offered at the University of Nevada, Reno's Fire Science Academy in Carlin is different because it focuses on industrial firefighting.

The Fire Science Academy doesn't currently teach wildland firefighting training, said Gary Zunino, director of the academy. However, the BLM has held their wildland fire rookie school at the academy, but the rookie school is not a degreed program.

Murphy said the new program is not in competition with the academy.

"(The academy) offers contract training to bring skills up for industrial firefighters," Murphy said. "Ours is a degree program with the skills training. They get the wildland firefighting experience as well as the putting the college credits to it."

Murphy said the classes are beneficial both to students interested in a career in firefighting and to longtime firefighters hoping to advance their careers with a degree.

There will be 15 classes offered for the program, Murphy said. One class will include training on how to use pumps correctly and draw from a stream. Pumps and chainsaws will be available for the classes.

Other classes will focus on engine operation, with training to be a bulldozer boss or run a fire engine. Murphy said GBC doesn't currently own a fire engine or bulldozer. However, he expects the school will be able to work out agreements with local firefighting agencies to train with their equipment.

"I'm sure we will be able to come up with the things we need," Murphy said.

There will also be a basic wildland firefighting class, where students learn to fight fire on a hand crew; a fire behavior class; a first responder class; a back-firing class and others.

Murphy said some instructors for the class have already been selected, including Dylan Rader of the BLM's Elko Field Office.

There was no special funding or grants secured for the program, Murphy said.

"We are just going to get it started," Murphy said. "It is in cooperation with the local agencies. We are going to be relying on them as well."

For information, call Murphy at 753-2217.

GBC holds off-road course

4-28-07

ELKO — Great Basin College is offering a Four Wheel Drive Off-Road Driving for Beginners course from 5:30 to 6:45 p.m. on May 16 and 18 and from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on May 19.

The class will be held in room 111 of the Greenhaw Technical Arts building. Cost is $20 and students may bring one partner at no additional cost. Instructors for the class are Rick Weight and Allen Moore.

The class lets participants "explore the beauty of Nevada's vast outback country and learn the basics of four-wheel-drive, off-road driving from lifts to tire pressure," according to a statement from Great Basin College.

The classroom work will cover safety, vehicle modifications and techniques. A run on Saturday promises safe fun and adventure for novice off-roaders.

Interested students should register at www.gbcnv.edu under Spring 2007 using call number 12472.

Train the Trainer at GBC

7-13-07

ELKO — Licensed Nevada registered nurses interested in teaching in the Great Basin College certified nursing assistant program have a training opportunity in September.

The one credit course, "Train the Trainer" will be held from 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Sept. 6-7.

The course will train instructors for certification to teach certified nursing assistant classes. Instructors must have a current Nevada RN license, two years of work experience and two years of experience working with chronically ill patients. For information call (775) 753-2301.

CNA course offered at GBC

ELKO — The Great Basin College Nursing Program will hold a training session for students interested in becoming a certified nursing assistant.

The session will be held from 8 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. Tuesdays and Wednesdays beginning Aug. 28 and running through Dec. 13.

"Clinical" training days for the course will be held from 6 a.m. to 10 a.m. Thursdays beginning Sept. 27 and ending Dec. 12.

The six-credit program provides students with the classroom, laboratory and clinical experience to make them eligible to take the State Certified Nursing Assistant Examination. A CNA licensee qualifies its holder to an entry level position in the health care industry. It also opens the door to further study and advancement in health care.

Students must provide evidence of a negative TB skin test or negative chest X-ray and have a current CPR certification. CPR certification is available through the Elko chapter of the American Red Cross 753-9600.

For information contact Jo Dean at (775) 753-2279 or (775) 753-2301.

GBC sponsors college bound forum

ELKO — Great Basin College is sponsoring a free forum for parents and college bound students 7-8:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Greenhaw Technical Arts building, room 130. The forum is designed to help ease the transition to college. Topics include: encouraging academic achievement, developing healthy friendships, maintaining communications and good health, learning to speak to students about drugs and alcohol, addressing depression and loneliness; and budgeting and finances. For information, call 753-2279.

What's the difference...

between Great Basin College and any other college?

Our professors:

At GBC, it's our professors who teach, not an overworked graduate student. Our instructors are teaching scholars, with masters and doctoral degrees and years of experience in their field of study, many recognized at the state and national level for their contributions as teachers, artists, advisors and performers.

Pre-college forum scheduled at GBC

ELKO — Great Basin College's Admission Advising and Career Center and the PACE Coalition will be hosting a free forum for parents and college bound students from 7 to 8:30 p.m. on Aug. 9 in room 130 of the Greenhaw Technical Arts building on GBC's Elko campus.

The purpose of the forum is to educate students and parents about student budgeting and finance; maintaining good mental and physical health; and other topics.

Presenters include GBC faculty and Jacqueline Volkman, director of Elko Mental Health.

A gift bag of college supplies will be provided for students. For more information call 753-2279.

A Letter from School

So much happening at GBC

Editor:

Napoleon Bonaparte once said, "Ability is of little account without opportunity."

This summer has held amazing opportunities for many of Great Basin College's students, and this upcoming year looks even more promising. Before the school year begins, I would like to take a moment to introduce myself to the community, incoming freshmen, and current students.

My name is Carrie Rowley, and I am the president of the Student Government Association for the 2006-2007 school year. I have been a student at Great Basin College for the past five years. Up until last year, I had never been involved with many student activities. Dr. Gretchen Skivington, my anthropology professor, approached me about becoming the Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society president, and the offer changed my whole world. Becoming involved in Honor Society opened doors for me that I never knew existed. Through PTK, I was able to represent GBC and Nevada as a New Century Scholar in Long Beach, Calif., and was even more fortunate to visit South Africa with the International Scholar Laureate Delegation of Nursing. My college experience has been greatly enhanced this past year by being involved.

This summer held many exciting opportunities for other Great Basin College students as well. Take Diamond Aviles for example. As the current Miss Wendover, she recently traveled to Las Vegas to compete for also the chair of H.A.B.I.T.A.T, which is a student housing organization at GBC that is working hard to ensure that residents of housing will have a smooth transition to student living.

GBC student Paul Connolly just received a $1,000 scholarship from Coca Cola for his academic success and participation in community service.

Additionally, members of the Student Government Association have traveled many miles this summer to ensure that Great Basin College students have the same opportunities for greatness as any other college across the U.S. Members traveled to Rowan University in Glassboro, N.J., for the Institute for Student Leadership Conference.

The "Nevada Gang" was quite a hit on the East Coast, and brought back valuable tools and ideas to make this year awesome for all GBC students. SGA was also very fortunate to send four members to the Association for the Promotion of Campus Activities conference in New York. There, the group attended workshops and keynote sessions to help spice things up in the student life department.

Former Student Government Association President Robbi Phillips is the new Student Life Specialist at GBC, and her focus this year is the promotion and support of all student activities. She will also be working with all on campus clubs and organizations.

With the beginning of school just upon the horizon, I would like to take this opportunity to invite all students to a "Meet and Greet." The extra-a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Elko GBC campus, in and around the Community Center, near Café X. Student Government will be hosting a Welcome Back festivity, complete with club and organization information, activities, music, and campus tours. Many members of faculty will be on hand to help students with academic advising, and the bookstore, as well as the admissions office, will be open. Best of all, there will be a free barbecue.

Also, as a special treat, the Great Basin College Foundation will be sponsoring a rock concert to kick off the new school year in a big new way. Flynin' Blind will be performing in the amphitheater from 7 to 10 p.m. Admission is free, and refreshments will be available.

Education is one of the most important journeys a student will ever embark upon. Having said that, I want to stress that college is not just about the textbooks.

Academics are incredibly important, but long after the dust has settled on the textbooks and the term papers have all been written, it will be the memories of the friends and experiences outside of the classroom that will last a lifetime.

This year is going to be bustling with new adventures, and I would like to invite anyone that is interested in becoming involved with a club or organization, student government, or anyone with questions or comments, to stop by the campus Community Center. In addition, anyone interested in running for a senate position within stu-

tions will be held the third week in September, and information will be available at the "Meet and Greet."

This year is about new beginnings and new opportunities. Everyone at GBC will be sharing in the celebration of student life. Great things are happening at all Great Basin College campuses. With the addition of the Pahrump campus, students all across Nevada will have more opportunities than ever. I am excited for the new school year to begin, and I encourage all students to take advantage of every opportunity that GBC has to offer. You will never know where a path may lead if you do not ever step off the porch.

College students collect for FISH

A record 20 baskets, representing 20 Thanksgiving dinners, were delivered to FISH this week by students from Great Basin College. Several student clubs and organizations turned out Friday night for the scavenger hunt to collect the items. The Student Nurses Organization had the most team members present, and Phi Beta Lambda was the first team back with the scavenger list completed. HABITAT (Housing Activities Board Involves Tenants and Teamwork) was the organization that collected the most items.

College Goal Sunday helps students with aid

ELKO — Students squirming over that application for financial aid can find relief Jan. 28 at a College Goal Sunday event at Great Basin College.

GBC's Elko, Ely, Pahrump and Winnemucca campuses will engage in seminars to help students complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) and to help advise them on ways they can afford college.

Current college students and high school seniors are encouraged to attend. The event begins at 2 p.m. in the High Tech Center on the Elko campus, the Ely Center on Bobcat Drive, the Pahrump Valley Center on Calvada Boulevard and the Winnemucca Center on Kluncy Canyon Road.

"The FAFSA is a tough form to fill out," said Scott Nielsen, GBC's student financial services director. "We hope to lower the anxiety level."

The FAFSA is a mandatory step in securing financial aid, Nielsen said. The federal government uses the application to determine students' and their parents' expected contribution and how much money they are eligible to receive. Financial aid can come in the form of need-based grants and federally backed student loans.

Volunteers from the college's Student Services and Academic Affairs offices will be available to walk students and their parents through the forms. Lynn Mahlberg, GBC's vice president for student services, said the seminar will also connect students with the financial aid officers they will work with.

"It's a great opportunity for students and parents to meet financial aid officers and begin financial planning. It's a good example of the kind of service Great Basin College can provide to the community," Mahlberg said.

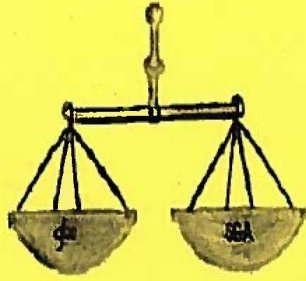

The state of Nevada applied for and received a $170,000 grant from the Lumina Foundation to host College Goal Sundays for the next three years, always either right before or after the Super Bowl. GBC's Mahlberg and Jeanne Rosenthal, GBC's grants coordinator, led the effort in Nevada.

Mahlberg said students should apply for a personal identification number to fill out the FAFSA application online in advance by visiting www.pin.ed.gov, but students can also fill out a paper application at the sites.

If under the age of 23, students should bring their parents, along with a copy of their 2005 income tax information for both student and parents. Students 24 and older only need their own tax information.

For more information, visit the college Web site at www.gbenv.edu, and click on the College Goal Sunday link. Call 753-2399 in Elko, 289-3589 in Ely, 727-2000 in Pahrump and 623-4824 in Winnemucca.

GBC holds Love Your Body week

ELKO — Great Basin College is holding a series of free activities next week to promote self education, happiness and awareness.

The activities, which run from Monday through Friday, are part of Love Your Body week. It includes events, lectures and a little fun, said Carrie Rowley, president of GBC's Student Government Association. Activities are open to the community.

There will be a meth awareness lecture featuring

Elko District Judge Andrew Puccinelli, at 6 p.m. Tuesday at the GBC Solarium in Elko. On Wednesday, Phi Theta Kappa presents an honors satellite seminar called "Power and Gender in Relationships" at noon in the GBC Solarium. On Friday, Pat Anderson will lead a self-defense lecture at 4 p.m. in the GBC Fitness Center.

Love Your Body

ELKO — About 24 Great Basin College students and staff turned out in the school's solarium Wednesday for a video titled "Gender and Power in Relationships."

The video was part of activities for GBC's annual Love Your Body week. Wednesday's video, which featured Dr. Pepper Schwartz, a sociology professor from the University of Washington, Seattle, looked at challenges in relationships and issues that make them balanced or unbalanced.

Schwartz also tried to explain the social issues that draw couples together.

Love Your Body week activities continue with a free movie night at 6 p.m. today in the GBC Theater and a self-defense class at 4 p.m. Friday in the GBC Fitness Center. The self-defense class features Pat Anderson and Norm Cavanaugh. Free sub sandwiches will be offered.

"We tried to find activities that were academic and fun," said Carrie Rowley, Student Government Association president. "School is not just about the work. It is about kicking back and having some fun, too."

Activities earlier in the week included a Jell-O Olympics with eating, lifting and games. A Tuesday lecture focused on the dangers of methamphetamine.

Darfur Diaries: Messages from Home

a one-hour film

This film focuses on the voices of the people of the Darfur region of Sudan. Through interviews, the filmmakers provide a window into the lives of people who have suffered unspeakable human rights abuses—violence, displacement, and death. Since 2003, nearly two million people have fled Sudan, countless others have been murdered. This film tells some of their stories, and it raises our awareness of the need to act to stop the genocidal violence in Sudan.

Darfur genocide tops list

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ongoing genocide in Sudan's troubled Darfur region was the world's worst human rights abuse last year, the United States said today in a global report that found freedoms eroding in numerous other nations, including war-torn Afghanistan and Iraq.

In its annual survey of human rights practices, the State Department cited progress in some countries but stressed a series of "sobering realities" reflecting a significant deterioration in conditions in some of the world's most populous states like China and Russia. The U.S. has joined both of those countries in diplomatic efforts to resolve nuclear confrontations with Iran and North Korea.

"Genocide was the most sobering reality of all," it said in the 2006 "Country Reports on Human Rights Practices," noting that mass killings continued to "ravage" Darfur more than 60 years after the world

GBC Rotaract Club to show 'Darfur Diaries'

ELKO — The Great Basin College Rotaract Club will present a video focusing on the voices of the people of the Darfur region of Sudan.

The one-hour film, dubbed "Darfur Diaries: Messages from Home," will be shown at 4 p.m. Thursday in Room 130 of the Greenhaw Technical Arts Center on GBC's Elko campus.

Admission to the event is free.

Through a series of interviews, the filmmakers provide a look into the lives of the people who have been exposed to human rights abuses, violence, displacement and death.

According to Rotaract Vice President Dezi Flynn, nearly two million people have fled Sudan and countless others have been murdered since 2003.

"The film tells some of their stories and raises our awareness of the need to act to stop genocidal violence in Sudan," Flynn said in a statement.

Donations to benefit Darfur refugees will be accepted at the screening. Rotaract is the college subsidiary of Rotary International.

For more information call Flynn at 753-2331.

vowed "Never again!" following the Holocaust.

Just days before senior U.S. diplomats expect to meet Sudanese President Omar al-Bashir in Khartoum, the State Department lashed out at the Sudanese government, blaming its military and proxy militia for the genocide in Darfur, the western Sudan region which more than 200,000 people have died and some 2.5 million have been displaced, according to some estimates.

"The Sudanese government and government-backed Janjaweed militia bear responsibility for the genocide in Darfur," it said, adding that they, along with indigenous rebels, had committed and continue to commit atrocities as the four-year-old war rages unabated.

"All parties to the conflagration committed serious abuses, including widespread killing of civilians, rape as a tool of war, systematic torture, robbery and recruitment of child soldiers," the report said.

Washington first declared the situation in Darfur a "genocide" in 2004 when then-Secretary of State Colin Powell used the word in congressional testimony but other countries and the United Nations have refrained from using the word and some U.S. officials have recently toned down such language.

Future business leaders team victorious at marketing trial

Special to the Independent

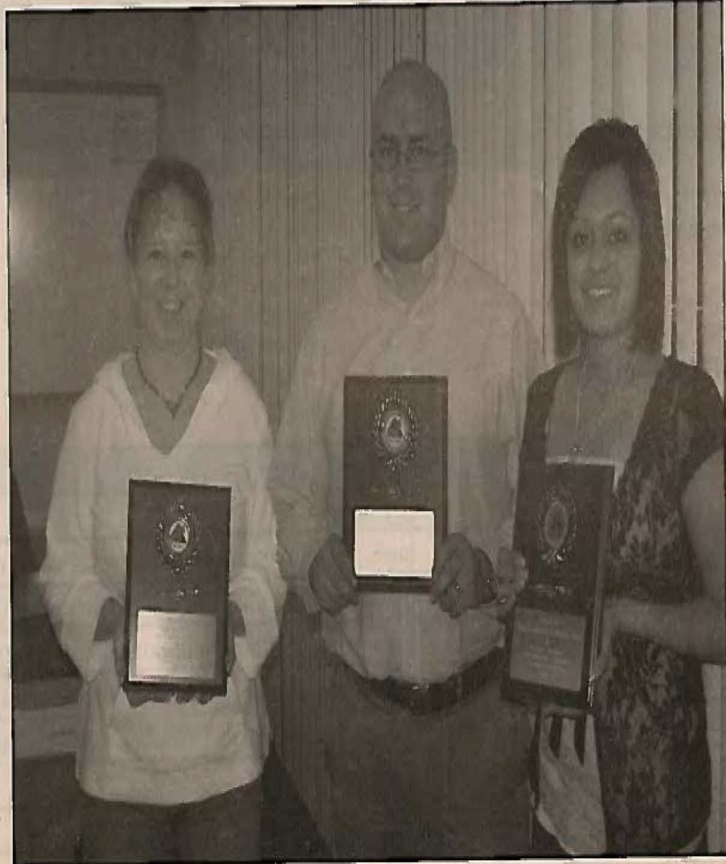

ELKO — The Great Basin College Chapter of Future Business Leaders of America Phi Beta Lambda competed at the Third Annual Western Collegiate Food Marketing Competition on March 7. The competition was held at the Anaheim Convention Center in Anaheim, California. Several Great Basin College PBL students were recognized for their achievements.

Marilyn Robinson, PBL president, Yosaba Ramirez, PBL vice president and Ron Pooler were the members of the college's award winning team.

They presented an International Export Plan for Grandpa's Old-fashioned Oat Bar. The oat bar is being manufactured and sold by GBC business professor Dr. Glen Tenney. The team placed in the top five for Best PowerPoint Presentation, Product Most Likely to Succeed and Most Innovative Marketing Idea. They were also the judges' overall pick for a top five placement and received a $250 cash award.

The students competed with other teams from Arizona State University, Colorado State University, Portland State University, University of Nevada-Reno, California State University-Chico, California State Polytechnic University-Pomona and Chaffey College.

The GBC PBL Chapter is advised by GBC professor Dr. Jay Larson. PBL is an opportunity for students enrolled in the dozens of business courses offered by the college to put classroom theory into real-life practice. For more information on PBL and other opportunities in the Business Department, call (775) 753-2125.

“CELEBRATE STUDENT LIFE”

!!! V O T E !!!

Several events planned this spring at Great Basin College

Special to the Independent

ELKO — Many students are preparing final projects, studying for examinations and interviewing for exciting new jobs to follow graduation next month, but Great Basin College Student Government Association (SGA) organizers have been busy planning activities that help to take the edge off the hectic pace of college life.

On Tuesday, April 24, a Karaoke Night will be held in Café X, and the Follies return on April 27 with Paintball and pizza.

On Tuesday, May 1, join SGA in the College Theatre for a screening of "Wild Hogs." Students living in the residence halls can compete in the Housing Olympics on Thursday, May 3, and a Finals Luau is scheduled for evening of Friday, May 4.

Finals week begins on May 14 with "breakfast" served to exam-cramming students at 10 p.m. The Nurses Pinning ceremony will be held on Friday, May 18, at 11 a.m. in the college theatre. A dinner honoring those earning their baccalaureate degrees is planned for that evening.

The commencement ceremony will be held at 10 a.m., Saturday, May 19, in the Convention Center. This year's commencement speaker, chosen by the SGA, is U.S. Congressman Dean Heller.

Great Basin College is a member institution of the Nevada System of Higher Education and is accredited by the Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities. For 40 years GBC has provided opportunities in higher education for rural Nevadans. GBC awards Certificates of Achievement, Associate and select Baccalaureate degrees using a variety of instructional methods.

'Aggie Evening Out': GBC ag students to host dinner, dance

ELKO — Great Basin College agriculture students are hosting a "GBC Agriculture Support Dinner and Dance" at the Western Folklife Center.

The evening begins at 6 p.m. April 27 with a social time to visit with old friends, make new friends and preview the silent and live auction items. Dinner, catered by Biltoki, will begin around 7 p.m.

Two guest speakers, Nevada Cattlemen's President-elect Dan Gralian of the TS Ranch and Dr. Jim Young of the Agriculture Research Service, will present agricultural information regarding livestock and natural resources within the Great Basin.

Following the dinner there will be a live auction and plenty of time for everyone to put their name and bid amounts on several special and unique silent auction items to be announced throughout the remainder of the evening.

GBC agriculture students hope to share with those in attendance the accomplishments and aspirations of the GBC agriculture program. They also hope to raise funds for scholarships and activities the students want to participate in.

The public is invited to attend this special "Aggie Evening Out." Tickets can be purchased by calling (775) 217-0886 or Tracy Benson, GBC's agriculture instructor, at 753-2344.

 WWII WASP pilot Vi Cowden will deliver a speech Friday at the Great Basin College Theatre.

Female WWII pilot to tell her story

ELKO — Violet "Vi" Cowden was one of slightly more than 1,000 women to fly military aircraft during World War II as a Women Airforce Service Pilot (WASP) — and at 7 p.m. Friday at the Great Basin College Theatre she will share her experiences with the public.

Born and raised on a sod farm in South Dakota, Cowden, 89, became enamored with flying as a young girl watching hawks hover over the farm. She became a schoolteacher and took flying lessons in the mornings before class.

Cowden eventually earned her private certificate piling up flight hours in small, slow Cubs and Aeroncas, but then came Dec. 7, 1941. She heard of the attack on Pearl Harbor listening to the Sammy Kaye radio program as the family prepared to go to church. Two days later she sent a wire to Washington, D.C., advising officials she had her pilot's license and was ready to defend country, according to "Timeless Voices of Action" Voice of the Week segment that aired in 2009.

Cowden waited more than a year before she was invited to apply to the Women's Flying Training Detachment and she began her training in May 1943. She was one of 25,000 women to apply and one of only 1,074 to make it through the program.

She flew 19 different types of military aircraft during the war, and at ages of 76 and 89 she jumped out of a ... well, perhaps we should allow Cowden to tell her own story.

Friday's talk is sponsored by the Bureau of Land Management Elko Field Office and Great Basin College.

Curtis Stigers will perform his modern jazz sound at 7 p.m., Aug. 17, at Great Basin College's Reynolds Amphitheatre.

Admission is $15. Stigers is a well-known international jazz musician whom has toured with Prince, Elton John and Bonnie Raitt to name a few. While his recordings take other musicians' songs and rework them to his own signature sound, Stigers is an accomplished songwriter in his own rite.

His latest recording, "I Think It's Going to Rain Today," reflects this feature of his musical abilities.

Stigers jazzes up GBC concert finale

Stigers, above, cites musicians such as Led Zeppelin, Ray Charles, Elvis Costello and Joni Mitchell as influences on his music while growing up.

ELKO — In every genre of music, it seems there are a few individuals who take the old tried and true methods of performing, and tweak them just enough to add a certain level of freshness to the genre.

Curtis Stigers, who plays at 7 p.m. Aug. 17 at Great Basin College's Reynolds Amphitheatre, is one of these individuals. Having taken classics by songwriters such as Sting and Willie Nelson, Stigers has expanded upon their sound to help fulfill what aficionados refer to as "modern jazz."

"This is my niche, my specialty," says Stigers in his official bio.

"I have a great love and an eclectic knowledge of a wide array of songwriters and musical genres, and I know how to bring them all together into one cohesive sound."

Stigers is a major club and theater draw. He has performed on both "The Tonight Show" and "The Late Show with David Letterman." Stigers has toured internationally with such musicians as Elton John, Bonnie Raitt, Eric Clapton and even Prince. JazzTimes referred to Stigers as "one of the greatest male jazz singers of his generation."

"What I'm after is a complex and ever-changing thing, which makes it difficult to define who I am," Stigers said in his bio.

"I sing beautiful love songs, but I'm not really a crooner. I write, but I'm not just a singer-songwriter. I'm certainly a jazz singer but so much more, too."

Stigers cites influences which range from Led Zeppelin to Tom Waits and Louis Armstrong to The Clash as having had an effect on his appreciation and approach to music.

But rather than simply "revamping" other tunes, he also writes his own material, including "Lullaby on the Hudson" and "Columbus Avenue" from his new album, "I Think It's Going to Rain Today."

"Columbus Avenue" is about the day he met and fell in love with his wife. "Lullaby on the Hudson" is about one night when he stayed up with his newborn child in a tender moment between a father and his daughter.

Tickets for the event are $15. Advance tickets may be purchased at Berg Hall on the GBC campus. In case of inclement weather, the event will be moved to the GBC Theatre.

For more information on Curtis Stigers, check him out on the Web at www.curtisstigers.com.

Euripides Bacchae auditions

ELKO — The Great Basin College Theater department will hold auditions for the fall production of Euripides Bacchae in the GBC Theater on Aug. 30 and 31.

Anyone wishing to participate as a performer, crew member or technical assistant is invited to attend the audition. In addition to actors and dancers, the director is actively seeking hand percussionists who will serve as rhythmic accompaniment to the action on stage.

Actors will cold read from sides provided at the audition. Dancers and musicians need only come by and express interest in the project. As always, all ages and experience levels are encouraged to participate. Trent De Long will direct the production.

Euripides is the third and "youngest" of the three classical Greek tragedians from whom we have extant texts. Bacchae, one of his most famous plays, depicts the arrival of the god of wine and revelry, Dionysus (also called Bacchus), to the Greek city of Thebes. He is accompanied by an entourage of dancing women, known as Bacchae.

Dionysus has come to Thebes to demand his proper reverence as a true god from the order-minded king, Pentheus, and the citizenry. When he is spurned, Dionysus visits a horrible punishment upon Thebes.

The production will be held outdoors at the GBC amphitheater from Oct. 2 to Oct. 7. The play will use no electrical lighting or stage props and will feature a chorus of dancers, singers and musicians.

For more information call De Long at 753-2340.

Dirty Martini brings 'tea and revenge' to Elko

ELKO — The Portland-based rock trio Dirty Martini is slated to return to this year's Ruby Mountain Balloon Festival balloon glow at 6 p.m. at Great Basin College. The band performs at 7:30 p.m. after the glow.

Comprised of three extremely talented women, Dirty Martini features Lara Michell, Stephanie Schneiderman and McKinley. Each comes from a previous solo career. One member toured with David Crosby as his opening act, one won a spot on the Lilith Fair tour and one was in Carmina Pirhana, a group which composed music for the Oregon Ballet.

Considered one of Portland's most successful groups, Dirty Martini released their self-titled debut in 2005, and are about to release their second album, "Tea and Revenge," on Sept. 26.

"Tea and Revenge" is produced by John Askew (Tracker, FLMguerrero) and Dave Allen of Gang of Four. While Dirty Martini members are influential songwriters in their own rights, they cited Kristin Hersh, Aimee Mann and P.J. Harvey as influences on the album. While the tracks on "Tea and Revenge" certainly draw something from Hersh, Mann and Harvey, the album has its own energy drawn from the more personalized feeling one gets from a group which has yet to really break out and make it big. Take advantage of the opportunity now, because who knows how long this intimacy with these artists will last before they actually do make it big.

Elko 'waits for Godot'

11-2-06

By JARED DuBACH
Free Press Lifestyles Editor

ELKO — "Weird" and "hard" are words often used to describe playwright Samuel Beckett's body of work with "Waiting For Godot" being the pinnacle. Even so, Great Basin College theater instructor and guru Trent Delong urges the public to not dismiss the play.

In an effort to bring one of the most popular pieces of modern theater to the Elko area and to educate those in attendance on the finer points of Beckett, Delong and the production's actors will have a series of performances at 7 p.m. Nov. 14 through Nov. 18 at GBC Theatre. At 6 p.m. on Nov. 16, there will be a pre-show discussion of "Godot" incorporating historical, theoretic and other topics.

"Waiting For Godot" tells the story of two vagabonds, Gogo and Didi, who are in the countryside waiting for a man named Godot. While waiting, the two discuss various issues and have chance meetings that help develop what seems like a simple plot into serious social commentary.

While Beckett himself has repudiated that "Godot" is a largely symbolic production, symbolism is nonetheless evident throughout the play, as are various social themes that Delong hopes to address before the Nov. 16 performance.

Delong has recruited the veteran acting talents of Mary Flores, John Terry, Kiley Piner, Tony Piner and Tyler Cox. Flores and Terry play Gogo and Didi. According to Terry, playing Didi is a relief from previous productions he was in in that he doesn't have to formulate a different voice, and can draw from his own experiences of sitting around being bored.

One of the common themes audiences and readers of Beckett's work encounter with "Godot" is the feeling of identification with the characters. Through Gogo and Didi's boredom, they see the mundane nature of their own lives. For some this can be enlightening, but for others this is the counter-opposite of why they attend theatrical performances. Escapism is something one doesn't necessarily go to Beckett for, since his work is simple, yet incredibly engaging.

"There is much comedy and much tragedy in Beckett that few plays (outside of some Shakespeare) really can merge so seamlessly," Delong said. "Many directors shy away from the lack of spectacle — a tree, a rock, ragged clothes. I relish it. All of that jazz is pushed aside and we deal with the reality of existence; the bare stage reflects how the characters are laid bare throughout the play."

Mary Tores as Gogo tries to remove her shoes, much to a humorous effect.

An Evening of Dance at GBC

ELKO — Utah's Repertory Dance Theatre will perform Time Capsule: A Century of Dance at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Great Basin College Theatre as part of its Nevada tour.

The Elko portion of the tour includes the performance as well as educational outreach activities for area students from pre-kindergarten through 12th grade.

Clive Barnes of the New York Post stated the Utah dance group is "a dance company all America should see." Time Capsule promises to captivate the audience with its multi-media presentation and offer a guided tour through 100 years of dance highlighting the birth and evolution of an art form. The performance ties each piece to the social and political environment in which it was created.

General admission is $5. College students with a student ID will be admitted free.

Founded in 1966, the Repertory Dance Theatre is not only known worldwide for its artistic excellence, but also for its commitment to building bridges of understanding that demystify the art of dance. In addition to public performances, it produces a variety of community-based programs and has a long-standing commitment to arts in education.

The Nevada tour is part of American Masterpieces: Three Centuries of Genius, an initiative of the National Endowment for the Arts and the Nevada Arts Council.

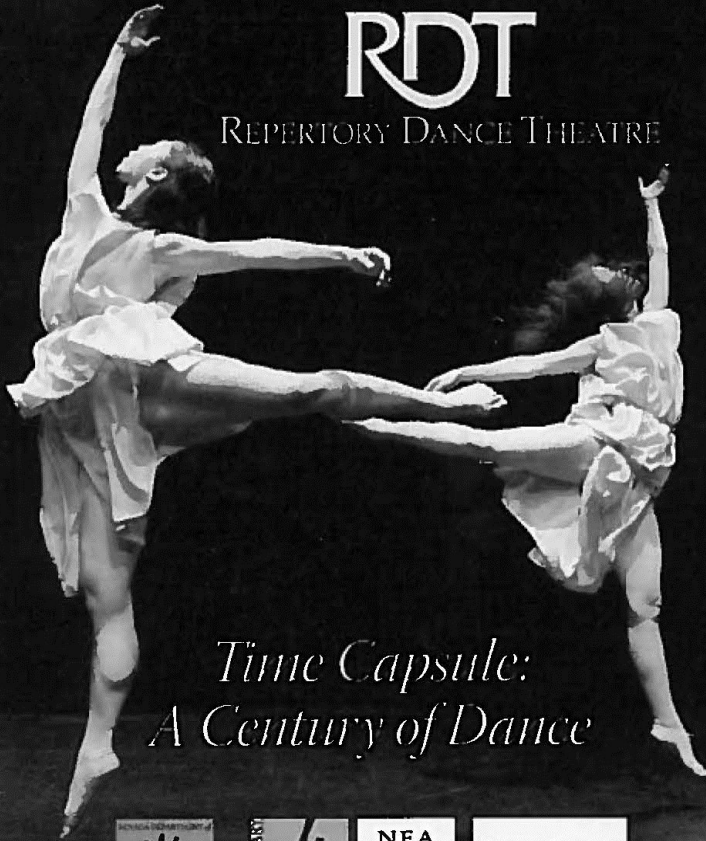

Great Basin College is the primary sponsor, working with Red Lion Inn & Casino.

'Danny and the Deep Blue Sea' at GBC

By JARED DuBACH
Free Press Lifestyles Editor

ELKO — "The outskirts of normal" is a phrase used by one of the actors to describe "Danny and the Deep Blue Sea," a new production at Great Basin College.

John Terry and Mary Flores play Danny and Roberta in John Patrick Shanley's "Danny and the Deep Blue Sea." Trent DeLong is the director.

Danny is a self-loathing man prone to violence, and Roberta is a broken woman who holds a terrible secret. After the two meet in a bar in the Bronx, they begin a torrid affair that brings out the best — and the worst — in both of them.

The play is at 7 p.m. Thursday through Saturday at Great Basin College Theatre and 7 p.m. April 26 and 27. There is a matinee performance at 2 p.m. April 28. Tickets are $5.

The play features adult language and themes.

The play is split between two sets, each featuring an unordinary form of seating. For the first scene, chairs are placed on the stage in a rectangle. For the second scene, bleachers are set up looking down on the action.

Slipping into these roles takes a certain amount of preparation. Terry said he draws from movies he has seen, and guys "macho-ing up at the bar."

DeLong said he settled on directing "Danny" because he wanted to do something that was "not just Shakespeare, not just musicals," which tend to be more common in small communities such as Elko.

The play is a study in how every person is important — including their emotions and psychological hang-ups.

It also addresses the idea of what defines love.

"How do you say that one love is more important than another?" said DeLong.

"They're monsters, but they are people," Terry said, suggesting they have a right to be heard despite their character flaws.

Flores said it's interesting for her to see what people's reactions are. She performed a piece from the second act of the play for a class she previously had with DeLong as the instructor.

Originally she and other actors looked at the play "Mud" as a possible production. When they defaulted to a two-person production, "Danny" came to mind. Producing something "dirty and primitive" still comes out in "Danny."

While some plays address the concept of a woman as "damaged goods," Flores said "Danny" does so, too — but from the woman's point of view.

Summer concert series kicks off

ELKO — Bluegrass and “full contact jazz” were performed at Thursday evening’s summer concert series show in Great Basin College Theatre. Due to a chance of rain, the show was moved indoors from the amphitheater.

Jazz guitar virtuoso Chris Proctor performed instrumentals from throughout his 30-year career, as well as more recent pieces such as “Ladybug Stomp” and a more finger-picking intensive version of the Neil Young classic, “Ohio.” He also performed a song he wrote while going through a divorce and seeing the first Iraq War in the media, called “War Games.”

Jared DuBach/Elko Daily Free Press
Jazz guitarist Chris Proctor speaks to the audience at Thursday evening’s concert in Great Basin College Theatre.

Between songs, Proctor engaged the audience with tales of his touring and writing processes. He reminisced about his recent tour in Italy where at one show he tried to explain to the audience, in Italian, that the song contained a medley. However, Proctor only knew words used to describe food, so he tried using a word for “mixed green salad.” Finally, an Italian got up and yelled, “It’s a medley!”

He even applied humor into his set when introducing the song, “Hot Spot”

from his album, “Chris Proctor Collection.”

“It would’ve been called ‘Chris Proctor’s Greatest Hits’ if I had any hits,”

Proctor jokingly said.

His performance was preceded the Salt Lake City bluegrass group Two Dollar Bill.

Rob Rice, mandolin player for Two Dollar Bill, told the Free Press after the group’s set that the band is relatively new, and until Thursday’s show had only played around Salt Lake City. The band, which has been together for about six months, consists of a mandolin, upright bass, acoustic guitar and banjo accompanied by vocal harmony.

“I’m hoping that it’s not our last (show in Elko),” Rice said. “We’ve really appreciated a chance to come out and play for you all.”

The next concert is at 8 p.m. Aug. 9 at Reynolds Amphitheatre with singer-songwriter Stephanie Schneiderman.

Great Basin College offering online driver's ed classes

Special to the Sun

ELKO — Great Basin College will now offer driver's education to high school and non-high school students in Elko, Eureka, Lander, Humboldt, Nye and White Pine counties.

According to Pat Warren, the college's director of Continuing Education, the course can cut the amount of training the Department of Motor Vehicles requires of a student driver in half. "DMV requires 100 hours on a log of hours driven with an adult. With a driver's ed course the time is reduced to just 50 hours," she said.

Students can enroll in the course by clicking on the "driver's ed" icon on the college's Web site at www.gbcm.edu

The eight-week, two credit course is delivered online and is taught by experienced local school district instructors with the driver's education endorsement. The first class starts Sept.

11 and a second section starts Oct. 16. High school students enjoy a special $35 tuition fee. If a student has not been enrolled at GBC in the past, a once in a lifetime $10 admission fee will also apply. Non high school students may also enroll but will pay the regular tuition fee.

In order to enroll, students must be 15½ by the end of the course. The class provides the student with sufficient knowledge to pass the Nevada state written driver examination. A passing grade on the written examination enables the student to obtain their driver's permit. One of the chief benefits of completing a driver's education course are the discounts provided by many auto insurance companies.

For more information on driver's education at GBC call (775) 753-2231.

ELKO — Queenstake Resources has formally pledged $25,000 toward the Electrical and Industrial Technology building on the Great Basin College Elko campus.

Brent Chamberlain, human resource manager at Queenstake, presented John Patrick Rice, GBC's director of institutional advancement and the executive director of Great Basin College Foundation, with the company's pledge.

Queenstake's pledge is part of the Great Basin College Foundation's Campaign for Rural Nevada: Transforming Higher Education. The foundation partnered with Barrick North America, Newmont Mining and Sierra Pacific Power Company in a community initiative to provide $500,000 toward construction of the $15.1 building.

The Nevada Legislature provided $14.6 million toward the building. Construction is slated to begin soon, with occupancy expected late in 2007.

The EIT building will house the college's Electrical, Instrumentation and Industrial Plant Mechanics programs. The facility will also house the college's highly effective Academic Success Center, providing tutoring in every academic discipline available at the college.

According to Rice, the GBC Foundation is almost two thirds of the way toward its promise of delivering the half-million dollars for the building. Businesses and individuals interested in participating in the project can contact Rice at (775) 753-2246.

Auditions for 'BACCHAE' to be held at GBC's Elko campus

Special to the Sun

ELKO — On Aug. 30 and 31 from 6 p.m. — 9 p.m., the Great Basin College Theatre Department will be holding auditions for the Fall Production of Euripides' BACCHAE in the GBC Theatre.

Anyone wishing to participate as a performer, crew member or technical assistant is invited to attend the audition.

In addition to actors and dancers, the director is actively seeking hand percussionists who will serve as rhythmic accompaniment to the action onstage. Actors will cold-read from sides provided at the audition.

Dancers and musicians need only come by and express interest in the project. As always, all ages and experience levels are encouraged to participate.

The production will be directed by Trent Delong.

Euripides is the third and "youngest" of the three classical Greek tragedians from whom we have extant texts. BACCHAE, one of his most famous plays, depicts the arrival of the god of wine and revelry, Dionysus (also called Bacchus), to the Greek city of Thebes. He is accompanied by an entourage of dancing women, known as the "Bacchantes" or "Bacchae."

Dionysus has come to Thebes to demand his proper reverence as a true god from the order-minded king, Pentheus, and the citizenry. When he is spurned, Dionysus visits a horrible punishment upon Thebes; Pentheus, in particular, suffers greatly at the hand of the god.

This production of BACCHAE will be held in the amphitheatre at GBC on the evenings of Oct. 2 — 7. In an attempt to utilize some of the traditional Greek conventions, the play will be staged outdoors (rain or shine), will use no electrical lighting or stage props and will feature a chorus of dancers, singers and musicians who will be vital to the dramatic action of the play.

Please direct any questions or concerns to Trent De Long at (775) 753-2340.

Great Basin College welcomes new staff member

Special to the Sun

ELKO — Great Basin College welcomed several new faculty and staff to their campuses throughout rural Nevada this fall.

GBC's new recruiter is Adriana Mendez. She is ready to develop more awareness about GBC throughout the state and pass onto students the opportunities that are to be gained if they continue their education.

A graduate of Westminster College with a psychology degree, Mendez recently worked as a substitute teacher for ECSD, and enjoyed interacting with the students.

Jodi Gerrits is the new Student Information Systems computer technician. She received her Associates of Science degree in networking from GBC and in May will receive her Bachelors in Management and Technology. It was the atmosphere, the people and the room for advancement that all led her to find her current position.

As the new Director of Institutional Research and Effectiveness, Lijuan Zhai hopes that her "research and data will be used for program and institutional improvements."

Zhai received her Ph.D from Ohio State University and recently came from San Diego Community College District, where she was the research and planning analyst for six years.

Kandy Scheel is a new administrative assistant on the Ely campus and joins GBC after having worked for White Pine County for 10 years. She received her AA from GBC, and it was her positive former experience as a student that led her to seek full time employment at the college.

She states that she wants "to help students, co-workers, professional staff, and the community and hope that I can leave them with a positive impression."

Vivian Settle earned her AAS in Business Administration through GBC. She uses those skills in her new position as an administrative assistant for the Ely campus.

Settle hopes to "encourage others who are starting out late in life to get their education." She adds, "If I can do it, anyone can."

Carol Martin sought a challenging position when she found the administrative assistant position on the Ely GBC campus. Previously she served as a data analyst at Kaiser Permanente in California, where she processed statistical information for all of San Diego County and over 170 call-center service representatives.

Marsha Holford is the administrative assistant for the Social Sciences Department and Bachelor of Arts in Integrative Professional Studies, and Bachelor of Social Work degree programs.

After a stretch with an environmental consulting firm in California, Holford states that she is "delighted to be back," with GBC and hopes "to assist the Social Sciences, BAIPS, and BSW faculty in achieving department and degree program goals."

Mary Doucette leads the new Radiology Technology Program and brings with her an array of information and skills for this promising field. With over 20 years of experience, six of which she served as the department director at NNRH, the program has a bright future.

Laura Johnson is the college's new GIS/CADD instructor. She hopes to "make GBC students and rural Nevada GIS-literate!" Referring to GBC's emphasis on students and the diversity of the technology in today's workforce, Johnson is "looking forward to working with our many students, faculty, and staff."

Robert Hannu, recently of the Wisconsin Overlay Network for Distance Education Resources, is the new Interactive Video Coordinator/Technician.

Hannu moved "out west" in the past July and says that he has "found everyone to be extremely friendly and helpful."

He hopes to "assist the college in moving forward with aspects of its distance learning program."

Amber Overholser is the new Foundation Services coordinator. Overholser graduated from GBC's BAIPS program and stated that she is "excited to have the opportunity to work with the college that enabled me to reach my educational goals."

Health care courses offered at GBC

Special to the Sun

ELKO — The Great Basin College Nursing department will hold an information session regarding the school's Certified Nursing, Associate of Applied Science in Nursing, and Bachelor of Science in Nursing programs on Aug. 15, from 6 p.m. — 7:30 p.m. The session will be held in the Gallagher Health Science Building, room 110 on the GBC Elko campus.

The three programs prepare students for different levels of health care provision. The Certified Nursing course provides students with the classroom, laboratory and clinical experience to make them eligible to take to the State Certified Nursing Assistant Examination. A CNA licensee qualifies for an entry level position in the health care industry. It also opens the door to further study and advancement in health care.

The Associate of Applied Science in Nursing integrates courses in nursing with general education requirements in a variety of areas. Laboratory and clinical experience are offered on campus, at the Northeastern Nevada Regional Hospital, long-term health care centers and other community health facilities.

GBC's Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree provides a high-quality and innovative educational opportunity for Registered Nurses. Graduates will be prepared for enhanced practice and leadership in a variety of rural health care settings.

Students may be admitted to the program after having completed an approved Associate of Applied Science degree program in nursing. Many practicing nurses have chosen to return for the BSN degree. The program has been designed to enable working professionals to complete the degree in a timely manner.

Justice Hardesty to speak at GBC Constitution Day event

Special to the Sun

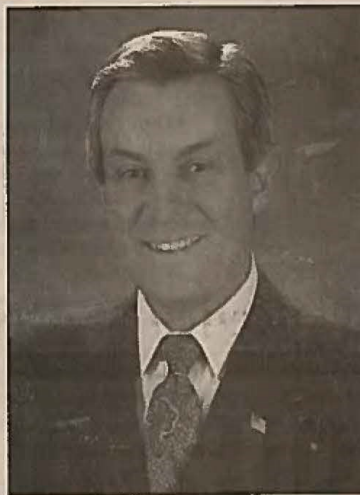

ELKO — Great Basin College will celebrate Constitution Day with a free lecture featuring Nevada Supreme Court Justice James W. Hardesty. The event takes place on Tuesday, Sept. 19, at 7 p.m. in the Great Basin College Theatre. It is free and open to the public.

Hardesty will discuss the Constitution, the Nevada state courts and citizenship. Hardesty was elected to the Nevada Supreme Court in 2004 after a career as a private attorney. He is the author of several published articles on libel, privacy and government access issues. He began his judicial career in 1998 when he was elected a judge at the Second Judicial District Court. He is a member of the Nevada Supreme Court Funding Commission and served on the Judicial Council of the State of Nevada.

Hardesty graduated from the University of Nevada, Reno, (where he was student body president his senior year) and the University of the Pacific, McGeorge School of Law.

Dr. Danny Gonzales, an instructor in the college's Social Sciences department, provides a primer on the U.S. Constitution.

"It sets forth the institutional structure of American government by granting and limiting governmental authority," he said. "The four major constitutional principles — separation of powers, federalism, limited government and judicial review — provide the foundation for the preservation of attributes found in a democratic society such as the representation and inclusion of ideas in governmental decision making processes."

The chair of GBC's Humanities and Social Science department, Dr. Cyd McMullen, emphasizes the importance of having knowledge of the Constitution.

"Familiarity with the U.S. Constitution not only acquaints us with our rights, but reassures us of the resilience of the American system in uncertain times," he said. "The Constitution strikes a balance between individual rights and responsibilities, freedom and security, states' rights and national government. Written and ratified over 200 years ago, it has never gone out of date. Its principles still resonate in the 21st century, and under its "necessary and proper" clause, the American government can adapt to new situations. It is truly a remarkable document."

GBC History Professor Dr. Peter Klem recognizes the relevance of marking the day.

"It is particularly important for us to engage in this discussion considering the state of our world and nation," he said. "For instance, consider the ever-shifting status of our civil rights as spelled out in the Constitution, in an age of terrorism. We've been told we have to give some of them up, though never clearly specified which ones or for how long, in order to better protect our nation."

Klem says that it is interesting that those who disagree with the current erosion of civil rights may be considered "unpatriotic" when not too long ago those who defended Constitutional rights were considered the nation's greatest patriots.

"Quite frankly, considering the enormous amount of power that has accrued to the executive branch of our government since Sept. 11, 2001, the importance of Constitution Day may well be to remind people and government officials that we still have one," he said.

GBC offers Career Exploration Program at Barrick

Humboldt Sun Sept 26-28 2006

Special to the Sun

ELKO — Great Basin College received a $15,020 grant from the Nevada Public Education Foundation to offer a career exploration program at Barrick North America on Oct. 13 and Oct. 20. Sponsored by USA Funds, the Alcoa Foundation and the Nell J. Redfield Foundation, the program will allow participants to tour the Barrick mine site while learning about the many different career opportunities available in the mining industry.

"This is a great opportunity for giving people an in-depth look at what types of careers are available. It shows the participants they can find careers that suit their interests," stated Bret Murphy, dean of Applied Science.

Murphy was the driving force behind the program because he noticed that many people in GBC's service area had never been to a mine site or knew what kinds of jobs people did at the mines.

The program is designed to show participants what an employer such as Barrick is looking for in potential employees, what skill sets are needed for various types of jobs associated with mining, and how GBC can help individuals get higher-paying jobs through its training programs.

Along with the tour, fields such as electrical, diesel, welding, engineering, natural resources, earth sciences, business and office technology will be explored. Participants will see first-hand how people are putting their skills to work in these fields.

Anyone who is at least 15 years old who would like to participate in the program should contact Jeanne Long at (775) 738-8493 for more information. Because the program is limited to 90 people, reservations are required to participate.

GBC offering Native American basketmaking class

Humboldt Sun 9-28 2006
Special to the Sun
ELKO — Great Basin College offers a Native American Double Wall Reed Basketmaking class Saturday, Oct. 14, from 11 a.m. — 5 p.m. in GTA room 122-123.

You will learn to weave using a twine and randing weave stitch to make a decorative reed basket. Both stitches are used in traditional Western Shoshone utilitarian baskets, as well as baskets from other cultures around the world.

Instructor Leah Brady is an award-winning Western Shoshone basket maker and is a master weaver for the Nevada Arts Council. She specializes in traditional Native American twined baskets such as newborn cradles, winnowing trays and burden baskets. Brady was selected to represent the Great Basin region for the Carriers of Culture: Living Native Basket Traditions during the 40th annual Smithsonian Folklife Festival in Washington D.C. from June 29 — July 12, 2006. Brady gave live basket weaving demonstrations and participated in the "Weaver's Talking Circle" on the National Mall during the Festival.

Nearly a million visitors to the Smithsonian Folklife Festival learned how Native baskets literally and symbolically "carriers of culture" for Native Americans. The program was presented in collaboration with the National Museum of American Indian and Michigan State University Museum.

Register at the Admission and Records Office in Berg Hall or on-line at 10939 CA 01 E01 Double Wall Reed Basketmaking. The cost is $50 and includes materials. Please bring a sack lunch. Enrollment is limited, so register as soon as possible.

WINNEMUCCA — Great Basin College will celebrate the opening of "Emma's Basket," a traveling exhibit on loan from the Nevada State Museum on Oct. 2. The exhibit will be on display in the GBC library through the end of the fall semester.

According to GBC anthropology instructor Dr. Laurie Walsh, "Emma's Basket" features a wonderful basket made by weaver Emma Murphy in the early 1900s. Walsh said the basket was later damaged and the famous Washoe weaver Dat-so-la-lee repaired the break as best she could.

A special feature of the opening will be a demonstration of the Great Basin basket weaving craft by Native American basket weavers from Yerington, Carson City, Reno and Elko. The demonstrations will take place from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Oct. 2.

GBC to celebrate 'Day of the Dead'

Special to the Sun

ELKO — Great Basin College Art and Spanish classes are hosting a celebration of El Dia de los Muertos, or "Day of the Dead," on Wednesday, Nov. 1, at 7 pm, in the Great Basin Gallery.

According to organizers, the celebration honors the taxidermy animals that have served as models for many years for drawing classes at GBC.

Adjunct Art Instructor Elaine Parks said that the animals will be carried in a candle light procession around the gallery building.

"Once inside we will place and decorate each animal," she said. "The Ceramic Sculpture class are making Trees of Life that will become part of our altar or 'ofrenda.' Guests are welcome to place items in our ofrenda, such as photographs or food and water offerings.

"We will learn about the traditional celebration of this holiday that honors and remembers the dead."

On Oct. 19, the art department will host a workshop of traditional El Dia de los Muertos crafts. Parks said that participants will make sugar skulls and papel picado (cut paper banners) in the Arts Annex building, behind the college's child care center, across the street from the theatre.

The event takes place from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. Please RSVP to Parks at (775) 756-5004 to participate in the traditional crafts workshop.

GBC hosts national nursing committee

12-1-06

Special to the Sun

ELKO — The Great Basin College Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) Program hosted evaluators from the National League for Nursing Accreditation Commission (NLNAC) during a recent visit to the college campus.

NLNAC is recognized as a specialty accrediting agency for nursing education by the U.S. Department of Education and the Council for Higher Education Accreditation and accredits the five types of post secondary and higher degree education nursing programs in this country. NLNAC accreditation assures rigor and quality across all levels of nursing practice, from professional to advanced practice.

The NLNAC accreditation visit was the last step in the process that affirms the BSN Program's full accreditation status. During the three-day visit, the evaluators met with approximately 40 individuals from the college and community including registered nurses currently enrolled in the program.

"The site visit was very successful," said Great Basin Col-

Social work program begins at Great Basin

Special to the Sun

ELKO — Great Basin College has another great opportunity for students interested in a challenging, exciting and rewarding career. In a partnership with University of Nevada, Reno, GBC now offers a Bachelor of Social Work program on its campuses throughout rural Nevada.

Wendy Charlebois, the program's director, says the experience offers more than the normal "8 to 5" work day. "Social workers are in demand in rural Nevada with jobs available in many State of Nevada agencies. But the rewards go beyond landing a job. Part of the joy of social work is helping people to realize their full potential."

Those interested in finding out more about a Bachelors Degree in Social Work are invited to attend an orientation hosted by Great Basin College and UNR. The session is an introduction to the institutions' 3+1 Bachelors in Social Work Program.

The event will be held Wednesday, Dec. 13, from 11:30 p.m.-1 p.m. on the Elko Campus in McMullen Hall Room 101. A light lunch will be served.

Great Basin College to offer driver's education course ¹⁻⁵⁻⁰⁷

Special to the Sun

ELKO — Great Basin College is offering driver's education to high school and non-high school students in Elko, Eureka, Lander, Humboldt, Nye and White Pine counties.

According to Pat Warren, the college's director of Continuing Education, the course can cut the amount of training the Department of Motor Vehicles requires of a student driver in half.

"DMV requires 100 hours on a log of hours driven with an adult. With a driver's ed course the time is reduced to just 50 hours," she said.

Students can enroll in the course by clicking on the "driver's ed" icon on the college's Web site at www.gbcnv.edu. The call number for the course is 38951.

The eight-week, two credit course is delivered online and is taught by experienced local school district instructors with the driver's education endorsement. The first class starts Jan. 16, 2007. High school students enjoy a special $35 tuition fee. If a student has not been enrolled at GBC in the past, a once in a lifetime $10 admission fee will also apply. Non high school students may also enroll but will pay the regular tuition fee.

In order to enroll, students must be 15 ½ by the end of the course. The class provides the student with sufficient knowledge to pass the Nevada state written driver examination. A passing grade on the written examination enables the student to obtain their driver's permit.

Once of the chief benefits of completing a driver's education course are the discounts provided by many auto insurance companies.

For more information on driver's education call the campus in your community. In Battle Mountain call (775) 635-2318, Ely (775) 289-3589, Elko (775) 753-2231, Pahrump (775) 727-2000 and in Winnemucca (775) 623-4824.

Meth-endangered children lecture planned at GBC

Special to the Sun

ELKO — Great Basin College will present a lecture entitled "Methamphetamine Endangered Children: Developing a Collaborative Community Approach to the Problem" on Friday, Jan. 19 from 11 a.m. — 12:30 p.m. in the Dorothy S. Gallagher Health Sciences Building room 107.

The lecture will be presented by Dr. P. J. Bruno, director of the Child Advocacy Center associated with Geisgner Hospital in Danville, Pennsylvania. Prior to his current position, Bruno owned a private pediatric practice specializing in pediatric medicine and child advocacy.

Bruno's current research projects include studying methamphetamine endangered children and pediatric dentistry.

Pat Warren, director of Continuing Education at GBC recommends nurses, physical law enforcement officers, social workers, teachers, counselors and youth services professionals will benefit from attending this very informative presentation. Admission to the lecture is free.

GBC to host film festival during Cowboy Poetry Gathering ¹⁻⁹⁻

Special to the Sun

ELKO — EARSXXI Studios, The Western Folklife Center and Great Basin College will present PAH-FEST Elko during the National Cowboy Poetry Gathering, Jan. 28 through Feb. 1, 2007.

PAH Fest, short for Project Access Hollywood, is the brainchild of filmmaker Christopher Coppola. Coppola's film, "Gunfighter," shot in the Lee-Jiggs area of rural Elko County, was screened at the Northeastern Nevada Museum last summer.

PAH-Fest Elko is a new media digital film festival, which provides an opportunity for anyone to tell stories using digital technology. Coppola and his associates will mentor participants in projects that will culminate in very short films. Stories can be told using cell phone stills and video, web cams and video cameras, ranging in length from one to six minutes.

The project is aimed at making film making easy and accessible. The finished pieces will be screened and distributed worldwide on EARS XXI on-line theatre at www.pahfest.com

An orientation for participants will be held at Great Basin College on Sunday, Jan. 28. The first day of shooting will be Monday, Jan. 29. Editing will take place on Tuesday, Wednesday, Jan. 30 and Jan. 31. The films will premier with screening at the Northeastern Nevada Museum on Thursday, Feb. 1 at 5:30 p.m. Participation in the project is free. PAH Fest will award cash prizes to filmmakers.

The screening is free and open to the public.

To learn more and to submit a short idea to PAH-FEST Elko please call (775) 738-7523, extension 231, or (323) 485-8500, or visit the PAH Fest Web site at www.pahfest.com. Michelle Cho is the contact person for the project.

GBC to host College Goal Sunday; event focuses on student financial aid assistance

Special to the Sun

• ELKO — Students squirming over that application for financial aid can find relief on Sunday at College Goal Sunday.

The Great Basin College Elko, Ely, Pahrump and Winnemucca campuses will engage in a seminar to help students complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) and to help advise them on ways they can afford college.

Current college students and high school seniors are encouraged to attend. The event begins at 2 p.m. in the High Tech Center on the Elko campus, the Ely Center on Bobcat Drive, the Pahrump Valley Center on Calvada Boulevard, and the Winnemucca Center on Klunzy Canyon Road.

"The FAFSA is a tough form to fill out," said Scott Nielsen, GBC's Student Financial Services director. "We hope to lower the anxiety level."

The FAFSA is a mandatory step in securing financial aid, Nielsen said. The federal government uses the application to determine students' and their parents' expected contribution and how much money they are eligible to receive toward their education. Financial aid can come in the form of need-based grants and federally backed student loans.

Volunteers from the college's Student Services and Academic Affairs offices will be available to walk students and their parents through the forms. Lynn Mahlberg, GBC's vice president for Student Services said the seminar will also connect students with the financial aid officers they'll be working with.

"It's a great opportunity for students and parents to meet financial aid officers and begin financial planning. It's a good example of the kind of service a Great Basin College can provide to the community," she said.

College Goal Sunday is based on a program established by the Lumina Foundation for Education, a private foundation based in Indianapolis. It has been successfully implemented in Indiana, Arizona and now Nevada to help improve access to higher education.

The state of Nevada applied for and received a $170,000 grant from the Lumina Foundation to host College Goal Sundays for the next three years, always either right before or after the Super Bowl. GBC's Mahlberg and Jeanne Rosenthal, GBC's Grants Coordinator, led the effort in Nevada.

Mahlberg said students should apply for a personal identification number to fill out the FAFSA application online in advance by visiting www.pin.ed.gov, but students can also fill out a paper application at the sites.

If under 23, students should bring their parents along with a copy of their 2005 income tax information for both student and parents. Students 24 and older only need their own tax information.

For more information, visit the college Web site at www.gbcnv.edu, and click on the College Goal Sunday link. In Elko, call 753-2399, in Ely, 289-3589, Pahrump, 727-2000, and in Winnemucca, 623-4824.

Four Nevada community colleges partner to create new two-year degree in Industrial Energy Efficiency

Special to the Sun

RENO — Rising energy costs and consumption across the country have created opportunities for students and professionals interested in pursuing careers in industrial energy efficiency. Now three Nevada community colleges and one state college have come together to create the Industrial Energy Efficiency two-year degree program, the only one of its kind in the country.

The program was developed through a U.S. Department of Energy grant.

Designed and implemented through Great Basin College, classes will be available through GBC, Truckee Meadows Community College, Southern Nevada Community College and Western Nevada Community College. Classes will be taught live at one location and broadcast by interactive video distance learning to the other campuses. The first live classes will be held at TMCC's Edison campus, instructed by Denis Donovan, a Reno-based energy consultant.

Classes are designed for individuals working in industrial plants, maintenance staff and electricians, supervisors and plant managers — anyone who deals on a daily basis with energy usage at an industrial facility as well as ambitious students who may use the program to launch into a four-year engineering degree. Certificate programs are available as well as the AS degree.

Classes run from Jan. 22 to May 18, 2007. The first two classes are Compressed Air Fundamentals and Industrial Processes. Class costs are $169.50 for Compressed Air Fundamentals and $113 for Industrial Processes, plus books. Registration for classes can be completed up to first day of class, Jan. 22, through GBC. Registration can be done online at www.gbcnv.edu. For assistance contact Chris Marshall, (775) 753-2175 or chrisml@gvmail.gbcnv.edu

Great Basin College's nursing program gains accreditation

Special to the Sun

ELKO — Great Basin College Director of Nursing Dr. Margaret Puccinelli has announced that

GBC's baccalaureate degree nursing program was granted initial accreditation by the Board of Commissioners for the National League for Nursing Accrediting Commission, Inc.

The National League for Nursing Accrediting Commission, and its predecessor, the National League for Nursing, have stood for standards of excellence for all types of nursing education for over 50 years.

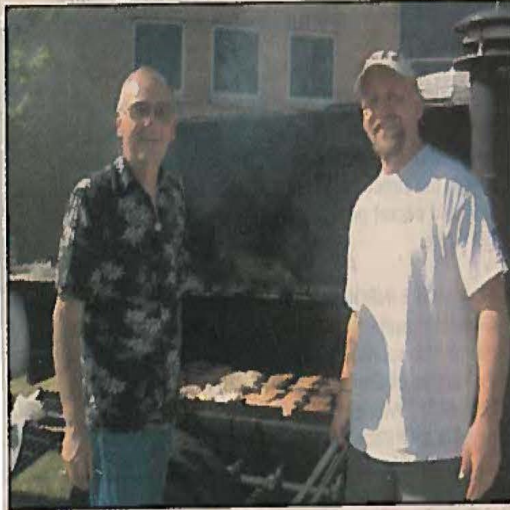

According to the commission, as a result of being accredited by NLNAC, Great Basin College and its nursing faculty have demonstrated their commitment to the highest standards of nursing education. Great Basin College's associate of applied science degree nursing program is also accredited by the National League for Nursing Accrediting Commission. Both programs are scheduled for their next accreditation visit in the fall of 2011.

The NLNAC accreditation visit was the last step in the process that affirms the BSN Program's full accreditation status. During the three-day visit, evaluators met with approximately 40 individuals from the college and community including registered nurses currently enrolled in the program.
