TEMPLE GRANDIN was diagnosed with autism at the age of two. Despite her autism she went on to earn her PhD in Animal Science. The recipient of many awards, she has done extensive work on the design of livestock handling facilities and developed animal welfare guidelines for the meat industry in use by many top food companies around the world. She is widely published and her books include Animals in Translation, Livestock Handling and Transport, Thinking in Pictures, Emergence Labeled Autistic, Animals Make Us Human, Improving Animal Welfare: A Practical Approach, The Way I See It, and The Autistic Brain.

PATRICK AND SHARON O'TOOLE are ranchers at Ladder Livestock, on the Little Snake River along the Wyoming-Colorado border. They operate this sixth-generation ranch which raises cattle and sheep, and hay. They husband private, state, Forest Service and BLM land and leases. The ranch has won awards recognizing its role in balancing agriculture production and conservation values. Pat is President of the Family Farm Alliance, representing irrigators in 17 western states, and is on the Advisory Board of AGree, a national food policy group. He is active in the Partners for Conservation and serves on the Farm Foundation Board. Sharon writes extensively on western issues, and the relationship between landscape, animals and people. She is widely published as an author, essayist and editorial commentator, and is an award-winning poet.
