NNCC alternate semester will begin October 15

An emphasis on classes and workshops for teachers characterizes the fall alternate semester beginning Oct. 15 at Northern Nevada Community College.

Registration for the intensified semester is scheduled from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Oct. 11 and 12 at the college's student services office. Persons unable to enroll during the day may register from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Oct. 11.

Teacher and teacher-aid classes include a Saturday, Oct. 20, workshop on competency-based materials and methods in English as a second language. Participants will be instructors in English as a second language from the five-county area served by NNCC. Autumn Keltner, consultant in competency education from the San Diego Community College District, will conduct the workshop beginning at 10 a.m. in the adult learning center.

"New Impulses in K-12" another teacher-training workshop, will focus on education as an art. The Oct. 19-20 workshop, directed to both parents and teachers, will be conducted by Franklin Kane, a leader in the Waldorf school movement for 20 years and presently co-director of Rudolf Steener College in Sacramento.

ramento. "As an art, education must live and speak to experience - it must reach not only the mind but the heart and the will," Kane said.

"Music in the Pre-School Curriculum," a two-day workshop slated for Oct. 18-19, is designed for area teachers and teacher assistants who want to integrate music, dramatics, storytelling, and movement in pre-school activities. The program will be under the direction of Myra Stenovich McPherson and is set for Oct. 18-19.

Don Elser, vocational director of the Elko County School District, will instruct two independent study courses in vocational education. The classes are aimed at teachers who need certification in vocational education.

Other courses on the fall alternate schedule include conversational Spanish, to be held in Carlin on Tuesdays and Thursdays; "Beginning Handbells," taught by Mary Ann Warren; a horsemanship class in which students will learn techniques for teaching horses to jump; an advanced welding class; and several self-paced science, social science, business, and humanities courses.

The fall alternate semester concludes on Dec. 21. (Submitted)

Registration continues at college

EDFP 1-16-80

Late registration for the spring semester at Northern Nevada Community College continues through Friday of this week, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, with an evening session from 6 to 9 p.m. tonight.

There are still plenty of class openings, according to Charles Greenhaw of the college, even though the Elko campus had its biggest first-day enrollment ever when registration opened Jan. 9.

Greenhaw said about 500 persons enrolled the first day, and pointed out that for the first time in its history, NNCC's fall enrollment went over 400 full-time students. He pointed out this was the highest percentage increase for colleges in the state.

Registration is at the college's student services office and a $13 per credit hour fee is charged, plus a $5 application fee for new students. Fees must be paid at registration.

Registration starts tomorrow for NNCC alternate semester

A variety of classes, tours, and seminars will be offered in the spring alternate semester which begins next week at Northern Nevada Community College. Registration for these classes and activities is set for tomorrow and Friday at the college's student services office.

A one-credit seminar for receptionists is slated for Thursday evenings for five weeks. The class, which focuses on a company's "first lady," covers a full range of a receptionist's duties including using the telephone effectively, escorting visitors, and dealing with difficult people.

Also scheduled are a 7 a.m. Tuesday and Thursday tennis class, noon body conditioning, a Tuesday evening class covering auto electricity and carburetors, and a course in bookkeeping Tuesday evenings.

Several short seminars are planned.

Denise Trease will conduct a seminar titled Communicating with the Terminally Ill, which is primarily for human service personnel, and another short class, Art in the Pre-School Curriculum, is directed to teachers and aides in pre-school or child care programs.

Sewing Seminars, sponsored by the Nevada Woolgrowers' Auxiliary, features consultant Gloria Dramer leading sessions on Decorating Your Home with Fabric and Tailoring with Wool and Other Fabrics.

Internationally distinguished calligrapher Jacqueline Svaren will be the guest of the college for a seminar, Writing Beautifully, May 9 and 10. In her May 9 presentation, Svaren will describe the history of pen lettering and display samples of distinguished calligraphy. Her May 10 program is a workshop titled Italic Calligraphy. Enrollment will be limited to fifteen and the $15 fee includes materials needed by participants.

Individuals planning to participate in alternate semester classes must register Thursday and Friday.

The full schedule appears on Page 14 of today's Free Press.

Seven vie for NNCC offices

Seven Northern Nevada Community College students are running for student body offices in an election which concludes tomorrow.

Any student enrolled for classes at the college is eligible to vote. This includes night students. Voting is being conducted at the student services office during the day and in the library at night.

Karen Rogers and Dianne Bennett are candidates for president. Darrell Escalanti and Allan Hansen are vice presidential candidates. Ann Henderson is the lone candidate for the secretary office. Ramona Scott is the only candidate for the office of treasurer.

Running for full-time student representative is Richard McClure.

Local College Class Offerings

BEGINNING SIGN LANGUAGE I

Instructor, D. Sant. The course will include: Beginning basic signs, problems of the deaf, equipment I use will be beneficial for professional people. Study will be on: alphabet, numbers, animals, verbs, nouns, countries, songs, poems. Deaf people will come in to class and practice with them.

SHORTHAND I

Instructor, J. Rose. This is an introduction to written shorthand. Gregg shorthand is a vocational tool that hundreds of thousands of stenographers and secretaries use to obtain interesting and lucrative positions in business. It is also a personal tool that many business and professional men and women use to relieve them of the burden of writing burdensome longhand when they make notes, compose important letters and memorandums, and draft speeches and reports.

PHOTOGRAPHY

Instructor, K. Stuebaker. The course will cover the basics of camera types, camera operation and care, film and its characteristics, and of course picture taking. Under picture taking, the emphasis will be around exposure control, how to get a good clear and sharp photograph and composition. Basic principles of portraiture will be covered and this will include basic lighting techniques.

ANCIENT ARCHEOLOGY AND THE BIBLE

Instructor, L.S. Morley. The teaching techniques of experimentation, experience simulation, seminar discussion, artifact display, textbook, elective resource library, optional reports to improve grade, and lecture will be used to introduce the field of Archeology (seven sessions) and the inter-relation of the Science of Archeology with some Biblical references (nine sessions.)

CAREER DEVELOPMENT

Instructor, L. Franklin. Where are you headed? Have you got a plan? If not, you'll probably wind up somewhere else. If you are really serious about the answer to these questions check with the Northern Nevada Community College about CAPS 123 Career Development.

NURSE AIDE TRAINING AIDE COURSE

Instructor, Irene Litte, RN. This course is designed to prepare trainees to become qualified nurse aides in hospitals, nursing homes, and other agencies in providing all phases of non-professional health care to the patient. The skills necessary to perform nurse aide functions will be developed and the knowledge necessary to effectively perform the responsibilities will be taught.

ADULT BASIC EDUCATION GED

Schedule: Mon. - 9-12

a.m.; Tues. - 1-4 p.m., 6:30 - 9:30 p.m.; Wed. - 9-12 a.m., 6:30 - 9:30 p.m., Thurs. - 1-4 p.m., 6:30 - 9:30 p.m.; Friday - 9-12 a.m.

NNCC to offer university courses

Several University of Nevada courses will be taught this summer at Northern Nevada Community College to allow school teachers and others to meet continuing education requirements and stay in Elko.

Registration for the courses will be held at NNCC May 21-23, and more information about any of the courses may be obtained by calling the college at 738-8493. The summer session starts May 27.

History

Professor Shelley Hanna will teach two University of Nevada classes during the summer session.

Students may enroll for History 328, "Contemporary Civilization," or History 697, "Independent Study."

The contemporary civilization class will focus on selected key political and cultural events affecting American and European civilization since World War II, including the Cold War and decolonization in Africa and Asia.

Overviews of European unification, NATO and the Common Market will be presented along with existentialist philosophy and the "new wave" of continental playwrights and cinema writers.

History 697 is a graduate course in historical method. An independent study class, students will perform individual research and make presentations on topics of modern history.

Dr. Owen Ulph will teach "Advanced Historical Studies," a UNR course, at the community college this summer.

The class begins Tuesday, May 27, and will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The course will be concerned with interpretation of the past - what history is; what it means; and how it is interpreted.

"In short, we will be talking about the relevance of history to 'knowledge,'" said Ulph. "About the only requirement for this class is a genuine intellectual curiosity, a quality Ronald Reagan correctly stated that is not the function of government to subsidize."

The class will not have a textbook, but will instead use an abridgement of Arnold Toynbee's Study of History.

Mathematics

Mark Melrose, NNCC mathematics instructor, will teach "History of Mathematics," a University of Nevada upper division-graduate class during the summer session.

The two-credit class begins May 27 and meets at 7 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

"A knowledge of upper division mathematics is not required for this class," said Melrose. "A working knowledge of algebra and an interest in the great men and ideas of mathematics are all that a student needs for the class."

Students who are interested in a different subject in mathematics may enroll in an independent study course for one to three graduate credits.

More information may be obtained by calling Melrose at the college, 738-8493.

Dianne Bennett elected NNCC student president

Student body officer elections were concluded yesterday at Northern Nevada Community College and Dianne Bennett, a write-in candidate, was selected president, according to Louis Horton, election coordinator.

Karen Rogers was the other presidential candidate. In the vice presidential race Allan Hansen defeated Darrell Escalanti.

Unopposed candidates were secretary Ann Henderson and treasurer Ramona Scott.

Kay Quist, a write-in candidate, was elected as a full-time female representative. In another uncontested election, Richard McClure was selected full-time male representative.

The election concluded yesterday and votes were tabulated last night, Horton said. A total of approximately 70 individuals voted, he added.

Record enrollment announced by NNCC

Record high enrollment figures at Northern Nevada Community College have been announced by Dr. Bill Berg, college president.

Berg recently informed the college's advisory board the number of students enrolled for the spring semester was 1,337 with an additional 116 registered for the spring alternate semester for a total of 1,453.

That compares with a total of 1,278 registered for fall classes, and 1,207 registered at this time last year.

Berg said the spring total is the largest enrollment ever recorded by NNCC. Included are students at Elko, Battle Mountain, Ely, Owyhee, Winnemucca, Wells, Eureka and McDermitt.

The full time equivalent (FTE) is now 433.25. FTE is determined by dividing the total number of class units taken by 15, an average load for a full time student. The FTE figure is used as a basis for allotment of state money to the colleges.

The fall FTE figure was 412.64, and the figure last year at this time was 359.71.

Berg noted the totals do not include several hundred individuals in community service, adult education and English as a Second Language classes.

ELKO MAYOR George Corner (right) signs a document proclaiming today as "Day of the Knights" while Diane Bennett, Northern Nevada Community College student body president, observes. This week NNCC students will solicit funds for student activities not financed by state funds. Among the activities benefitting from the fund drive is the college rodeo club.

NNCC starts fund drive

Students at Northern Nevada Community College are beginning a fund raising drive today, collecting money to support activities such as the college rodeo team.

Louis Horton, student body government adviser, said the students will be visiting local businesses during the next few days to collect money for activities not funded by the state.

Elko Mayor George Corner has signed a document proclaiming today as "Day of the Knight," signaling the start of the drive.

"Most of the money will go to support the college's fine rodeo team as they compete in rodeos throughout Utah and Idaho," said Horton.

dent, met yesterday for the first time following last week's election. Officers not pictured are Kay Quist, full-time female representative, and Richard McClure, full-time male representative.

College schedules registration

Registration for spring semester classes at Northern Nevada Community College will be held at the college library this Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Students may register between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. on Wednesday and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

In addition, there will be late registration on Monday, Jan. 14, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Wednesday evening, Jan. 16, from 6 to 9 p.m.

There is a charge of $13 per credit hour for each class which must be paid at the time of registration, and new students must pay a $5 application fee. There is no charge for students who are 62 or older.

Big increase in NNCC population

A sizeable increase in student population, both in terms of those actually registered and full-time equivalent (FTE), has been announced at Northern Nevada Community College.

In the five counties served by the college, there are 1,569 total registered students, and 405 FTE. The FTE number, which is used to determine state financial aid to the school, is derived by dividing the number of units taken by students by 15, which is assumed to be a full class load.

Dr. Charles Greenhaw, dean of off-campus programs, noted that enrollment has doubled at Battle Mountain, where there are now 160 students including those in adult education.

"The gain is substantial," said Greenhaw. He noted there are now 30 more full-time students than at any time in NNCC history. The previous high was set in 1974.

The student population figures "mean we're not a small college anymore, except for staffing. We're in the mid-range." He said the figure of 1,569 total students places the college "with 70 percent of the community colleges, which have 1,000 to 2,000 students."

Greenhaw added, "We are held down by a lack of personnel and facilities to deal with the needs of a huge five-county area. There is obviously a surging interest on the part of the people for self-improvement education and general education."

"There is a great deal of potential, but we need more resources."

Boards heading for clash over road slicing campus

By DICK SNYDER
Special to the Journal

ELKO — The Elko City Planning Commission has approved a plan which may force a confrontation with Northern Nevada Community College over rights-of-way for a proposed road.

The planning panel recently approved a city engineering department report calling for development of a frontage road on the north side of the projected Interstate Highway 80 bypass which will begin west of Mountain City Highway and end next to Ruby View Golf Course.

The site for the proposed frontage road is on undeveloped community college land.

University of Nevada regents last month rejected a city plan for the frontage road. Regents followed the recommendation of the Elko advisory committee in their rejection.

The college hopes to use the land for additional classroom space some day.

City Manager Barry Thompson said the city may consider condemnation proceedings in order to acquire the property. A college offer to issue a revokable permit for access was rejected by the city because the college could cancel the permit at any time.

Thompson said the city was told the frontage road would divide the campus into two sections. City planning commissioners noted that the bypass already will have divided the land.

The city manager said that if the council approves plans for the road, and if regents still oppose them, condemnation procedures might be initiated.

The city also is investigating the possibility of the county, the state and the federal government participating in cost of developing the road.

Panel approves road on NNCC property

The Elko City Planning Commission last night approved a plan outlined by the city engineering staff for a frontage road on the north side of the Interstate 80 bypass which will begin west of Mountain City Highway and end adjacent to Ruby View Golf Course.

The plan calls for the acquisition of an easement on undeveloped Northern Nevada Community College property north of the bypass which the University of Nevada Board of Regents following a recommendation from its local advisory board — rejected during a meeting about a month ago in Elko.

City Manager Barry Thompson last night told the planning commission that the regents were willing to grant a revokable permit. However, Thompson said it would be a waste of taxpayers' money to build a frontage road along the college land which could be closed at anytime.

In addition, Thompson said the regents did not present a master plan for the undeveloped area or indicate when the parcel would be developed. The city manager stated that the regents and the local advisory board thought the placement of the frontage road north of the bypass and south of the undeveloped college land would divide the campus into two sections.

Several planning commissioners said the bypass already divides the campus. Thompson explained that the regents and the local advisory board are concerned about the traffic along the frontage road which will increase as areas north of the freeway are developed.

The city has proposed exchanging property north of the college land for the easement.

Thompson said if the city council approves construction of the road and the regents still are reluctant to grant an easement, condemnation procedures could be initiated.

Planning Commissioner Tony LaMorte suggested the city should investigate the possibility of constructing a jogging trail along the frontage road.

The city administration was instructed to investigate state, federal and county participation in financing the project.

NNCC reviewed for re-accreditation

Five educators from Western states are at Northern Nevada Community College this week to evaluate college programs for accreditation purposes.

The Elko campus is on the last year of a five-year accreditation previously granted. The accreditation period normally lasts five years, and assures students that classes they take at NNCC will be accepted for transfer to other colleges and universities.

NNCC Professor Paul S. Hanna explained the accreditation process began last year when every staff member prepared a self-evaluation of the college programs.

These self-evaluations were submitted to a steering committee which compiled them into a booklet that was submitted to the team which is here this week. Hanna explained the publication contains both the college's strong points and deficiencies.

Members of the local steering committee were Hanna, who served as chairman, Dr. Bill Berg and Amy Emerson.

The evaluation committee from the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges consists of Raymond L. Stone, chairman, dean of the college at North Idaho College in Coeur d'Alene; Edwin D. Hayes, dean of instruction at Treasure Valley Community College in Ontario, Ore.; Robert C. Roberts, director of Renton Vocational Technical Institute in Renton, Wash.; Edward P. Smith, president emeritus of Grays Harbor College in Aberdeen, Wash.; and Grant R. Thomas, professor of marketing at Eastern Washington University of Cheney, Wash.

The evaluation committee has met with local college staff and visited classrooms while reviewing the information in the self-evaluation.

JUDY COLE, who has been at Northern Nevada Community College for three years and has taught English as a Second Language for two, has resigned because of her husband's transfer to Montana. She has also coordinated the adult basic education program for the past six months. Her replacement has not yet been named.

Sept. 11, 1979 NNCC enrollment shows big increase

Preliminary enrollment figures show a big jump in the number of students at the Elko campus of Northern Nevada Community College, according to college president Bill Berg.

He noted the figures are not official. The chancellor's office will release the official figures sometime next month after all enrollments, including those for the alternative semester, have been tabulated.

As of today at the Elko campus, there are 650 actual students enrolled, and a full time equivalent (FTE) number of 250. Berg explained the FTE is derived by dividing the number of class hours taken by 15 units, which is considered an average load.

The FTE is used to determine state financial aid to the college.

Last year at this time, there were 570 actual students and an FTE of 204.

The figures are only for the Elko campus.

Berg said he doesn't know the cause of the 18 percent increase in FTE at the college. "But we're sure going to find out. We want to keep it going," he said.

He added this year's hike is the largest increase ever in one year. He had projected a growth rate of four to five percent, which has been historically accurate for the college.

Not included in the Elko figures are off-campus programs, which are coordinated by Dr. Charles Greenhaw, dean of the programs.

Off-campus locations consist of McDermitt, Winnemucca, Battle Mountain, Ely, Eureka, Owyhee, Wells and Jackpot. He said additional programs may be started this year at Austin and Tuscarora.

Greenhaw said the off-campus programs have traditionally accounted for half the head count and a third of the FTE at NNCC, but he said enrollment in the programs may be down slightly this year. He noted Winnemucca, where enrollment closes Friday, has recorded a small drop in students from last year.

Enrollment is open for next several weeks at the other locations.

He said the program has been hampered this year because of lack of facilities for classes such as welding in Battle Mountain and Winnemucca, and by a reluctance of those living in rural areas to travel to towns for the classes because of the increasing cost of gasoline.

Dr. Charles Greenhaw, dean of the off-campus program, said there should be an increase in the satellite programs as well.

The only city which has closed registration is Winnemucca, and there appears to be an increase of five to seven FTE there, or a 10 percent gain.

Off-campus locations in addition to Winnemucca consist of McDermitt, Battle Mountain, Ely, Eureka, Owyhee, Wells and Jackpot. Additional programs may be started this year in Austin and Tuscarora.

Enrollment for classes in those locations is open for next couple of weeks, Greenhaw said.

Enrollment tomorrow for diploma program

Persons wishing to enroll in the Elko County School District's Adult High School Diploma Program may do so at Northern Nevada Community College tomorrow from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Don Elser, director of the adult education program in the county, said that the program operates on the open entry-open exit concept and that persons may enroll at any time and may leave the program at any time.

The program is free of charge to all adults and is aimed at helping them to complete the course work for a high school diploma. An adult is defined as a person 17 or older who has had their education interrupted for a period of at least six months. Any person of the compulsory school age not attending regular high school must have the permission of the principal, superintendent and county judge to enter the program.

A person can earn either a standard diploma or a General Education Development diploma (GED) in the program. The standard diploma requires 17 credits, including three English credits, two in social studies, one in math, one in science and 10 elective units.

For the GED diploma, seven credits are required, two in social studies which must include U.S. History and U.S. Government and five electives. In addition a person must pass the General Education Development battery of five tests (English, social studies, math, science and literature), which are administered by NNCC for a fee of $10.

According to Elser, a credit will be granted on the basis of 100 clock hours of classroom instruction; a half-credit for 50 clock hours of classroom instruction; and completion of the minimum objectives of the course.

The subject material and course of study will be at least equivalent to that of a regular high school.

In addition to Elser, those involved in the program include: Pat Karas, secretary, responsible for registration and records; Ted Burner, instructor in social studies and day and evening math and science; Jackie Burr, instructor in English and reading, day and evening; and Don Brown, evening math instructor.

The adult program begins Tuesday, Sept. 4, and concludes June 7, 1980, with classes taught from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

In Elko, the program is located at the Learning Center at NNCC, telephone 738-8493, Ext. 39. In Wells persons interested can contact the principal at Wells High School, 752-3477; and in Owyhee they can call the principal at Owyhee High School, 757-3400.

Northern Nevada Community College will be accepting vocational training or pre-vocational training or preparing for university study. scholarship application for the 1980-81 school year until May 1, according to Terry Cataline, college scholarship officer.

Several scholarships have already been awarded for the next school year, Cataline reported.

To apply for the remaining scholarships, interested individuals can contact the college's student services office or Cataline at the financial aid office.

Scholarships at NNCC are granted for a variety of reasons, Cataline said, including reward for academic achievement, attracting students who will contribute to the college's activity and community service programs, and assisting students seeking

NNCC granted re-accreditation

Northern Nevada Community College has been re-accredited for five years by the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges, according to information received by NNCC President Dr. Bill Berg.

Berg recently received a letter from James F. Bemis, executive director of the association, which read in part, "I am pleased to report that the accreditation of Northern Nevada Community College has been reaffirmed."

Bemis suggested NNCC conduct a self-study of its programs and be visited by a full evaluation committee in 1984. In addition, the college is to submit a progress report in 1982 on suggestions made in the accreditation report, with emphasis on three of the suggestions.

The three recommendations are among 10 made by the accreditation committee of the commission on colleges of the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges. They were made in a 28-page report provided to the college.

The recommendations specified for review are:

- "It is strongly recommended that the faculty and administration work closely together to present a unified, broad-based participatory effort in order to create a stronger self-image within the college service area."

- "The college should have a multi-purpose building which should house the following: physical education programs, student personnel services, intramural programs, student recreation area and food service, faculty offices, and storage space."

- "Instructional services in the outlying extension centers should be strengthened and monitored much more carefully in all areas."

Other recommendations in the report include a restructuring of administrative duties, appointment of an administrator with authority and responsibility for instructional programs, and development of in-service training for instructors."

Berg told the University of Nevada regents about the re-accreditation at last week's regents' meeting, and the regents responded with praise for NNCC and with congratulations.

Professor Paul S. Hanna was chairman of the NNCC committee which conducted a self-evaluation of the existing college programs. That report was used as a basis for the review by the group of educators who came to NNCC as members of the accreditation committee of the accrediting association.

NNCC Scholarship Deadline Announced

Northern Nevada Community College scholarship funds for the 1980-81 school year have increased by 20 percent over the previous year, according to Terry Cataline, financial aid and scholarship officer for the college.

"We awarded $13,700 in scholarships last year and have already located more than $16,500 in scholarship funds for the 1980-81 school year," Cataline said.

Deadline for first priority scholarship consideration for the upcoming school year is March 1, Cataline said.

However, scholarship applications will be accepted during a late filing period of March 2 to May 1.

"An applicant's chances of receiving a scholarship are much less during the later period," the financial aid officer stated.

The college's scholarship application process for the next school year has been simplified with the development of a one-page application form which is useable for 90 percent of the scholarships offered, Cataline commented.

NNCC's list of scholarships include 10 Fleischmann Scholarships, each worth $450 a school year; five Knights of Pythias Scholarships, each worth $200 a school year; four Jogathon Scholarships, $100; two Health Occupation Indian Scholarships, $400; two Elko Kiwanis Club Scholarships, $100; one Elko Police Department Employees' Association Scholarship, $500; and one Lila Sam Nursing Scholarship, $1,000.

In addition, 100 tuition grants-in-aid are available for the upcoming school year to full- or part-time students.

Individuals interested in additional scholarship information or applications can contact Cataline at the NNCC financial aid office or call 738-8493.

& DONATIONS

NNCC financial aid deadline announced

Northern Nevada Community College students seeking financial aid for next school year have until July 1 to submit applications, according to Terry Cataline, NNCC counselor.

In addition, veterans interested in using their educational benefits at NNCC should contact the college well before fall registration begins.

Students submitting applications after July 1 "cannot be guaranteed financial aid during the fall registration," Cataline said, "when tuition must be paid."

Students of all ages, who are planning to attend at least two classes a semester, are eligible for financial aid programs, he said. All students must make satisfactory academic progress to remain eligible for the aid programs.

During the past year, at least 150 full- or part-time NNCC students received financial assistance, Cataline reported.

Students from middle-income and low income families are encouraged by Cataline to contact the NNCC student services or financial aid office for additional information.

Veterans should contact Cataline or Cindy Edwards, veterans' advisor assistant, sometime before fall semester registration which will be conducted from Aug. 27 to 29.

According to Cataline, who serves as the college's veterans' adviser, NNCC offers programs transferable to any university, vocational and skill-building classes, and interesting courses in a wide variety of areas that are approved for Veterans Administration benefits.

A veteran is eligible for educational benefits if he or she served for more than six months on active duty and was discharged under honorable conditions. In most cases, according to Cataline, the veteran is allowed 10 years from the date of separation from active duty to use the educational assistance benefits.

In addition, a surviving spouse or child of a deceased veteran or of a 100 percent disabled veteran, is eligible for benefits while obtaining college training, he stated.

Cataline reported that more than 75 veterans from Elko and surrounding communities received G.I. Bill benefits while attending classes at the Elko campus during the 1979-80 school year. One-third of the students from the college's last graduating class were veterans, he said, and several are planning to transfer to universities to complete their studies.

The current monthly allotment from the G.I. Bill toward training at NNCC is $311 a month for a single veteran attending on a full-time basis. A married veteran with a child is entitled to $422 a month as a full-time student.

Cataline said appointments can be made by calling the college (738-8493) or visiting the campus veterans' office.

REPRESENTATIVES OF three federal agencies distributed information about their employers and about job opportunities yesterday at Northern Nevada Community College. Participating were, from left, Lynda Armentrout, Bureau of Land Management archeologist; Jerri Jones, program assistant for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service; Kathy Foster, hydrologist for the Forest Service; Barbara Farmer, personnel assistant for the Forest Service; and Bonnie Whalen, engineering technician for the Forest Service.

Federal agencies present job information at NNCC

Representative from several federal agencies will visit Northern Nevada Community College on Wednesday to discuss career opportunities with NNCC students and other interested persons.

Booths will be set up in the library building from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. for the informal program.

Informational material will be available, and agency representatives will describe career opportunities, qualification requirements and application procedures. All types of positions - including permanent, part time, technical and internships - will be discussed.

Agencies represented will be Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management, Federal Aviation Agency, Soil Conservation Service, Farmers Home Administration and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Specific opportunities for women and minorities will be included in the presentations.

NNCC Financial Aid Deadline Approaches

Northern Nevada Community College students seeking financial aid for the next school year have until July 1 to submit applications.

According to Terry Cataline, NNCC Counselor, students submitting applications later than July 1 cannot be guaranteed financial aid during the Fall registration, when tuition must be paid.

Acceptance to one or more of the financial aid programs is based on the student's assets and ability to pay for college expenses. National evaluation services (either the American College Testing Company or the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant) are used by NNCC to make this determination.

Students of all ages planning to attend half-time (six credit minimum or two classes per semester) may apply for aid. All students must make satisfactory academic progress to remain eligible for these programs.

During the past year at least 150 full or part-time students received financial aid helped make it possible for them to complete university - transfer or vocational classes at NNCC.

Specific programs administered by NNCC include the College Work-Study program, Basic Educational Opportunity program, B.I.A. scholarships, two student loan programs and several others to serve student needs.

Students from financially - pressed middle-income families, as well as individuals with low income during 1979-1980, are encouraged to contact the NNCC (Elko) Student Services or Financial Aid Office for further information (738-8493).

Elko college receives Fleischmann donation of $180,000

Bill Berg, president of Northern Nevada Community College, yesterday received a grant in the amount of $180,000 from the Max C. Fleischmann Foundation for the purchase of a variety of equipment needed by several different departments at the school.

Berg explained the college had been invited to submit a request to the Fleischmann Foundation listing equipment which was needed, but which likely would not be funded through regular channels in the state university system. He noted local college officials were pleased to learn all eight priority categories in the request had been covered by the Fleischmann grant received yesterday.

The eight categories are:

- Audio-Visual-Tutorial Study Center,

$50,555.

- Agricultural Program Equipment, $51,000.

- Computer-Assisted and Self-Teaching Programs Equipment, $19,000.

NNCC Tells Vets About College Benefits

Veterans interested in using their educational benefits at Northern Nevada Community College should contact Terry Cataline, NNCC veteran's advisor, as soon as possible before the Fall Semester registration which will be conducted from Aug. 27-29.

According to Cataline, the college offers programs transferable to any university, vocational and skill-building classes, and interesting courses in a wide variety of areas that are approved for Veterans Administration benefits.

A veteran is eligible for educational benefits if he or she served for more than 6 months on active duty and was discharged under honorable conditions. In most cases, the veteran is allowed 10 years from the date of separation from active duty to use the educational assistance benefits, he said.

The entitlement period for a veteran who served at least 18 months of active duty is 45 full-time months of schooling. If six to 18 months were served, a reduced entitlement is available, he added.

In addition, a surviving spouse or a child of a deceased veteran or of a 100 percent disabled veteran, is eligible for benefits while obtaining college training.

The current monthly allotment from the G.I. Bill toward training at NNCC is $311 a month for a single veteran attending full-time (12 or more credits a semester), he added. A married veteran with one child is entitled to $422 a month if a full-time student. Part-time benefits are also available.

Cataline reported that more than 75 veterans from Elko and surrounding communities received G.I. Bill benefits while attending classes at the Elko campus during the 1979-80 academic year.

He said, at the college's graduation ceremony May 12, one-third of the graduates were veterans and several of them are planning to transfer to universities to complete their studies.

Cataline and Edwards are both veterans. Cataline is an Air Force Vietnam-era veteran who utilized the G.I. Bill to obtain a master's degree in Counseling. Ms. Edwards is an Army veteran and currently an NNCC student.

Cataline said appointments can be made by calling the college or visiting the campus veterans office in Elko.

Police association offers NNCC grant

A $500 scholarship at Northern Nevada Community College has been provided by the Elko Police Department Employee Association.

Called the Administration of Justice Scholarship, the grant is meant to encourage Elko County residents to pursue education in administration of justice classes.

The total value of the scholarship is $500, with $250 available each semester. A scholarship of less than $250 may be awarded at the discretion of the association's scholarship committee.

Recipient of the scholarship will be named by the association committee.

Application forms are available from the police association or from the student services office at the college.

NNCC takes scholarship applications

Northern Nevada Community College will be accepting scholarship applications for the 1980-81 school year until May 1, according to Terry Cataline, college scholarship officer.

Several scholarships have already been awarded for the next school year, Cataline reported.

To apply for the remaining scholarships, interested individuals can contact the college's student services office or Cataline at the financial aid office.

Scholarships at NNCC are granted for a variety of reasons, Cataline said, including reward for academic achievement, attracting students who will contribute to the college's activity and community service programs, and assisting students seeking vocational training or preparing for university study.

Additional types of financial aid are available at NNCC based on a student's demonstrated financial need, Cataline commented.

Financial Aid For All Ages At NNCC

Wells Progress 12-21-79

Financial aid at Northern Nevada Community College is not just for younger students, according to Terry Cataline, college counselor and scholarship officer.

At NNCC, Cataline said, students from ages 17 to 55 currently receive financial aid to assist in their schooling.

For the price of a 15-cent stamp and a half hour of time to fill out an application, an individual can find out if he qualifies for a Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG) of up to $950 per year to help in attending the college to learn skills or to earn a college degree, he added.

Beginning with the fall 1979 semester, students from families having incomes up to $25,000 have a good chance to qualify for a grant that can help with the cost of tuition and books at NNCC.

The minimum amount under the grant is $250 a year.

Nevada college students received more than $5 million during the last school year in financial aid and a total of $6.4 million will be available this school year, Cataline reported.

In addition to the basic grant, the college offers seven other types of financial aid to assist students. Part-time jobs under the college work-study program are available for students who qualify for financial aid.

In addition, scholarship programs and low interest loans are available.

The earlier an individual applies for financial aid, the better are chances for securing aid in time for payment of registration fees and buying materials, Cataline stated.

NNCC scholarship deadline announced

Northern Nevada Community College scholarship funds for the 1980-81 school year have increased by 20 percent over the previous year, according to Terry Cataline, financial aid and scholarship officer for the college.

"We awarded $13,700 in scholarships last year and have already located more than $16,500 in scholarship funds for the 1980-81 school year," Cataline said.

NNCC Scholarship Funds Increase 20 Percent

Elko Independent 2-14-80

Northern Nevada Community College scholarship funds increased by 20 percent over the previous year, according to Terry Cataline, financial aid and scholarship officer for the college.

"We awarded $13,700 in scholarships last year and have already located more than $16,500 in scholarship funds for the 1980-81 school year," Cataline said.

Deadline for first priority scholarship consideration for the upcoming school year is March 1, Cataline said.

However, scholarship applications will be accepted during a late filing period of March 2 to May 1.

"An applicant's chances of receiving a scholarship are much less during the later period," the financial aid officer stated.

The college's scholarship application process for the next school year has been simplified with the development of the one-page application form which is useable for 90 percent of the scholarships offered, Cataline commented.

NNCC's list of scholarships include 10 Fleischmann Scholarships, each worth $450 a school year; five Knights of Pythias Scholarships, each worth $200 a school year; four Jogathon Scholarships, $100; two Health Occupation Indian Scholarships, $400; two Elko Kiwanis Club Scholarships, $100; one Elko Police Department Employees' Association Scholarship, $500; and one Lila Sam Nursing Scholarship, $1,000.

In addition, 100 tuition grants-in-aid are available for the upcoming school year to full- or part-time students.

Individuals interested in additional scholarship information or applications can contact Cataline at the NNCC financial aid office or call 738-8493.

NNCC scholarship deadline March 1

March 1 is the official deadline to apply for scholarships to Northern Nevada Community College.

Applications are available at Lowry High School.

Students may apply through May 1. However, an applicant's chance of obtaining an award decreases during the late period, according to Terry Cataline, NNCC scholarship officer, of Elko.

More than $16,500 in scholarship funds are available for the 1980-81 school year, Cataline said.

Last year, the school awarded $13,700 in scholarships.

consideration for the upcoming school year is March 1, Cataline said.

However, scholarship applications will be accepted during a late filing period of March 2 to May 1.

"An applicant's chances of receiving a scholarship are much less during the later period," the financial aid officer stated.

Alkie Mariluch wins Fleischmann grant

Alkie Mariluch, a student at Northern Nevada Community College and a member of the school's rodeo team, has received a $225 Fleischmann Scholarship, according to Terry Cataline, NNCC financial aid officer.

The merit scholarship is awarded to individuals in a vocational degree program at NNCC, Cataline explained.

Mariluch, employed at Elko Livestock Co., is an auto mechanic student at the college and plans to continue his education at the Elko campus next year studying business.

The NNCC scholarship committee screened the scholarship applications and selected which student would receive the award, Cataline reported.

NNCC's scholarship funds for the 1980-81 school year have increased by 20 percent over the previous year, Cataline said.

For the 1979-80 school year $13,700 in scholarships was awarded while more than $16,500 in scholarship funds for the next school year is available.

Deadline for first priority scholarship consideration for the upcoming school year is March 1, he added. However, scho-

K. Bear wins psychology cash award

Kenneth Bear, a student at Northern Nevada Community College, is the winner of a $500 cash award from the Scott, Foresman - Floyd R. Ruch undergraduate psychology scholarship committee in Illinois.

Applicants competed for the award by writing a 750-word essay on the subject "Future of Psychology," which was judged on the basis of originality and knowledge of subject matter.

The award is offered by Scott, Foresman and Company in the name of Floyd L. Ruch, whose contributions to psychology have been important and far-reaching, a college spokesman said.

After graduation from NNCC, Bear plans to transfer to Boise State College in Idaho to participate in a graduate program in psychology.

Bear is the son of Harold H. Bear of Jerome, Idaho.

Pythias trustee; Bill Wunderlich, NNCC advisory board chairman; and Everett Wayman, Knight of Pythias trustee. Not pictured is Harry Forcier, chancellor-commander of the Elko lodge.

Knights of Pythias donates $10,000 for NNCC's trust fund

Elko Lodge No. 15 of the Knights of Pythias has donated $10,000 to Northern Nevada Community College to establish a trust fund.

The money may be invested in securities, real estate or other investments permitted under state law for trust funds. Income collected from the fund will be granted to "needy and deserving" students from Elko County or Nevada who are attending NNCC.

Scholarships from the fund will be used to pay for a student's book fees, tuition fees, room and board, or other fees incurred by a student.

According to Charles Greenhaw, dean of off campus programs, income from the trust fund should provide between six and 10 scholarships annually to NNCC students.

In addition, Greenhaw said the college hopes to start a foundation if similar donations are received. He explained donations may account for a larger percentage of assistance funding for students because the federal and state governments are beginning to reduce the amount of funds to colleges.

The trust fund will be known as the "Elko Lodge No. 15 Knights of Pythias Trust." The trust shall be administered by the college president, college advisory board chairman and the county school superintendent.

The Knights of Pythias is a fraternal order similar to the Masons, according to a spokesman for the organization.

William Wunderlich (left), a member of Northern Nevada Community College's scholarship committee, congratulates Vickie Roysdon, a senior at Elko High School, following an announcement she will receive a Fleischmann Community College Scholarship for next school year. Tomorrow is the last day the college will accept scholarship applications for the 1980-81 school year, according to Terry Cataline, NNCC scholarship officer.

Creative Dance class offered at college

Creative Dance, beginning modern dance, will be one of the new classes offered through Northern Nevada Community College the coming semester.

Sherrie Waggener will teach the class, listed under physical education and recreation in the college's schedule of classes.

Waggener received a bachelor's degree in theater arts from the University of Southern Mississippi and a master's degree in modern dance from the University of Utah.

She performed on the USO tour to the Orient in 1969, with the United Nations tour to the Middle East in 1976, and as choreographer and performer for the Alberta Contemporary Dance Theatre in Canada from 1975 to 1977.

The dance class will meet at the Girl Scout House across from the city park each Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. and each Thursday at 7:30 p.m. from Jan. 15 through March 28. A Wednesday night class has been tentatively scheduled by the instructor for those unable to meet the college's schedule or who wish to have an extra class during the week.

Waggener may be contacted about the classes in person at late registration Jan. 16 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the college library.

The class will provide movement exercises to strengthen and stretch the body; movement composition; and a general introduction to various styles and techniques of dance. The instructor said she "hopes the classes will provide an incentive for students to explore their own potential with dance, not only as an art form, but also as a healthful enjoyment of increased physical coordination and mobility."

"I hope people don't think I'll make them wear pink tights and tutus, one can wear sweat pants, loose clothing, no shoes, and yes, tights and leotards if they wish — something they can move in, stretch and jump in," Waggener said.

NNCC schedules tole painting

Chris Burkham, a credentialed tole and decorative painter, will instruct a three-credit community service course in tole painting at Northern Nevada Community College this fall. This class is scheduled for Tuesday evenings at 7 p.m.

Burkham has extensive training in tole techniques, having studied under Priscilla Hauser at Tulsa, Okla., and with master teachers in San Francisco.

She explains that "tole is a French word for 'sheet metal' and is used to describe decorative painting on everything from antique furniture to glass."

She plans to emphasize oil painting techniques with some attention to acrylics and fabric dyes. Included will be mini-painting, rub-outs, valve painting and modeling paste painting.

Registration at NNCC is scheduled for Aug. 29-31, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., with an evening enrollment Wednesday, Aug. 29, until 9 p.m.

Needlework classes set at NNCC

Kay Thompson will teach a variety of needlework classes beginning April 16 and 17 at Northern Nevada Community College. Interested individuals may obtain a schedule of these classes by calling Mrs. Thompson, 738-8715, and they must enroll at the first class period.

Mrs. Thompson has, for several years, conducted needlework classes in Elko and area communities. She recently received accreditation in new design courses from the Chicago-based American and National Needlework Associations and is currently working to complete teacher certification for more advanced courses.

Among the upcoming classes are Needlepoint for Men, scheduled for Thursday evenings beginning April 16 in room 12 of the Learning Resources Building. The four-week class features basic techniques and graphics and each participant will develop an original design.

Among the classes are: Upright Plaid, a four-week Wednesday morning class (9 a.m. to noon, VT 3) which features the use of numbers, such as birthdays and social security in designs, to develop one-of-a-kind works; Needlepoint a Garden, a seven-week Wednesday evening class (VT 3) designed to teach unusual techniques and novel methods of stitching on canvas.

A Thursday morning (9 a.m. to noon, VT 3) class titled Diagonal Plaid expands on the number system used in Upright Plaid.

Persons enrolling should obtain supplies before the first class. A list of necessary materials may be obtained by calling Mrs. Thompson, 738-8715.

Handbell class offered at community college

Beginning Handbells, a one-credit community services class, is scheduled for Wednesday evenings from 7 until 9 p.m. at Northern Nevada Community College. Mary Ann Warren is the instructor.

Interested persons should register during the fall alternate semester period, Oct. 11 and 12. The class will begin Oct. 17 in the Elko High School choral room.

"Handbell ringing is fun and it is exciting," said Mrs. Warren. "This class brings people together. It is designed for those who want to make beautiful sounds, who like a challenge, and who want instant success."

Mrs. Warren noted that the City of Elko is fortunate to have a 61-piece set of quality Schulmerich handbells. She added that there is little mystery about ringing a handbell. With a few rehearsals, individuals learn to snap their wrists quickly and become part of a unique choir.

"As you grasp a handbell for the first time, you will discover one of the unique instruments of our musical world. You will quickly realize that you have only part of a complete instrument — a fragment of the whole. Normally, one person is able to perform alone on a keyboard, woodwind, brass, string or percussion instrument. But not so with the handbell. It requires several people — men and women, adults, youth and elders — each responsible for a portion of the instrument to make it complete. Handbells produce music only through a unified effort.

"We're hoping people who want to learn the basics and go on to more involved compositions will join this choir," Mrs. Warren said. "They will all appreciate the full, sonorous sound that a choir can produce with the five full octaves of handbells."

Individuals wanting more information may call Mrs. Warren at 738-3244, after 5 p.m.

Willow chair workshop set for Saturday

CETA advisory council to view NNCC class

Governor Robert List's advisory council for the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) meets at the Elko convention center at 1 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 17.

Highlight of the Elko meeting will be a visit to the diesel mechanics program now under way by contract with Northern Nevada Community College.

The program is intensive, one-year training designed to teach participants the skills necessary for maintenance and repair of diesel equipment used in mining, ranching and transportation.

Before the program began, there was no CETA training within the state which prepared diesel mechanics, according to a spokesman for the state employment security department.

Other items on the Sept. 17 agenda are the new private sector initiative program, farm machinery operator training, public service employment, youth programs and a report on current financial status.

The advisory council is composed of members appointed by the governor and is representative of geographic areas through rural Nevada. The council's role is to assist in directing and planning for the various programs under CETA.

NNCC presents two movies

Two movies will be presented during the next month by the Northern Nevada Community College English Department.

In conjunction with the Survey of English Literature class, the movie "Dr. Faustus" will be presented at 7 p.m. this Thursday at the NNCC library. Admission is free.

The film stars Richard Burton as the legendary doctor who sold his soul to the devil. Elizabeth Taylor has a cameo role in the film as Helen of Troy.

On Thursday, Dec. 6, the class will finish its discussion of the early novel with the classic film "Tom Jones," based on Henry Fielding's 18th century novel. This movie also will be shown in the NNCC library.

Instructor Genie Goicoechea noted the public is invited to both movies.

NNCC sets workshop by former Elkoan

A workshop in biofeedback and stress reduction will be offered this Saturday at Northern Nevada Community College, and again the following Saturday, Feb. 23, if there is enough interest.

Class size is limited to 15 students, and those interested must register by this Friday, Feb. 15.

The workshop will be led by Wayne Miller, a former physical therapist at Elko General Hospital who now lives in Idaho Falls, Idaho.

Miller said the biofeedback therapy can help those who suffer from tension headaches, hypertension, asthma, obesity, anxiety or loss of motor control.

"Biofeedback is nothing more than a physiological mirror, and what it basically does is help people to relax, which many find hard to do," said Miller.

In biofeedback therapy, wires from portable machines are taped or strapped to the body and measure functions such as skin temperature, muscle tension, blood flow or brain waves. Changes in these functions are registered by audio-visual stimuli such as a dial, lights, beeps or tones.

Creative thinking class to be offered at NNCC

A class in creative thinking has been added to the schedule of classes and activities for the spring alternate semester at Northern Nevada Community College. Nate Winters, professor of art education at the University of Utah, will conduct the class, which is a part of a special project funded by the Nevada Council on the Arts. Individuals wanting University of Nevada credit may enroll in Education 483 (upper division) or 683 (graduate) according to Sara Campsey at NNCC.

The one-credit class is slated for Friday, March 7 from 4 until 6 p.m. and 7 until 10 p.m., and Saturday, March 8 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The class is free to persons not interested in university credit. A $10 fee is required for those seeking UNR credit.

The class will include discussions of left-right brain hemispheric functions in art, conceptual and visual thinking. Winters is the co-author of "Art is Elementary." He has published numerous articles on visual and creative thinking, according to Mrs. Campsey.

Sewing seminars offered at NNCC April 11-12

Gloria Kramer will be conducting two sewing seminars at Northern Nevada Community College Friday, April 11, and Saturday, April 12. Her Friday afternoon session will cover decorating the home with fabric. The Saturday session will concentrate on tailoring with wool and other fabrics.

Gloria Kramer has taught in New York, Chicago and in the Northwest where she put together an educational program for the Bon Marche Store. During her 16 years with the Bon Marche she did a weekly television show on NBC on fashion and sewing.

It was during her last few years teaching in the Northwest that decorating home with fabric became new demension to sewing clothing. During these class sessions students were able to learn about making roller shades, Roman shades; how to cover table shelves, folding screens with fabrics; how to cover lampshades, and how to cover walls with fabric.

Tailoring, the subject of the Saturday seminar has changed over the past 10 years with the advent of new interfacing techniques, special pocket applications, and simplified collar construction. All of these techniques will be explored during the Saturday workshop which runs from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Fridays session on sewing for the home will take place from 1 to 4 p.m.

The seminars are partially sponsored by the Nevada Woolgrowers' Auxiliary. Cost of the seminars is $20. Individuals may enroll on Friday, April 11 at the NNCC Student Services office.

Children's cooking class set at NNCC next month

Warren Marks, a veteran chef of the Elko area, will teach a class titled Cooking by Children during the upcoming spring alternate semester at Northern Nevada Community College. The class will be open to children nine years and older who want to learn basic cooking. The $15 fee includes foods required for class use.

Four classes have been scheduled for Thursdays beginning March 6 and ending March 27. Classes begin at 4 p.m. and end at 5:30 p.m.

The first class will be devoted to the uses of Marks' basic cookie mix, a 100-year-old recipe that provides a basis for making chocolate chip, peanut butter, oatmeal and sugar cookies.

The second class will involve children in preparing a variety of breakfast dishes, including pancakes, French toast, muffins, and eggs.

In the third class children will learn to prepare hamburgers and French fires.

The last class will be devoted to simple dessets such as jello, puddings, and taploca.

Interested children may enroll until 5 p.m. on Feb. 28 or 29 at NNCC.

Newspaper course offers technology

Society's love-hate relationship with technology and change is the focus of a unique national education program this fall that links Courses by Newspaper (CbN) with a PBS television series. Northern Nevada Community College will participate in the national dialogue on technology.

The 11th offering since 1973, "Connections: Technology and Change" considers the sources and consequences of technological change and the prospects for the future of our technological society. Local course coordinator is Charles Greenhaw of Northern Nevada Community College.

More than 500 newspapers and 350 colleges and universities are expected to cooperate with PBS stations to bring "Connections" to the American public.

A nationally known speaker will supplement the course at NNCC Nov. 1 with a presentation, "Who Plays God," dealing with the DNA controversy. Issues raised in the (CbN) paper series also are probed in the thought-provoking PBS television series of the same title.

"Connections" on PBS is a personal view of the "triggers" of technological innovation by James Burke, an award-winning writer and producer for the BBC. "Connections" is co-produced by the BBC and Time-Life Films and presented on PBS by WOED-Pittsburgh with a grant from the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, Associated Companies of the Bell System, and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Both the newspaper and television series are the basis of credit and non-credit courses to be offered at hundreds of co-operating educational institutions throughout the country. At NNCC, the course carries one or two credits.

In addition, the topics covered in these series are expected to be catalysts for discussions in hundreds of communities on local and national controversies surrounding science and technology.

The CbN series is authorized by outstanding social scientists and historians who explore society's ambivalence toward change, the ethical dilemmas it creates and the impact of these changes on politics, economics, jobs, and life-styles.

In the "Connections" television series, writer and on-camera narrator James Burke pieces together the network of logic, genius, and chance that leads to eight modern inventions - including the atom bomb, computer, and production line. Each dramatic program unfolds like a detective story that frequently spans centuries and continents in search of the origins of today's technological society.

To aid readers, viewers, and students in linking the newspaper and television series, CbN is preparing a special Viewer's Guide that relates the television programs to the print materials.

For those seeking additional perspectives on the series topics, Courses by Newspaper has prepared a package of educational materials that includes a Reader-Study Guide edited by John Burke and a text by James Burke that parallels the television series.

Since its inception in 1973 at University Extension, University of California, San Diego, Courses by Newspaper has been offered by more than 1,200 newspapers. An estimated 50,000 newspaper readers have earned valuable college credit for the courses that have been offered by more than 800 educational institutions. (Submitted)

Kids Cooking Course Slated At NNCC

Elko Independent 2-28-80

A cooking class for Children has been scheduled for next month at Northern Nevada Community College.

Despite a shortage of teachers, Northern Nevada Community College officials pronounced the school ready for the new semester. Classes begin September 10. Ten new classes have been added to the fall schedule, including creative writing, nursing school requirements, pilot ground school, tole painting and Archaeology and the Bible.

Registration will be held at the Winnemucca College Center in the basement of the post office from September 4 through September 8 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Night registration will be September 5, from 7 to 9 p.m.

According to Lois Craver, coordinator for the college, enrollment is expected to increase from last spring's 300 students. Anyone over age 18, as well as high school seniors, may take the college courses. Classes will be offered in Justice Administration, art, English, office administration, home economics, social science, mathematics, and community service topics. Credits from other colleges can be applied to receive an Associate degree in Art, Applied Science or General Studies. Financial aid and veteran benefits are also available.

Fall instructors include BLM employees, area businessmen, law officers, and Lowry High School teachers

Teachers are needed for the Spring semester. According to Mrs. Craver, "We'd like to have the thoughts of the community on the courses they'd like to have taught." Instructors are needed in almost anything, including hobbies. Mrs. Craver said. Those interested in either a class or teaching, may contact her at the College Center, 623-3824.

College Vet Advisor to Visit

Veterans living in the Winnemucca area are encouraged to contact Terry Cataline, Northern Nevada Community College counselor and veteran's advisor about continuing or using their GI Bill educational training.

Cataline will be at the Winnemucca Center of Northern Nevada Community College from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, September 5th and from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. Thursday, September 6. He will counsel interested students on all aspects of college financial aid and veteran benefits.

Since educational benefits for most veterans expire 10 years after discharge, Viet Nam era veterans are urged to visit with Cataline.

The counselor will also advise prospective college students about other financial aid programs. Persons unable to meet with Cataline may call him at the Elko financial aids office, 738-8493.

Landscaping Course Offered At NNCC

MAY 8, 1980

The University of Nevada-Reno will be offering a course in landscaping at Northern Nevada Community College later this month, according to Louis Horton of NNCC.

The course will cost $23 per student and will be offered from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. on May 13, 14, 20, 21 and 22. Students completing the course will earn one UNR credit. Associate Professor Richard L. Post will be teaching the class.

Students will learn to design their own landscaping plan to improve the appearance of their home, Horton said.

To register for the class or for more information contact either Horton or Stan Aiazzi of the community college at 738-8493.

Horton explained students should sign up early because 12 students are needed before the class can be offered.

Signs designating more parking space for the handicapped students of Northern Nevada Community College have recently been installed in the college parking lot. Shown are Richard Culver, head of the maintenance department of NNCC, and Karen Emerson, NNCC student body vice president, installing one of the signs. Student body officers said handicapped students can pick up bumper decals at the student services office so they can take advantage of the added space.

NNCC plans class for bee keepers

An organizational meeting to discuss formation of a bee-keeping class will begin at 7:30 p.m. next Thursday in room 8 at the Northern Nevada Community College VT building.

The class will be taught by experienced beekeeper Barry Lipparelli of Elko. Lipparelli has seven hives which he places in the Spring Creek and Lamolle area when the bees are active.

The class will cover ordering supplies and material necessary to start a bee-keeping operation, buying bees and starting the insects into production, constructing a pre-fabricated beehive, and managing a beehive operation.

The organizational meeting is being conducted to determine public interest for the class, according to Louis Horton of NNCC.

For more information about the class, individuals can contact Horton at 738-8493 during the day, or at 738-7582 at evenings.

NNCC Jog-a-thon slated Saturday

The fourth bi-annual Jog-a-thon, sponsored by Northern Nevada Community College, will be held Saturday at 10:30 a.m. starting in the city park area.

As of this morning there had been 50 runners signed up to run the three-mile course through the streets of Elko, with additional late signups being held starting at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in the park area.

A variety of categories are being contested with awards and prizes to be given away following the conclusion of the event.

George Hernandez of Reno, who won the second race last fall, is a possible entrant on Saturday as is John Ochs of Battle Mountain, who was the fastest runner in last Sunday's Man-Mule Race. It is not known if Mark Wynne of Elko, who has won two of the first three Jog-a-thons, will enter.

One entry is Manuel Montoya, who won the first Man-Mule race last fall.

There will be free refreshments for all participants, with food and drinks to be on sale to the general public.

NNCC building plans told to Rotary Club

Building plans at Northern Nevada Community College were explained yesterday to members of the Elko Rotary Club by Dr. Bill Berg, college president.

Rotarians also heard a report on the college's agriculture program from instructor Louis Horton.

Berg noted the college has been growing steadily each year and said NNCC would benefit from student housing which would help entice students from outlying communities.

After getting approval from the college's advisory committee, the University of Nevada Board of Regents and the state, the college is now advertising the availability of its land — at a minimal yearly lease of perhaps $1 — for use by a developer to build apartments.

Rent would be low because of the absence of land cost, said Berg, and NNCC students would have priority in renting the apartments.

The college is also going to seek regent and legislative approval for construction of a third building on the Elko campus.

NNCC serves students in Elko, Battle Mountain, Ely, Eureka, McDermitt, Owyhee, Wells and Winnemucca. Enrollment has increased from 736 seven years ago to 1,453 this spring.

Not included in those figures are students enrolled in community service classes, English as a Second Language, adult basic education, and the high school diploma program. Those students bring the actual enrollment close to 2,000, said Berg.

The Elko campus was built for 750 students, and there are now 822, he pointed out. The third building will help alleviate overcrowding by providing more instructional space, a conference room, a large multi-purpose room with stage, and office space for instructors and student services.

The building is anticipated to contain 7,000 square feet.

One of the advantages of NNCC is its flexibility, said Berg.

"We are not tradition-bound. As we grow, we can add new programs and get rid of those which are not working."

He cited three examples of innovative and beneficial classes now under way: the diesel mechanic class funded by CETA; the registered nurse program directed by Georgeanna Smith; and the agriculture program directed by Horton.

Horton explained the walls are going up and the roof should soon be installed on the livestock holding facility at the college farm. Elko High vocational-agriculture students are installing a chain link fence around the farm, which is located at the old golf course.

He said drought-resistant grass will be planted at the farm.

In addition, the college is exploring the possibility of an agreement with Nevada Youth Training Center for the college to manage and operate approximately 500 now dormant acres adjacent to the center.

Horton explained fences would be repaired so the land could be grazed, and alfalfa would be grown along the freeway.

The instructor noted the Fleischmann scholarship program is concluding, and local assistance will be needed to help offset the absence of the Fleischmann awards.

He said local scholarships have been generated by the Hugh McMullen family and the Knights of Pythias, and more such funds will be needed if the college continues to grow.

NNCC Outlines Building Plans

Elko

MAY 8, 1980

Northern Nevada Community College outlined its building plans before a meeting of the Elko Rotary Club last week.

Dr. Bill Berg, college president, noted NNCC has been growing steadily over the years, and said the college would benefit from convenient student housing. He said such housing would also help entice students from outlying communities to attend the Elko facility.

Following approval from the University of Nevada Board of Regents, the state, and the college's own advisory committee, the college is now advertising the availability of its land for use by a developer to build apartments.

Because the cost of land—reportedly a minimal yearly lease of $1—is so low, Berg noted rents at the proposed apartments would also be low. First consideration at the new apartment complex would go to NNCC students.

Berg also revealed the college will seek regent approval for a third on-campus building. He explained such a building is needed because of over-crowding at the college's two existing buildings.

The college president pointed out that the facility was built to accommodate 750 students. There are now 822, not counting those enrolled in community service classes, English as a Second Language, adult basic education, and the high school diploma program.

Those students bring the actual college enrollment close to 2,000 students, according to Berg.

The third building, anticipated to contain about 7,000 square feet, will provide more instructional space, a conference room, a large multi-purpose room with stage, and office space for instructors and student services, Berg told the Rotarians.

NNCC roller skating derby set for May 3

Northern Nevada Community College will sponsor a roller skating derby to be held May 3. Entry forms are available at Rite-On T's and the college library.

A meeting will be held May 1 in the college library to discuss the derby and all entrants are asked to attend. An entry fee of $5 will be collected from all participants at the meeting.

Proceeds from the event will be donated to the Special Olympics.

Cindy Jimenez, the director of the derby's organizing committee, will also skate a 20-mile marathon for pledges to the Special Olympics.

The organizing committee also said local merchants who would like to support the NNCC student body's efforts to help the Special Olympics may donate gifts for a drawing to be held in conjunction with the derby.

People wishing more information about the derby can contact Cindy Jimenez at 738-5182 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. on weekdays or at 738-8771 on weekends and evenings.

Skating Derby Set At NNCC

Northern Nevada Community College will be sponsoring its first Roller Skating Derby on May 3. The event is a benefit for the Special Olympics, which will receive all proceeds.

Cindy Jimenez is coordinating the event with Yvonne Welch, Ted Burner and Ron Herr as committee members.

A meeting for those interested in skating in the derby is scheduled for May 1 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the college library. A college spokesman urged that potential derby skaters attend, because a $5 entry fee, must be turned in at the meeting.

The spokesman noted that Cindy Jimenez will be skating a 20-mile marathon to raise money for the Special Olympics.

Those wishing further information about the Derby, or who wish to sponsor Ms. Jimenez in her marathon, may phone her at 738-5182 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays or 738-8771 evenings and weekends.

Any local merchants who would like to help support the marathon are requested to contact Ms. Jimenez.

JOHN OCHS OF Battle Mountain nears the finish line in Saturday's Jog-a-thon a minute ahead of his closest pursuer as he made it two wins in less than a week in Elko races.

John Ochs of Battle Mountain made it two victories in less than a week in Elko area road races as he captured the Northern Nevada Community College Jog-a-thon Saturday morning, outdistancing 70 other runners over the three-mile course through the streets of Elko.

Ochs, who was the faster runner in last Sunday's 20-mile Man-Mule Race from Elko to Lamolle, turned in a time of 16 minutes, 12 seconds Saturday to finish one minute ahead of second place finisher Manuel Montoya of Elko, who had a time of 17:12.

Ochs, in addition to being the fastest man runner, was first in the 30-39 age group.

Laura LaPere was the fastest woman runner of the day, as the Elko High School junior had a time of 22:36.

Other category winners were: Shari Gerber in the girls 9 and under; Bill Alexander, boys 9 and under; Dyann Rogers, girls 10-15; Kent Jennings, boys 10-15; LaPere, girls 16-19; Greg Molyneaux, boys 16-19; Montoya, men 20-29; Marilyn Lund, women 20-29; Ann Blackburn, women 30-39; Dick Jennings, men 40-49; Brigitte Smith, women 40-49.

The businessmen's trophy, which goes to the firm with three or more runners with the fastest time went to the BLM team.

The family award, three or more runners, was won by the Morris Family; and the fastest time for a husband and wife team was turned in by Ochs and his wife Susan.

First in the 200 pounds or more, at the start of jogging category, was Jeffrey Gardetto.

Michael Rogers, age 6½ was the youngest runner, and Al Pearson, 49, was the oldest runner.

Following completion of the race, an awards ceremony was held at the National Guard Armory.

The results: Girls 9 and under — 1, Shari Gerber.

Boys 9 and under — 1, Bill Alexander, 24:0; 2, Michael LaMorte, 25:0; 3, Jon Preston Ames, 25:15; 4, Robby Morris, 31:50; Chad Alexander, 31:35; Boyd Gerber, 36:37.

Northern Nevada Community College rodeo team will be holding its annual Rocky Mountain Region college rodeo this weekend at the Spring Creek Horse Palace, according to the team's advisor Stan Alazzi.

Harley Tucker Days Rodeo and Arm Wrestling will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday and Sunday and admission will be $3 for adults, $1.50 for senior citizens and $1 for children under 12. The concession stand at the horse palace will be open.

Swanney Kirby's Bar T Rodeo Company, a Professional Rodeo Cowboy's Association contractor, will provide the stock for the rodeo and will be bringing its National Finals bucking horses and bulls, Alazzi said.

College students from schools in Idaho and Utah will attend the rodeo and Alazzi said many northern Nevada cowboys and cowgirls are attending Idaho schools. Included among them are Angie and Jill Filippini of Battle Mountain, Kyle Chapin of Battle Mountain and Sterling Wines of Ruby Valley.

Alazzi reported the money made from the rodeo will be used for scholarships to NNCC.

Trophies will be awarded to the first place arm wrestling winners. The wrestling competition is open to everyone and offers weight divisions in both the men's and women's classes. Entry fees will be $5.

Tickets for the rodeo can be obtained from NNCC or at the door.

Test date scheduled at NNCC

Northern Nevada Community College students are reminded that the Career Planning Profile examination is an admission requirement for the Nursing and Business Programs and must be taken before or during a student's first semester at NNCC.

The test is designed to aid students in vocational placement. Any person may take the test if they so desire.

The next scheduled testing date for the CPP exam is Wednesday, Aug. 8, from 8:30 a.m. until noon. The test will be given in the Vocational-Technical Building in room 6 on the NNCC campus and a $5.75 fee will be charged.

Any questions can be directed to the Student Services Office on campus.

NURSING STUDENT Ann Henderson confers with Shelly Hanna during registration at Northern Nevada Community College. Enrollment for all NNCC classes started yesterday, and continues today and tomorrow from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Dr. William Berg, college president, said first-day figures show more students registered than during the first day of registration last year.

NNCC honors nurses

The second graduating class of registered nurses at Northern Nevada Community College will be honored during a capping ceremony at 7 p.m. Friday in the college library. Also honored will be practical nursing students.

Dr. Kenneth Allen will be commencement speaker, and the faculty response will be given by Karen Martin, NNCC professor.

Georgeanna Smith, R.N., nursing program coordinator at the college, and Patricia Crookham, R.N., instructor, said the public is invited.

Nurses Blast Pharmacy Board Regulation

Nevada's nurses are up in arms over action taken by the State Board of Pharmacy that would prohibit student nurses from administering medication.

"This action has the potential of closing every nursing school in Nevada," Ruth Ann Purhonen of Elko, a member of the state nursing board, told the Independent Tuesday. "How are nurses going to learn their jobs if they can't administer medication?"

Georgeanna Smith, coordinator of the newly-accredited Northern Nevada Community College nursing program, said the state ban on student nurses administering medication first came to her attention during an April pharmacy board inspection of Elko General Hospital.

Mrs. Smith said the board examiner observed a student nurse giving medication and notified her that if the practice continued, Elko General Hospital would lose its state license.

She noted that the nurse in question was under the constant supervision of her NNCC instructor while administering the medication.

Mrs. Smith said student nurses have been giving medication as part of their medical training for the past thirty years, and said she wonders why the state board has decided now to enforce an ordinance against the practice. Mrs. Purhonen pointed out that student nurses must administer medication as a prerequisite to taking their state board exams.

The nurses have requested an investigation into the controversy by Nevada Attorney General Richard Byran.

A representative from Bryan's office said Tuesday afternoon that a legal opinion on the dispute will probably be released within three to four weeks from receipt of the nurses' request.

In a July 10 letter to the state board, Sen. Norman Glaser (D-Halleck) sided with the nurses in blasting what he termed "arbitrary and capricious" regulations.

A portion of Glaser's letter follows:

"To not allow nurses in training to administer medication under the direction of a qualified supervisor 'guts' the training program and makes the application of knowledge meaningless.

"I submit the regulation is arbitrary and capricious and will have a disastrous effect on nursing training in Nevada, and especially on the new R.N. program at Northern Nevada Community College.

"Please ask the State Board of Pharmacy to reconsider their precipitous action until the Legislature can meet and consider the questionable NRS section in light of the facts, and in full context of the nursing needs in Nevada."

Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Purhonen - both registered nurses - said citizens concerned about the state board's action should write to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy, 1281 Terminal Way, Suite 217, Reno 89502.

Organizations seek review of pharmacy board action

Three organizations have asked the state attorney general to review a pharmacy board action which jeopardizes the nursing education program at Northern Nevada Community College.

Bill Welch, administrator of Elko General Hospital, said the action is being questioned by the state nursing board, the Nevada Nurses' Association and the Nevada Hospital Association.

Welch explained the pharmacy board's private counsel ruled student nurses were not among those who could legally dispense medication. That ruling was first enforced when state agents conducted a re-licensing investigation at EGH.

Georgeanna Smith, nursing coordinator at NNCC, said the ruling jeopardizes the nursing program. Ruth Ann Purhonen of Elko, a member of the state nursing board, explained nursing students must administer medication to be qualified to take their state licensing tests.

The EGH administrator said the nursing program is in no immediate danger. He said the attorney general's opinion should clarify the situation and lead to the allowing of student nurses to administer medication.

Mrs. Smith noted student nurses have been dispensing medication for more than 30 years in Nevada. The practice is common in all nursing schools in the state, including the University of Nevada's two campuses.

Assuming the attorney general determines student nurses may administer drugs - they have historically been included under a section of the law which allows anyone authorized by the pharmacy board to do so - Welch said the pharmacy board will be asked to reconsider its decision.

If it then refuses, Welch said Gov. Robert List will be asked to step into the controversy.

The "Catch-22" situation involving the nurses - with one state board saying they must administer medication to qualify for state licensing and another saying they may not administer medication until they are licensed - also affects the hospital, said Welch.

If the hospital were to lose its state license (by using students to dispense medication), it could not then participate in a nursing program.

The hospital could also lose all medicare and welfare payments from the state, which amount to approximately 35 percent of EGH revenue, said Welch.

He said he is confident the student nurses will eventually be allowed to administer medication. That's important to him because he said he is dependent on the NNCC nursing program to keep the hospital staffed.

NNCC Is Accepting Nursing Students

Applications are now being accepted for the 1980-81 practical nursing and registered nursing programs at Northern Nevada Community College.

The practical nursing program is an eleven-month course of study that combines both nursing and general education classes. Registered nursing is a two-year program. The course sequence is built on the career ladder concept which considers the practical nursing course the first year and the registered nursing course the second year. Upon completion of the two years, students graduate with an Associate in Applied Science Degree in Nursing.

Application deadline is May 1. Student selection will be completed by June 1. Course work for those students selected for either program begins with the fall semester in September.

For application forms or information about either nursing program contact the Student Services office at NNCC or Georganna Smith, R.N., Nursing Program Coordinator.

Nurses offered NNCC class

Since January of this year, licensed practical nurses (LPNs) and registered nurses (RNs) have been required to earn continuing education units if they plan on renewing their licenses, according to Georganna Smith, R.N., director of the nursing program at Northern Nevada Community College.

She said that on April 3-4, local nurses will have the opportunity to earn Nevada Nursing Association and Nevada State Board of Nursing approved continuing education credits.

Two four-unit CE classes, Trauma I and Trauma II, will be conducted at Northern Nevada Community College, Room 6 in the VT Building, beginning at 8:30 a.m. Registration at the door is possible, but, she said, to determine space and material needs, pre-registration is encouraged.

For more information, interested persons can contact Mrs. Smith by calling 738-6961 or writing to 1363 College Ave. in Elko.

Receiving certificates were Christy Carter, Andrea Christensen, Susan Clemens, Sharon Davis, Betty Derro, Richard McClure, Pearl Mawson and Kaye Quist.

Guest speaker was Dr. Kenneth Allen, local physician and member of the school of nursing advisory committee.

Bill Davies, director of student services at NNCC, gave the welcome and introduction. School pins and diplomas were presented by Patricia Crookham, R.N., instructor and faculty advisor to the students and by Georgeanna Smith, R.N., instructor and nursing program coordinator.

Graduation marked the end of the 11-month course.

Some of the graduates have begun working at health care facilities in Elko. They will take the state licensed practical nurse exam in October.

Elko nursing program said jeopardized by state board

The state pharmacy board has taken action which jeopardizes Nevada's nursing education programs — including the one in Elko, according to a member of the state nursing board.

Ruth Ann Purhonen of Elko, a member of the nursing board, says the pharmacy board has prohibited student nurses from administering any medications.

Georgeanna Smith, nursing coordinator at Northern Nevada Community College, says she is concerned the pharmacy board action "could potentially close the nursing school" at NNCC.

The pharmacy board action came to light in April when state licensing agents inspected Elko General Hospital and found student nurses administering medication under control of their NNCC instructors.

The agents said the practice must stop or EGH would lose its state license.

Losing the state license would have a serious detrimental effect, an EGH spokesman said today.

Mrs. Smith said student nurses, under direct supervision, have been administering medication "for the last 30 years." She said the practice has been commonly followed at the University of Nevada nursing programs in Reno and Las Vegas and the community colleges in the two areas.

Mrs. Purhonen explained student nurses must administer drugs to be able to qualify to take their state licensing tests.

"If they don't get to administer drugs, they can't take the state boards," she said.

"They could never become nurses then," added Mrs. Smith.

The medication consists of pills and injections and is given under the direction of a qualified supervisor, said Mrs. Smith.

Both the registered nursing and licensed practical nursing programs at NNCC are affected, said Mrs. Smith. There are currently 10 students in each program at the Elko campus.

Also threatened is an LPN program for 12 students scheduled to start this fall in Ely.

State Senator Norman Glaser has written to the pharmacy board, saying its action is "arbitrary and capricious and will have a disastrous effect on nursing training in Nevada and especially on the new RN program at Northern Nevada Community College."

He asked the pharmacy board to reconsider its action and added the Nevada Legislature will review the situation "in the full context of the nursing needs in Nevada."

Mrs. Smith said she was particularly upset because the NNCC nursing program has just been granted its first full, three-year accreditation by the state nursing board.

Mrs. Purhonen and Mrs. Smith, both registered nurses themselves, said the community should be made aware of the pharmacy board action and the potential threat posed to the college's nursing program.

They said those concerned should write to the state pharmacy board, 1281 Terminal Way, Suite 217, Reno 89502, and to Gov. Robert List.

TUSCARORA POTTER and Northern Nevada Community College instructor Arnold Schraer stands in front of his pottery display on exhibit at the college's library for the next three weeks.

Schraer's pottery on NNCC exhibit

Colorful handmade pots, along with a photographic display showing the manufacturing of handmade pottery, are on exhibit at the Northern Nevada Community College library.

The pots and display are the work of Tuscarora potter and NNCC instructor Arnold Schraer. He has been working with clay for eight years and has lived in Tuscarora for the past three years.

The display has been on exhibit at Northeastern Nevada Museum for a month and will be at the college library for three weeks. Following the show at the library, the display will be at the Humboldt County Library in Winnemucca.

Originally from California, Schraer has been working the past several years developing a green glaze for his pottery from the natural materials around the Tuscarora area. The green glaze from natural materials is difficult to achieve while the lighter colors, brown and red are common, he states.

"I do not need manufactured (pure) chemicals to make glaze," the potter says. "I want to use what nature has produced, weathered, and put at my disposal. The unknown ingredients, often considered impurities, in local materials give life to the glaze."

He explains the Chinese in approximately the fifth century developed a green glaze to resemble Jade.

"The old miners associated light colored rock with veins of gold and silver," Schraer reports. "I associate light colored rock with a potential glaze material. Old ash dumps, mine tailings, stream deposits and road cuts catch my eye."

The only equipment he finds necessary to refine the native glaze material into a usable form is a ball mill. Pictures at the display show the process of using the ball mill to make usable material.

The ball mill is a porcelain jar containing little porcelain balls which turn on rollers. The balls crush the material into a powder within six to eight hours. The powder is mixed with ash to help it melt.

The unique variety of native materials from the Tuscarora area produce a result in the pottery reflecting the rocks of Northeastern Nevada, he says.

"Images of Sarah," a solo art exhibit featuring the work of Elko artist, craftsman and instructor Sarah Campsey, opened recently at the Northeastern Nevada Museum in Elko. The show will remain open through December 17.

Howard Hickson, director of the museum, said, "Campsey is not bound into one or two mediums - her fertile imagination and talent have taken her into multitudinous facets of art which include drawing, painting, hard and soft sculpture, costumes, weaving, macrame and batik. Each viewer will find something to like - every viewer will be amazed at the prodigious amount of excellent work."

Campsey is noted for her work in conceiving and continuing Northern Nevada Community College's Pioneer Arts and Crafts program which touches on many, many crafts from soap-making to building banjos. She earned her M.Ed (Art) from the University of Utah at Salt Lake City. In 1976 she was listed in "Outstanding Young Women of America" and was selected "Woman of the Year" for 1979 in Elko.

Her exhibition is funded by the museum with assistance from the National Endowment for the Arts through a mini-grant from the Nevada State Council on the Arts.

During the Campsey exhibition the museum will be open everyday, except Thanksgiving, to 5 p.m. Admission is free.

Thursday May 8, 1980

The Pioneer Arts and Crafts exhibit, featuring approximately 200 items, is on display until June 5 at Northeastern Nevada Museum. Showing work by students and instructors of the Pioneer Arts and Crafts program and the art department at Northern Nevada Community College, the display covers a wide range of art media and styles taught in various classes at the college during the past year, according to NNCC instructor Sarah Campsey, director of the arts and crafts program.

Classes represented will be stained glass taught by Tom

Clark, children's crochet and rag run making taught by Sara Christ, tole painting taught by Chris Burkham, china painting taught by Flora Noel, pottery taught by Wendy Benkowski, painting taught by Judy Legarza in Battle Mountain and Bill Petersen in Elko, weaving and tatting taught by Leonore Rush, and drawing and textiles taught by Mrs. Campsey. She added each year the college offers a variety of traditional and contemporary art and craft classes. A new schedule of fall and craft course offerings will be available from the college within the next few weeks. The summer offerings presently are at the student service office. In addition to the exhibit, the Pioneer Arts and Crafts Folklife Festival - which is free to the public - will be held in the park area directly behind the museum between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Saturday, May 17. Items at the exhibit and the festival will be on sale. Food booths will be open during the festival. An old-fashioned country dance will be held at the Elks Hall 8 p.m. May 17. She said it is a fund raising event for the festival and an admission charge of $4 per person will be collected at the door. A new feature at this year's festival is an oral history recording booth. Longtime residents are encouraged to bring their favorite stories and memories to be recorded for the museum and college, she said. ■ Weaving — willow chair making by Pete and Nancy Emmons of Lamolle; rug making by Sara Christ; tatting and weaving by Leonore Rush; needlepoint by Kay Thompson; spinning and weaving natural dyed yarns by Carol Hawkes of McGill.

■ Food — cheese making by Marion Wade; homemade ice cream by Lonnie Coates of Wells; pioneer pies by the Elko 20th Century Club; homemade foods by LDS Church; homemade soups and breads by Bev Copley.

In addition, Les Madigan will demonstrate metal smithing and George Marich will display his tamburitzas. Marich is a musician of Slavic descent and makes tamburitzas, an instrument similar to a mandolin. Luane Calton will have painted Nevada stone.

Last year an estimated 3,600 people attended the festival, which is sponsored by the community college, Nevada State Council on the Arts and the Nevada Humanities Committee.

Hal Cannon, Utah state folklorist, and Carol Edison will be assisting in field work again this year. The staff of Foresta Institute in Carson City will be on hand to record the festival on camera and tape.

Festival Planning Continues

Wendy Benkowski (L) and Sarah Campsey

Sarah Campsey and Wendy Benkowski, coordinators of the Folklife Festival slated May 17 at the Elko City Park, have announced a country dance will be held in conjunction with the Festival.

The dance is scheduled May 17 at 8 p.m. in the Elks Hall. Eric Sprado and other local musicians will provide dance music.

Cost of the dance will be $4.00 per person with all proceeds going to support Pioneer Arts and Crafts in the area.

In other Festival news, Ms. Campsey noted the coordinators are looking for volunteers to help in recording oral history interviews, driving shuttles and senior citizens to and from the event, and setting up and taking down the Festival.

Anyone interested in helping with the Festival in any capacity is asked to call either of the coordinators at 738-8493.

Folklife Festival Saturday

Activities for the sixth annual Pioneer Arts and Crafts Folklife Festival will begin at 10 a.m. and continue until 5 p.m. at the city park Saturday, according to an event spokesman.

In case of bad weather, the festival will be held in the Learning Resource Building at Northern Nevada Community College.

This year's festival will include ethnic music, dance and food, craft demonstrations, folklore workshops, and a variety of cowboy crafts, music, poetry, and tall tales.

A dance will be held starting at 8 p.m. at the Elks Hall with music provided by Eric Sprado, Spike Greenfelder, Jack Jones and Dewey Taufer. Admission of $4 will be charged to help defray festival expenses.

Pioneer Arts and Crafts exhibit now at museum

The Pioneer Arts and Crafts exhibit, featuring approximately 200 items, is on display until June 5 at Northeastern Nevada Museum.

Showing work by students and instructors of the Pioneer Arts and Crafts program and the art department at Northern Nevada Community College, the display covers a wide range of art media and styles taught in various classes at the college during the past year, according to

NNCC instructor Sarah Campsey, director of the arts and crafts program.

Classes represented will be stained glass taught by Tom Clark, children's crochet and rag rug making taught by Sara Ghrist, tole painting taught by Chris Burkham, china painting taught by Flora Noel, pottery taught by Wendy Benkowski, painting taught by Judy Legarza in Battle Mountain and Bill Petersen in Elko, weaving and tatting taught by Leonore Rush, and drawing and textiles taught by Mrs. Campsey.

She added each year the college offers a variety of traditional and contemporary art and craft classes. A new schedule of fall art and craft course offerings will be available from the college within the next few weeks. The summer offerings presently are at the student service office.

In addition to the exhibit, the Pioneer Arts and Crafts Folklife Festival - which is free to the public - will be held in the park area directly behind the museum between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Saturday, May 17.

Items at the exhibit and the festival will be on sale. Food booths will be open during the festival.

An old-fashioned country dance will be held at the Elks Hall 8 p.m. May 17. She said it is a fund raising event for the festival and an admission charge of $4 per person will be collected at the door.

A new feature at this year's festival is an oral history recording booth. Long-time residents are encouraged to bring their favorite stories and memories to be recorded for the museum and college, she said.

Individuals interested in helping with the recording booth can contact Mrs. Campsey at the college, 738-8493.

In addition, she is seeking individuals who will transport senior citizens and other individuals needing rides to the festival.

Meet the Cast

Lin Anderson (Allan Felix) is the managing editor of the Elko Independent and a weekend disc jockey at KELK radio. He has been very active in theater over the years, appearing in several plays including Valley Forge, The Busybody, The Importance of Being Earnest, and You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown. During high school, he served as president of the Thespian Club for two years and upon graduation was named Best Thespian for his high school performances.

He attended college in Seattle where he studied theater and journalism. He was for two years editor of his college paper, The Sentinel. Like Allan Felix, Lin is a longtime movie buff. The ads for Bogart films which appear in the program, and the movie memorabilia on stage, are from his collection. Lin's other interests include music, writing and graphic design.

Cynthia Smith (Nancy) is a librarian at Elko Grammar School No. 2. She has performed in three Elko theatrical productions: Lysistrata, Come Blow Your Horn and Valley Forge.

Dennis Goodenough (Bogie) is a schoolteacher at the Nevada Youth Training Center. He attended college at Idaho State University and earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in Drama and English. He taught school in Idaho for eight years and did some farming before coming to Elko.

Theater holds a great interest for Dennis, who has appeared in about a hundred plays. He has directed theater quite extensively and says he is looking forward to doing a lot more theater in Elko. Dennis says between his and wife Verdene's children, "We have a lot of kids."

Chuck Briggs (Dick Christie) graduated from the University of Southern California in 1967. After serving with the Army in Vietnam, he came back to live in California with his wife, Pami. In 1975, Chuck moved his family to Elko, where he teaches history at Elko High School. Chuck has appeared in several Northern Nevada Community College productions, including The White House, Black Comedy and The Odd Couple.

Chris Casey (Linda Christie) was born and raised in Elko and received her education at local schools and at the University of Nevada, Reno. Chris has been active in several community activities and is director of the annual Miss Elko County Pageant.

Past theatrical experience includes prop direction for The Odd Couple and a part in the reading of the Greek comedy Lysistrata.

She is employed at Paul Nannini's State Farm Insurance office. She and her husband, Mike, have three sons, Shawn, Pat and Brian.

Pami Briggs (Sharon Lake) is a native of the South Los Angeles area. She graduated from Culver City High School and received her BS and MS degrees from the University of Southern California. Pami and her husband Chuck moved to Elko four years ago. They have three sons.

Some of her theatrical credits include The White House, Nobody's Sleeping and The Odd Couple.

Susan Emerson (Gina) was born in Dos Palms, Calif. and has lived in many other states including Alaska, South Dakota and Indiana. A 1978 graduate of Elko High School, she is currently attending Northern Nevada Community College and will graduate in May. She plans to attend the University of Nevada, Reno, next year and major in Elementary Education.

Maxine Clarke (Vanessa) is originally from Utah where she received a BFA in theater and communications from Utah State University. She has appeared in Godspell, Dark of the Moon, Mrs. Nothing, The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the Moon Marigolds and many other plays. Maxine taught on the Zuni Indian Reservation in New Mexico and is currently teaching English at Elko

High School.

Karen Wilson, who appears as the "Intellectual Girl" is also the Assistant Director of Play It Again, Sam.

She has long been interested in the theater, whether on stage, behind the scenes, or in the audience. Karen has had experience in both high school and college productions (Ask Any Girl, Romeo and Juliet, and others). More recently, she has worked with Elko's Silver Stage Players as an actor (Wait Until Dark, Come Blow Your Horn), producer (The Star-Spangled Girl), and as a stage hand.

Verdene Goodenough (Barbara) works repairing watches at Monson's Jewelry. Her theatrical experience includes performances in church plays and community theater (The Miser, Christmas Tea). She was a student stage manager while at college and served as stage manager for the Heart Fund Melodramas. She and her husband, Dennis, have "three to seven children depending on the time of year."

Manor Conducts Training Program

4-10-80

Ruby Mountains Manor has just completed an inservice training program for the entire staff in the area of "Communication: Terminally Ill Patients and Families." The training has occurred over a three month period at different times so that staff members working shifts could attend.

The training touched on such areas as nonverbal communications, Transactional Analysis and the Simonton method of combining emphasis on the motional and stress related aspects of disease with medical treatment. Transactional Analysis is a personality theory developed by psychiatrist Eric Berne. It uses very simple labeling procedures for different functions of the person and is a highly practical tool in understanding oneself and others.

The Simonton Method is a program designed particularly for cancer patients, but enjoying wide application as a preventive health program as well as a remedy for chronic stress of all kinds. In fact, a school in California has utilized their methods to increase concentration and cooperation among students and teachers, and resulted in greatly decreased incidents of discipline problems. The Simonton approach combines approved standard medical procedures with psychotherapy and a relaxation/visual imagery technique. Findings reported at the World Cancer Congress in 1978 indicate that patients assuming an active stance in addressing important psychological issues and who use the relaxation and imagery process on a regular basis live significantly longer than predicted with an improved quality of life.

Denise Galantowicz is primarily responsible for the training, with support from the staff social worker, Sandy Brennecke. Ms. Galantowicz has a Master's Degree in Social Work and ten years' experience in numerous health settings. She has specialized training in Transactional Analysis and Gestalt therapy, and recently attended a workshop conducted by Elizabeth Kubler-Ross who pioneered study of the subject of death and dying and effected numerous changes in the medical profession in this area.

The program was offered for five hours of Continuing Education Units for nursing staff who wished to avail themselves of this credit.

Sarah Campsey

A native of Sweetwater, Texas, Sarah Campsey came to Elko in 1967 and began teaching arts and crafts part-time in 1971 at what was then known as Elko Community College (now Northern Nevada Community College).

In 1975, Sarah wrote the grant application for what would become the Pioneer Arts and Crafts program at the college. That year, she organized Pioneer Day, which drew some 500 people to the college.

Pioneer Day has evolved into the Folklife Festival of Northeastern Nevada, an annual event which has been held for the past two years in conjunction with the Pioneer Arts and Crafts exhibit at the museum art gallery.

Sarah, who was named Beta Sigma Phi's Woman of the Year in 1979, also organized Poetry at the Palm, a popular literary event held at that downtown bar. She also serves as a board member of the Elko Arts Council.

Sarah was recently chosen to participate in an independent study program to be held this summer at the University of California at Berkeley. She notes her study will be on the leisure-time activities of ranch people in the old west.

Sarah Campsey receives $2,500 study fellowship

Northern Nevada Community College art instructor Sarah Campsey has received a $2,500 fellowship to chronicle the recreation and play of "ranch folks" and cowboys in northeastern Nevada during the Great Depression.

The fellowship was given by the National Endowment for the Humanities. As a part of the fellowship program, Mrs. Campsey will attend a seminar held between June 20 and Aug. 15 at the University of California at Berkeley titled "Folks in American History."

The seminar is taught by Dr. Lawrence Levine, a folklorist.

For the project, Mrs. Campsey will interview and photograph individuals who have information on how cowboys and "ranch folks" spent their recreation time during the depression in the 1930s.

The project is titled "Recreation and Play of Ranch Folks and Cowboys in Northeastern Nevada During the Great Depression."

State AAUW holds Elko convention

Nevada members of the American Association of University Women held their state convention in Elko over the weekend which was highlighted by an awards banquet and officer installation Saturday night.

Theme of the convention, which was headquartered at the Holiday Inn, was "Reach Out and Grow."

Charlene Hunt of Elko is president of the state association. Convention co-chairmen were Linda Trontel, Pam Ridgeway and Lynda McBride.

New state officers were installed by Martha Jessup of Reno. President-elect is Loraine Scatena of Yerington; Theresa Portwood of Elko is second vice president; and Rosemary Masek of Las Vegas is recording secretary.

Special humanities awards, marking outstanding service to AAUW and to the community, were presented to Jeanne Griswold of Elko and to Irene Julian of Yerington.

Two clubs were honored for increases in membership - Fallon with 29 percent and Las Vegas with 16.

Featured speaker was Nancy Joyner, first vice president of the national AAUW.

She traced the history of AAUW, noting it was formed by women graduates of Eastern, private colleges during the 19th century, a time when it was not expected for women to work and when "women, by in large, were not part of the institutions which had control over their lives."

Approximately half of AAUW membership has been comprised of teachers, she said. Most members now are graduates of state colleges and universities rather than the private colleges attended by the organization's founders.

Mrs. Joyner said a good way to understand AAUW is to look at its legislative program.

"We believe in the rights of the individual" and are against "any form of discrimination," she said.

"We believe in equality of rights. We support ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment."

She added the ERA question has been debated within the organization, and AAUW members have not only continued support but have increased support for ERA.

AAUW recognizes the important role of the homemaker, said Mrs. Joyner, who explained she is a homemaker in addition to her post with a college in Pennsylvania. She added the organization is seeking increased membership from female college graduates who are homemakers.

In addition, AAUW works to protect the interests of "pink collar workers," or women executives.

The organization believes strongly in "fiscal and program accountability, both for the organization and for the government. Does this program work? Is it worth the cost?"

She concluded by saying that simply attending workshops and seminars such as the weekend event in Elko is not enough. She said the knowledge gained must be put into action.

"Having a college education does not mean we are educated," she added.

Emerson seeks re-election as Elko hospital trustee

David N. Emerson has filed for reelection to the District 1 seat of the Elko General Hospital Board of Trustees.

Emerson commended the hospital personnel and administration for their work during his past term as a hospital trustee in putting into effect policies involving cooperation with the Northern Nevada Community College school of nursing, for their in-service education programs, for their long-range planning for the significant growth of the hospital, and for their cost containment policy which has resulted in no room rate increase for this year despite the inflation in the general economy.

Emerson said he expects the hospital to grow and develop even more during the next several years. The hospital trustees will need to continually develop and re-evaluate policy to allow for this growth, he added.

Emerson holds a Ph.D. degree in zoology and has been employed for the past eight years as a professor at NNCC where he teaches a variety of health science courses in biology, chemistry and microbiology.

He has also served as a medical laboratory technician with the U.S. Army, as a manager with Mead Johnson and Company dealing with pharmaceutical products, as a professor at the University of Alaska, foreman of the Elko County Grand Jury, and as a high school teacher in California.

Emerson is a volunteer with the Elko Ambulance Service, state commander of the Nevada State Search and Rescue and a captain in the Elko Civil Air Patrol Squadron.

New Search and Rescue officers

Husband and wife, Dave and Karen Emerson of Elko, last week were selected state officers for the Nevada State Search and Rescue Association during a convention in Pahrump hosted by the Southern Nye County Search and Rescue Unit.

Emerson was elected 1980-81 commander for the state association while Mrs. Emerson was appointed secretary. Both are members of Elko County Search and Rescue.

Activities at the convention included a business meeting, banquet along with competition in first-aid, pistol and driving skills.

Emerson noted the National Jeep Search and Rescue Convention will be held in Elko between June 12 and 15. He added in conjunction with the convention, Gov. Robert List has declared the week of June 8 to 14 as "Jeep Search and Rescue Week."

According to Emerson, the Nevada State Search and Rescue Association is composed of more than 200 members from Elko, Churchill, Clark, Lander, Lincoln, Nye, Washoe and White Pine counties.

The national association has more than 2,500 members representing 11 states, he added.

CARSON CITY (AP) — Dorothy Gallagher of Elko has filed as a candidate for the University of Nevada regents seat being vacated this year by longtime regent Molly Knudtsen.

Mrs. Gallagher said Friday she was encouraged to seek the seat by many Elko area persons. She said she has no "big issues" at this time, and just hopes to be able to "do a good job" if elected.

Mrs. Gallagher also said she had discussed her election bid with the incumbent, and wouldn't have run against Ms. Knudtsen had she sought reelection to a six-year term. Ms. Knudtsen already has served 18 years as a regent.

Mrs. Gallagher, wife of Elko dentist Tom Gallagher, is a fourth-generation Nevadan and University of Nevada-Reno alumnus. She has served four years on the Elko County Hospital Board, including two years as chairman.

She's seeking regent's seat 3A, covering nine Nevada counties: Elko, Eureka, Humboldt, Lander, Esmeralda, Lincoln, Mineral, White Pine and Nye. There are no other candidates yet for the position.

CARSON CITY (AP) — Darwin D. Hunt, head counselor at Elko High School, has filed as a candidate for the University of Nevada regents seat being vacated this year by longtime regent Molly Knudtsen.

Hunt, 49, filed Friday, becoming the second person to seek the District 3A seat. Dorothy Gallagher, also of Elko, filed previously for the slot representing Elko, Eureka, Humboldt, Lander, Esmeralda, Lincoln, Mineral, White Pine and Nye counties.

Hunt said he thought he had "more experience with universities and needs of students" than Mrs. Gallagher.

Area residents are urged to plan time tomorrow and Wednesday to donate blood during the visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile.

Citizens in good health from ages 18 through 65 may contribute, and those who are 17 may do so with parental consent.

Hours will be from 1 to 7 p.m. tomorrow and from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday at Northern Nevada Community College, 901 Elm St.

Hundreds of local residents volunteer time and effort each drawing. Soroptimists donate coffee and Beta Sigma Phi members make cookies and staff the refreshment area.

The many volunteers from the Elko General Hospital Auxiliary assist with clerical and other duties.

Jeanne Blach and Jackie Meeks, co-chairmen for the auxiliary, said that the organization will give a $25 gift certificate to some lucky donor. The certificate may be spent in the hospital gift shop, which has just received a variety of Christmas merchandise.

Under the Red Cross blood banking system, no charge is made for the blood itself when a person is in need. A processing fee is charged. Persons using the Red Cross system are not required to replace blood used. Blood is considered a community resource available to all in time of need. The program operates on volunteer donations, according to Dr. George Manilla, blood bank coordinator.

NNCC To Transport Wool To Utah

The agriculture department at Northern Nevada Community College is again going to transport wool to Utah this spring, according to Louis Horton, instructor.

Future Farmers of America and 4-H members with sheep projects, along with owners of small bands of sheep, are asked to bring their wool to the college by May 30.

NNCC staff will then take the wool to Utah during the first week of June. The wool will be loaded on a truck on a first-come, first-served basis, and the owners will be charged on a pro-rated basis for fuel.

More information may be obtained by calling Horton at the college, 738-8493.

Kiwanis construct NNCC fence

Elko Kiwanis this week are constructing a wooden fence around Northern Nevada Community College which replaces an old barbed wire structure.

Kiwanis member Lew Caple said the college fence-making project is a community service the club is providing. In addition, the Kiwanis club locally sponsors a track meet and a basketball tournament.

Funds raised by the Elko Kiwanis group are used to send local students to Boys' and Girls' State, Caple added, along with sponsoring the local Future Farmers of America judging contest.

Caple announced that the Kiwanis will hold a Buckaroo Breakfast in the main city park during fairtime.

The breakfast will be served Aug. 30-31 and Sept. 1 near the old swimming pool location.

Money raised through the breakfast is used to fund the Kiwanis service projects, Caple explained.

University chancellor announces resignation

RENO (AP) — University of Nevada Chancellor Donald Baepler will see the university system through another session of the Legislature, then step down as of June 31, 1981.

"When I accepted the position of chancellor of the University of Nevada System, I told the Board of Regents that I did not view myself as a "career" chancellor," Baepler wrote in his resignation letter to Regents Chairman Bob Cashell.

"It is my intention to return to the University of Nevada-Las Vegas where I would very much like to play an active role in developing the Museum of Natural History, teach and do research in the department of biology," Baepler wrote.

He said he would remain through the coming year, noting "since it is a legislative year (it) should prove challenging and, hopefully, rewarding for the system."

Cashell read the letter at a news conference also attended by Regent Jack McBride of Las Vegas. Cashell said Baepler was unable to attend because of a previous commitment out of state.

Cashell said the upcoming change in the chancellor's office would provide the regents with an opportunity to study the current system and determine if they want to continue with the current type of chancellor-regents leadership or look into alternatives.

He said he would ask Baepler to join in the discussions about the direction the university system should take and in the search for a new chancellor, if it was determined to continue the current type of leadership.

If another chancellor is sought, Cashell said he would prefer to see somebody brought in from outside the state to assume the $47,500-a year position.

He said he would like to see an outside company study the university system's needs and make recommendations to an advisory group of university officials, faculty and staff members.

Cashell said he would like the leadership decisions to be made by September so the search can begin for a new chancellor, if that is the route the advisory group recommends. He said he would like the appointment to be made in time for a new chancellor to "get his baptism under fire" while the legislature is in session.

Cashell denied that reported differences between him and Baepler were behind the chancellor's decision to quit, noting that Baepler had told him two years ago he planned to serve only a couple of years. Cashell said Baepler told him about one month ago the resignation was coming.

He added that he would recommend Baepler's appointment as director of the Museum of Natural History on the Las Vegas campus.

Baepler's move will return him to the campus he joined in 1968 as vice president of academic affairs. He was named acting president in 1973 and president the following year.

He became interim chancellor in 1977 when Neil Humphrey resigned to become the president of the University of Alaska and was voted into the permanent job by the regents in spring of 1978.

Baepler said in an interview last year he missed teaching. "More than anything else in this job, I miss the day-to-day personal contact with students," he said.

Donald Baepler resigns chancellorship post

UNR System Chancellor Donald Baepler has announced his resignation from that post, effective June 30, 1981.

The news of his resignation was contained in a letter sent to the Board of Regents Chairman Robert Cashell which he read to reporters at a hastily-called press conference at 3:15 p.m. yesterday. Baepler did not attend the conference.

In the letter, copies of which were sent to all Regents members, Baepler said he had announced his resignation so far in advance to aid in a search process which must follow the resignation.

Baepler also said in the letter that he plans to return to UNLV, to teach, to research in the Department of Biology, and help to develop UNLV's Museum of Natural History. He noted that when he accepted the post, it was with the understanding that it would be a temporary position.

"I told the Board of Regents that I did not view myself as a 'career' chancellor," Baepler wrote, "but that I would be willing to accept the position for a few years, and that hopefully, we could obtain administrative stability at the presidential level during that period."

The Baepler resignation comes on the heels of charges by Las Vegas Regent Chris Karamanos that UNR associate professor of speech Paul Page and James Richardson, UNR professor of sociology had engaged in a campaign of rumor and innuendo designed to force Baepler from office and place UNR President Joe Crowley in the Chancellor's office. The two professors have been asked to appear before the Regents on May 9 in Las Vegas to answer the charges, which were first reported in the Las Vegas Sun.

At the conference, Cashell said there is no connection between the Baepler resignation and Karamanos' charges.

Cashell hinted that the Chancellor's office might be eliminated entirely from the University of Nevada System, when he said he would like to go outside the university system for "a chancellor or director or whatever is necessary." Cashell also said that he would like to use the occasion of Baepler's resignation to examine the administrative organization of the University of Nevada System.

While saying that "it is cleaner to get someone from outside the system," he did not rule out the possibility that Baepler's successor may come from the ranks of University System personnel. Cashell said further that Baepler will play a role in the research and study of the system organization, and that the new program, if there is to be one, will be functioning by the time of the next legislative session.

Cashell had praise for the outgoing Chancellor and noted his extensive work on the planning of the new UNR Sports Complex.

Elko: Boomtown Nevada

By Howard Hickson

Surrounded by sagebrush, apparently out in the middle of nowhere, is Elko, Nevada, 240 miles west of Salt Lake City and 285 miles east of Reno.

As a result of its remoteness, residents of Elko have always had to depend on themselves and have, over the past hundred or so years, created an atmosphere that combines a true frontier spirit with a metropolitan attitude that compares with a city of 50,000 rather than its present population of 10,500.

Some of Elko's "firsts" are revealing of the town's personality: first site of the University of Nevada; first county high school in the state; first community college in the state.

Yes...

Elko has a McDonald's

Nevada is noted as the entertainment center of the world, but it all began in Elko in the 40's when "big-name entertainers," like Pearl Bailey, the Dorsey Brothers, etc., headlined the Commercial Hotel.

Bing Crosby was Elko's honorary mayor for more than 20 years. Joel McRae and Jimmy Stewart owned ranches in the county.

What is there to do in a little town technically labeled "remote rural"? What on earth could a small community offer?

Near the city park is a spanking-new, award-winning auditorium and convention center. The plush theatre, with perfect acoustics, has already been the scene of cultural events ranging from the San Francisco Opera, Utah Symphony and classical guitar presentations to the big country-western stars and Wolfman Jack. The convention area has been booked and used by all sizes of organizations needing a first-rate place to hold gatherings.

Not far from the auditorium-convention center is the Northeastern Nevada Museum, located in the city park on Elko's main street. The museum has won national awards and is accredited by the American Association of Museums. Its galleries are chock-full of history, art, nature and Indian exhibits. On the museum grounds is an 1860 Pony Express building, a chuckwagon and several other pioneer vehicles. Within two years, the museum will quadruple its size with a million dollar addition and have a round theatre with automated three-dimensional exhibits and audiovisuals. The museum's slide programs have won national awards.

There are plenty of clubs and organizations; in fact, one has to be careful or they could attend meetings every day and night of the week.

Like sports or outdoor life? In several parks in the city are complete facilities for baseball, softball, volleyball, basketball, handball, soccer and tennis—just about everything. Jogging or biking on Elko's streets are not nerve-wracking, dangerous tasks.

Hunting, fishing, horseback riding, hiking and recreational vehicular activities abound! It's all there.

In July, Basques from all over the world join with visitors in the National Basque Festival, one of the most exciting times presented anywhere, with music, wine, costumes, games... and great people. In late August and early September, Elko's County Fair is partially old-fashioned with animals, bake goods, vegetables and crafts on display, but save the afternoons for four or five days of exciting horseracing with parimutuel betting. Elko has rodeos, chariot racing and lots of festivals celebrating the old West, pioneer arts and crafts, and the visual arts. Over the hill in Spring Creek is the large Horse Palace for indoor riding events and rodeos. Nearby Lamoille is the scene of a popular country fair and many steak-fries.

Northern Nevada Community College, Nevada's first, offers an array of courses for degrees or fun. One of its most popular programs is the Pioneer Arts and Crafts project that has attracted the attention and participation of the Smithsonian and National Archives.

For those who like the excitement of nightlife, there are three major casinos and hotels; two well-known Basque eating places and several quality restaurants; Elko has a McDonald's.

Paul Harvey recently announced on his daily radio program: "Freeport Gold Company's installation in Jerritt Canyon, 50 miles north of Elko, will be the largest gold mine in the nation."

This means more people will be moving to Elko and Elkoans are waiting to greet them; to welcome them to a small town with a big city feeling—one of the last frontiers of the old West.

The body of an elderly man, who apparently died of natural causes, was located this morning behind Northern Nevada Community College, according to Elko police.

Deputy Coroner Bill Webb is conducting an investigation to determine the identity of the man, who carried no identification.

The body was discovered at 10:40 a.m. on a dirt road at the former city golf course by college employees Richard Cuiver and Jesus Silva, police said.

NNCC graduation set Monday night

A total of 57 students will participate in Northern Nevada Community College graduation ceremonies at 7 p.m. Monday at the civic auditorium.

State Senator William J. Raggio of Washoe County will give the commencement address. He will be introduced by Donald Baepler, chancellor of the university system.

The graduating class will be presented by Robert Cashell, chairman of the board of regents.

The class has chosen for its theme, "Much remains to conquer still."

The valedictorian and salutatorian will be announced Monday night.

Music for the academic procession will be provided by the Elko Community Orchestra under the direction of Stephen Paul Sanders, and the College Singers will also entertain.

Dr. Bill Berg, NNCC president, will introduce guests, and at the conclusion of the graduation, the Campus Women will host a reception at the civic center for graduates and families.

There are 18 graduating with an associate of arts in liberal arts; 10 in registered nursing; four each in business mid-management, general studies, and law enforcement; two in office administration; one each in fire science, corrections, automotive mechanics, child development and secretarial science; and 10 will receive certificates of accomplishment in diesel mechanics.

Preparing for next Monday's community college graduation are Dr. Charles Greenhaw, dean of off-campus programs, and Ann Henderson, student body secretary.

Family Violence Forum Slated

A forum on family violence will be begin at 10 a.m. Saturday at Northern Nevada Community College, according to a spokesman for the Elko Committee on Family Violence.

Christine McGuire said the program is titled "Family Violence - Why?" and will consist of a series of short lectures on family violence in Elko County.

Academic humanists will lecture on family violence from historical, religious, social science and legal perspectives.

Ms. McGuire said the forum is open to the public, and a special invitation is being made to law enforcement personnel, whom she said were primarily involved in family violence cases.

She added there have been changes in the law regarding such cases, and women are now beginning to assert their rights.

Lecturers will be introduced by Charles Greenhaw of NNCC and include Elko District Attorney Tom Stringfield, University of Nevada professor Frances Hartigal, Methodist minister Rev. Sandra Gess, Western States Shelter director Susan Hornstein, and a social worker from Eastern Nevada Tribal Social Services.

The lectures will be followed by refreshments, a film, and question-and-answer period.

The program is sponsored by a grant from the Nevada Humanities Committee and admission is free.

Real estate agency meets with county licensees

Representatives of the Nevada Real Estate Division were in Elko this week to meet with licensed brokers and salesmen in the county and conduct other division business including investigations.

Three division employees, headed by Administrator James K. Jones, spent Wednesday inspecting subdivisions and proposed land sales in the county and later met with licensees in a meeting arranged by Northern Nevada Community College.

David Thompson, subdivision reviewer for the state agency, said the group inspected land around Elko and Carlin and also toured the Spring Creek area.

He added a suspected land sale violation in the county was also investigated but declined to give any details.

The meeting with the licensees was held in the county courthouse and was designed to provide the licensees with information about state license requirements and allow the division representatives to answer their questions.

Richelle O'Driscoll, education coordinator for the division, participated in the field trips and the session with the licensees.

Calligrapher to be guest at community college

Jacqueline Svaren, an internationally known calligrapher, will be the guest of Northern Nevada Community College this weekend.

At 8 p.m. Friday she will give a lecture and demonstration titled "A Love Affair with Letters." She will describe and give examples of pen lettering down through the centuries, and samples of work by her and other major calligraphers will be displayed. The program will be held in room VT-6.

A few spaces are left for a Saturday workshop on Italic calligraphy, and advanced registration is required. Those interested should contact the student services office at the college.

Mrs. Svaren lives in Portland, Ore., where she has studied under Lloyd John Reynolds. She now teaches at several colleges, and her book, Written Letters, has undergone many printings.

The practice of calligraphy has been developing in Elko for two years, and students of the NNCC calligraphy class have formed a club, Elko Scriptorium, which is co-sponsoring the Svaren visit to the college. The Nevada Council on the Arts has also provided funds for the visit.

K. Sciotto receives scholarship

Kathleen Sciotto of Elko, a graduate of Northern Nevada Community College, was the recipient of a $500 Hugh McMullen Scholarship presented during the college's May 12 graduation ceremony.

She plans to attend the University of Utah in the fall and major in pre-law studies.

Family and friends of the late Hugh D. McMullen created the scholarship fund to provide a financial incentive for one NNCC graduate each year to continue their education beyond the associate degree level, according to a college spokesman.

McMullen served on the college's advisory board from January 1971 to September 1979. He had been selected as chairman of the board for 1979-80.
