Painting Workshop
 Enrollment Still Open

Enrollment is still possible in Jackie Goodyear's oil painting workshop in the Northern Nevada Community College Art Room from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 16, 18 and 20. A third session is also planned at 7 p.m. the 19th through the 22nd. These workshops are being sponsored by the Elko County Art Club and persons wishing to participate should contact the president Mrs. John McCarthy (738-7881) or Mrs. Charles Harper (738-6458).

Featuring pastels and oils in landscapes, still lifes and portraits, Mrs. Goodyear opened her month long show at the Northeastern Nevada Museum, Aug. 22. Her work will be on display until Sept. 26.

During the Elko County Fair, the artist was one of a panel of judges for the fine arts exhibit and did portrait sketches on the fair grounds lawn.

Mrs. Goodyear has been commissioned to do portraits for several people in the Elko area. Sittings for portrait paintings by the artist may be scheduled by Mrs. Harper. This portrait painter considers herself primarily "a people painter" because her fascination for people offer her the most inspiration, she said.

Being one of the few full time women artists in the midwest, Mrs. Goodyear has her studio in Omaha, Neb., where she does the majority of her painting and teaching. Her career in the field of fine arts accelerated in 1966 when she won top awards in an eight state area, it was noted.

Mrs. Goodyear said she feels "that portrait painting is the best way to start oil painting." She stated "Some people say they aren't talented but I have the rules and formulas by which they can learn if they have the desire."

Her classes are small in number so that students have individual instruction. She presents her contemporary approach to the old masters methods and techniques.

In her spare time, Mrs. Goodyear has been exploring areas such as Lamolle, Wildhorse, Jack Creek and Mountain City in her self contained camper. Her traveling art studio is equipped with a fold-out deck and glass doors for painting in all kinds of weather.

"IT JUST HAPPENED," says Jackie Goodyear, when asked of her success as a portrait artist. In Elko from Omaha, Nebraska, Ms. Goodyear will be conducting workshops at the Northern Nevada Community College July 11-13, 9:00-4:00. Ms. Goodyear is a successful artist in that her classes are filled and often have waiting lists, her portraits are much sought after, and her paintings have won awards and are in a number of collections all over the world. However, these factors do not spell success to an artist. This artist measures her success by her ability to communicate with those who view her paintings. Whether she paints a landscape, a still life, or a "people" painting, a little bit of Jackie Goodyear goes into every one. With her bold strokes, her natural sense of composition, and uninhibited use of color, she achieves a freshness and originality that mark her paints as works of art first, and secondly, very appealing to the public. Jackie Goodyear was brought to Elko by the Elko County Art Club and the Nevada Council of the Arts. She is presently in the Elko area.

NNCC Classes To Start Wednesday

Monday, September 16, marked the opening of registration for two Northern Nevada Community classes in Wells. Dr. William Berg and Bernie Sadowski came from the Elko office to assist with the registration. The response to the two classes, Office Procedures and Career Spanish was gratifying.

Both of the classes will hold their first meeting at Wells High School on Wednesday, September 25, at 6:30 p.m. The instructors ask that you use the front door at that time.

Wednesday, September 25, was chosen as the night for both classes to meet in order to facilitate continuing registration and organization. It will be decided then which night of the week your class will meet after that and the time. If you were unable to attend Monday's registration and are interested in either of the classes, you may contact Mrs. Don Dunn (Office Procedures) at 752-3883 or Mr. Art De Goyler (Career Spanish) at 752-3301 for further information. You will be able to register for either class from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday evening. At that time the registration will officially close. Registration for other classes will be held at a later date.

We of Northern Nevada Community College would at this time like to extend our thanks to Mr. Kenneth Noble, principal, and the Elko County School District for allowing us the use of the high school building.

NNCC Changes Team Name to 'Knights' 1974

It's no offense to cowboys, but Northern Nevada Community College teams will be known as Knights in the future.

Student government officers, in a recent meeting, decided to drop the name "Cowboys." "It wasn't a slap at cowboys," explained the officers. "Actually, there were several reasons for the change. One important reason was that two blocks away are the Elko High Indians. Having Cowboys and Indians playing in the same place was a bit too much. You can imagine what the comedians would make of that if we were to have a sign with Cowboys on it."

"Another reason was that we needed a motto — something to remind people that we are, after all, concerned with education. So we came up with 'Lux et Veritas' (Light and Truth). Maybe it's not super original, but maybe in this age of technocrats it will remind us that the truth isn't all tied up in a match-box."

The student body agreed to the change in a referendum in which Knights came out slightly ahead of Cowboys. There was little verbal or visible protest, the officers said, noting most everybody seemed to think college supporters would understand, even though some might object. "We still have clubs and publications with names relating to people who work on the land — Aggies, 'The Round-up' (school paper), and the Vaquero (yearbook)," one student commented. "And our identification with the Old West will certainly continue when a rodeo club gets started."

The name change coincides with a rebirth of interest in basketball on the campus. As a signal of that renewed interest, a coat of arms, designed like a shield, was created by Sarah Campbell, art instructor. Since Knights and shields recall the Middle Ages, when Latin was still the universal language, the Latin motto was inscribed on a banner supporting the coat of arms, it was noted. A college symbol and an outline map of Nevada with a star for Elko are mounted on the shield.

The new design first appeared on blue college jackets. They went on sale last Friday and were sold out before the day was over. Also, the Coat of Arms will soon be appearing in print proclaiming "The Day of the Knights," a spokesman concluded.

Rural Enrollments Said Completed

Bernard S. Sadowski, Administrative Assistant in charge of County Centers for Northern Nevada Community College, announced today that enrollments have been completed in several towns in Northeastern Nevada.

Sadowski said Art classes are being taught by Don Collins in Owyhee. A Spanish course is offered under the instruction of Arthur DeGolyer in Wells as well as an Office Procedures class taught by Sharla Dunn. Ken Beaton is instructing a course in shorthand at Battle Mountain High School. Jim Porter is teaching Political Science in Winnemucca; also teaching in Winnemucca are Dr. Lighthouse — Photography; Mrs. Rorex — Spanish; R. Weber — Refrigeration; E. Erdeik — Accounting; and Mrs. C. Segerstrom from Imlay — Painting.

Sadowski added that enrollments are continuing in Ely, and courses are being planned for McDermitt for the Fall Alternate Semester. Interested persons wanting special classes in any locality are encouraged to call the college at 738-8493 or to write to the County Center Office, 901 Elm St., Elko, Nevada, Sadowski concluded.

College Given Grant

The Adult Learning Center at Northern Nevada Community College, has received a Right-to-Read grant of $21,710 for fiscal year 74-75.

Funds have been made available by the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Funds will be used for instruction for non-school adults who do not read, speak, or write English. Right-to-Read sites are in Elko, Wells, Battle Mountain, and Jackpot.

The current grant represents the final phase of the three-year Right-to-Read program in Northeastern Nevada.

In the first two years of the program, over 250 adults in the area have participated.

The staff of the Adult Learning Center encourages volunteer tutors for Right-to-Read. Area residents interested in volunteer help or referral of students are asked to call or visit Charles Greenhaw in the Adult Learning Center, at the college.

Elko College Included In Survey

Dr. William J. Berg, Executive Vice-President of Northern Nevada Community College, announced that the college has been chosen for inclusion in a nationwide survey of community colleges that participate in offering services for older Americans.

The Massachusetts Association of Older Americans, Inc., a non-profit statewide group organized to promote the social welfare of elders through services and education, is currently preparing a program planning guide on educational services to elders.

The planning guide will assist interested community colleges in starting and implementing programs and courses for older people. This work is being supported by the National Institute of Education which will also undertake the publication and national distribution of the final product, Dr. Berg said.

NNCC Sets Community Campaign for Support

"The Day of the Knights," a campaign to renew interest in the basketball program at Northern Nevada Community College, will be held next Thursday.

According to Dr. William Berg, executive vice president at NNCC, students will be pairing up into teams to call on local businessmen and other college supporters for donations to the college's athletic program.

This will be the only time this year the community will be asked for financial backing, Berg said. He added that in the past, the college newspaper and yearbook had solicited advertising from local merchants, but now the costs of the publications are absorbed by the school.

He noted approximately 200 letters explaining the campaign have been sent out to persons and businesses backing the college in the past. Berg and Dan Dils, president of the Associated Student Body, have been visiting local service clubs this week also explaining the program.

Berg said the basketball program will cost approximately $5,600 to operate for the year. He added the college will pay for $1,350 of the costs and the student body, $2,000 from ASB fees. Remaining is $2,250 needed from the community.

Another purpose of the campaign is to draw support for the team, Berg said. All persons giving donations will receive a booster certificate entitling them to free admission to all the home games.

This year the college has scheduled 20 games, including nine home games, most of which will be played in the Centennial Gymnasium. The Knights will be competing against teams from Weber State College, Utah Tech, American River College, Western Nevada and Lassen College. The first home game will be on Nov. 30.

Berg noted that the college plans to continue the campaign for community support once a year.

He added that NNCC wants to have a good basketball program or it will not have one at all.

A TV program, entitled "The Day of the Knights" will be shown Sunday at 7, 8 and 9 p.m. on Channel 8, cable television.

College Drive A Success

Dr. William Berg, executive vice president at Northern Nevada Community College, announced today that the "Day of the Knights" last week was highly successful and that $2,217.50 has been collected for the college's athletic fund.

He noted the goal for the fund drive to support the basketball team is $2,250 and added more donations are expected to be received.

The college is especially grateful for the generous support shown by the people of Elko and surrounding areas, Dr. Berg said.

He stressed it is possible that some names were overlooked in compiling the lists, and anyone who was not contacted and wishes to contribute may either call the college at 738-8493 and the contribution will be picked up, or it may be mailed to 901 Elm St. and a receipt and game tickets will be forwarded at once.

IN THIS BUILDING the University of Nevada was started — here in Elko — just a little more than a century ago, on Oct. 12, 1874. The university was subsequently moved to Reno, and the site where the building stood is now part of the Elko High School campus. A bell that once was in this building has been fashioned into a monument by members of the Northeastern Nevada Historical Society, and the monument marking the site will be dedicated by university regents during brief ceremonies at 11:45 a.m. tomorrow near the old EHS gymnasium, on College Avenue.

DAVID EMERSON

Dear Concerned Citizen: I am glad that I have personally had the opportunity to talk with so many of you during the past several months. I wish I had the opportunity to hear everyone's point of view. However, I have only been able to meet just a fraction of you. I am thankful for this opportunity to share my thoughts with those I have not met personally.

Education is one of the most precious things available to us. Good education is precious because it deals with the welfare and future of our children. I chose to become a candidate for the Elko County School Board primarily because of my deep concern about these matters. As an educator and as the father of three daughters who attend Elko County schools, I am concerned about quality education for all children of Elko County. I am a teacher. Right now, I teach biology at Northern Nevada Community College, though not a part of the Elko County School District, is a part of the University of Nevada System. After I was discharged from the Army some 15 years ago, I entered my first classroom teaching situation, a small high school in California. In spite of 180 students passing through my classes each day, I treated each student as a person. I learned that each child is an individual in his own right. I discovered first hand what the educational process is all about.

During the 1960's, I earned my Master's Degree and my Doctor of Philosophy Degree in the biological sciences. Then I spent two years teaching at the University of Alaska. After that interesting experience, I spent three years with Mead Johnson and Company in Indiana. During those three years as a junior executive with the company, I learned what the business world is all about. I have learned to understand and appreciate our free enterprise system. I have supported these concepts with my membership in Chambers of Commerce, including the Elko Chamber, for several years. I have acquired the attitudes which are necessary for me to make the best contributions to the business of running our school district.

Elko has been a home to my family in many ways other than the professional satisfaction offered by Northern Nevada Community College. I appreciate the personal and friendly atmosphere of the college and of this western community. Elko is a place where individual efforts and contributions are recognized. What we have here is worth fighting for. Elko is the place where my wife and I will maintain our home and raise our three daughters.

What can I offer to you as your representative on the Elko County School Board? I offer you my understanding of the educational process and of people. I offer you my experience in business. I offer you my deep concern for our educational system. I will make only a few promises. I will continue to seek out the views of parents, teachers, and all concerned citizens as I have done during this campaign. I will do what I can to make your views known to our school board and to our school administration. I will continue, as I have done during this campaign, to become fully informed on all aspects relating to school policy.

Education is a precious thing. It is also expensive. Almost $5,000,000 per year is spent in this county to educate our children. I will carefully consider how best to achieve an efficiently and economically run school district, but I will always try to define efficiency and economy properly — so that we can provide the best education possible for all children of Elko County. Sincerely, Dave Emerson.

Towell Announces Educational Grant

WASHINGTON — Congressman David Towell has announced that the Office of Education has awarded a grant of $35,363 to the University of Nevada System for the Student Incentive Grant Program.

Towell said the funds will pay half the cost of individual grants for an estimated 141 undergraduate students in financial need.

The Office of Education also approved grants totaling $16,940 for the College Library Resource Program on four Nevada campuses. The funds will be divided equally between Northern Nevada Community College in Elko, Western Nevada Community College in Carson City and the University of Nevada in Reno and Las Vegas. The grants will be used to acquire books, periodicals and other library materials.

Towell also announced that the National Science Foundation has awarded a fellowship to Bernard Sadowski, a faculty member at Northern Nevada Community College. Sadowski's field is law. He was one of 91 people from among 683 applicants.

His study will complete in September, 1975 at the University of Washington.

Sadowski's program involves advanced civil law, medicine, sociology and the natural sciences. He noted that the focus will be on the process and its relationship to the process.

Mrs. Meeks has studied under Howard Hickson, Utah professional Louis Heinzman, and Lowell Swendseld at Northern Nevada Community College. She attended the recent portrait classes given by Omaha artist

Jackie Goodyear.

Hickson, director of the museum, said, "Gene Meeks has been seriously painting for a relatively short time but, in those few years, has exhibited a talent worthy of exhibition. Viewers will enjoy her fresh, colorful landscapes."

The 17 piece display is co-sponsored by the museum and the National Endowment for the Arts through a grant from the Nevada State Council on the Arts.

U. of Nevada Started 100 Years ago in Elko

(Editor's Note: The following was prepared by Ed Olsen, Director of the office on information at the University of Nevada Reno, based on a history of the University of Nevada in Elko written by Howard Hickson, Director of the Northeastern Nevada Museum.)

It was on the 12th of October 100 years ago that seven pupils assembled in a two-story, red brick building at Elko for the start of Nevada's experiment in higher education.

Higher education, that is, as it was known to a sparsely settled pioneering state whose people were more interested in digging gold and silver from the ground than in the classics.

The $15,000 Elko building, which saddled the county's residents with years of bonded indebtedness, was the original seat of the University of Nevada Preparatory School.

Although "University" was part of the name, the school was, as Elko historian Howard Hickson puts it, "hardly a high school."

Lawyer Albert T. Hawley, who helped draft the state constitutional provision for a university, had observed 10 years earlier during the constitutional debates:

"To create a state university, to build up its various departments, and fill it with professors, is a work of time."

Hawley added that first there had to be developed a system of public schools so Nevadans could place themselves in a position to avail themselves of the advantages of a university.

That was the mission of the little school at Elko, built for 100 students of whom no more than 35 ever showed up in a single year of its 11-year history.

Location of the school at Elko, instead of near one of the state's population centers 300 miles away in Western Nevada, was the result more of small town rivalry than of zeal for education, notes Hickson in his "A History of the University of Nevada at Elko" published in the Winter 1974 edition of "The Northeastern Nevada Historical Society Quarterly."

In addition to Elko, Reno wanted the school. So did Carson

Regents and other officials of the University of Nevada System will dedicate a bell that once was a part of the first University of Nevada building in Elko during brief ceremonies scheduled at 11:45 a.m. tomorrow.

The bell has been suspended on railroad bridge timbers (from a trestle that once spanned the Humboldt River in the Falls Canyon) and installed as a monument on the Elko High School campus at the site of that first U of N building, which stood about where the old gymnasium is located at EHS, facing College Avenue.

City. And Washoe City. And Washoe Valley. And Genoa. Winnemucca had supporters, too.

The Board of Regents had touched off the competition in 1872 by putting the matter up for bid. Elko led the field with a bid Howard Hamlin, bakery chef at the Stockmen's Motor Hotel, made and decorated a cake as a replica of the first University of Nevada building in Elko. Hamlin surprised the organizers of a local celebration for the university's centennial Friday by displaying the cake at a buffet table. The chef designed the cake from photographs that were on display in a University of Nevada exhibit at the celebration.

Elkoan Attends Meeting

Bernard S. Sadowski, Administrative Assistant at Northern Nevada Community College, recently attended the meeting of the Intermountain States Consortium of Two-Year Colleges. The Consortium consists of 20 colleges from the states in the intermountain area.

The meeting was held Nov. 1-2 in Salt Lake City, Utah. Sadowski reported that the major areas of discussion centered upon curriculum development and communication problems within management teams. All three Nevada community colleges were represented along with schools from Wyoming, Utah, Montana and Idaho. The next meeting of the Consortium will be in January at Las Vegas.

TV Course For 3 College Credits Told By NNCC

Dr. William Berg, executive vice president at Northern Nevada Community College, announced today that the college will be participating in a unique television course for college credits.

Beginning January 7, 1975, a series of 13 movies called "The Ascent of Man" will be shown on the Public Broadcast System. In the Elko area, the viewers will use Channel 7 and the first telecast will be aired at 7:30 p.m. Each week the movie will be repeated at 5:00 p.m. the following Saturday.

"The Ascent of Man" concerns the history of man as a phenomenon in which science emerges as a natural activity in each age at a level appropriate to that age. It is concerned with cultural evolution, with discovery itself rather than that which is discovered, with the way man works, the way he shapes himself to his environment, and the environment to himself. It deals with the actual places where great evolutionary, cultural and intellectual steps took place, and with the men who motivated those steps.

Hanna Tells Rotarians Of Revolutionary War

Paul S. Hanna, professor at Northern Nevada Community College in Elko, yesterday described to members of the Elko Rotary Club various items of historical information pertinent to the American Revolutionary War.

Hanna, who was introduced by Bill Nisbet, said during his talk he hopes to arrange for the presentation of a play entitled "Valley Forge" in Elko as part of the community's observance of the American Bicentennial.

Discussing the Revolutionary War, Hanna noted the war lasted from 1775 until 1784 and he said much misunderstanding and "mythology" persist with regard to actual circumstances which existed during that time.

As an example, Hanna said the American colonies were not misgoverned and not oppressed, but were more "benignly" treated than the colonies of other nations of the era.

The professor said the war started as a kind of protest movement among colonists and evolved into a revolutionary war as an unplanned circumstance. He also reported George Washington was an unlikely leader of an army — with virtually no background or training as a military man — and added that historians really don't know much about Washington because his wife, Martha, burned all his personal letters.

Although some have described American soldiers of the Revolution as being capable in battle, Hanna said that in fact the American troops were "ragged, ill-equipped, ill-trained, nearly riotous amateurs." He noted that the American forces included a number of "natural guerilla fighters" but Gen. Washington attempted to commit them to battle according to the formalistic rituals of warfare practiced by British and French troops of the time. On more than one occasion, Hanna related, the commander of the British forces, General William Howe, complained in letters to Washington that American soldiers were not "sporting" because they deliberately aimed their musket fire at British officers.

Hanna explained the ritualistic approach to warfare called for opposing armies to line up facing each other at a distance of only about 50 yards and fire their smooth-bore .70 caliber muskets at each other. Officers were assigned to positions in front of their troops, he noted.

The American forces were beaten decisively and repeatedly by seasoned superior British troops, but the colonists refused to surrender or even submit to negotiation with British officials.

Hanna also reported one of the reasons the American soldiers were so poorly equipped was that the Continental Congress was created without authority to raise money or acquire supplies and could only beg the individual states in support of the war effort.

College Receives
 Grant To Produce
 "Valley Forge"

Dr. William Berg, executive vice president of Northern Nevada Community College, announces the receipt of a grant of $5,150 from the Nevada Humanities Committee for the project "Valley Forge." The project was submitted by Professor Paul S. Hanna and includes the production of the play, "Valley Forge," by Maxwell Anderson, and a series of visiting speakers and discussion groups, all addressed to the subject of the American Revolution 1775-1975.

"Valley Forge" is a powerful and moving play by one of America's greatest playwrights and deals with the heroism and triumph over hunger and despair of General George Washington's ragged army in the grim winter war of 1777-1778.

Unique College Course To Be Given On TV

A unique college course to be given on television is scheduled to start January 7, 1975, it was announced by Dr. William Berg, of Northern Nevada Community College. Participating students will receive three credits upon completion of the course, said Berg.

"The Ascent of Man" is a series of 13 films prepared and narrated by the late Jacob Bronowski, renowned scientist, mathematician and poet. It shows the history of man through his scientific achievements. Dr. Bronowski, who died August 22, 1974, devoted the last years of his life to this project, which took 3½ years of preparation and filming and cost more than $4 million. Shown nationally by the Public Broadcasting Service stations, it will be seen here on Channel 7 on January 7 at 7:30 p.m.

Acclaimed for its high degree of scholarship, the series received great acceptance from BBC viewers who were from diverse economic and social strata. This is largely due to Dr. Bronowski's ability to explain science in humanistic terms and the interrelationship of scientific advances and history of man. Dr. Bronowski was a research professor and fellow of the Salk Institute for Biological Studies in La Jolla, Calif., where he specialized on what functions and characteristics make man unique among animal species.

The course is given by NNCC with tuition being $31.50.

THE SPAN of worlds is represented by this pre-Hispanic idol from the New World and the book behind it, "The Ascent of Man." The latter is based on a 13-part television series — being the same title — that relates to man's development through his achievements in science. Co-produced by Time-Life Films Inc. and British Broadcasting Corp., this scintillating series is the basic for an off-campus course given by the Community College. The programs debut January 7, Channel 7 at 7:30 p.m.

NNCC Takes Second Win From Eagles

Dec. 23, 74

By Doug Harper

The Northern Nevada Community College basketball team completed its first two-game series sweep of the year when the Knights downed American River College of Placerville, Calif. 86-71 Saturday in the Centennial Gym. The Knights also downed the Eagles 88-68 Friday night.

The win upped the Knights' season record to 3-4. American River's mark for the year remained spotless at 0-7.

Elko coach Don Morris was extremely pleased with his team's outing. He described them as a "bunch of hardworking guys." He also added that they made up "the best team ever at the Elko school. Now that we've settled our early season jitters, it's going to be very hard to beat us."

Both teams started slowly, but NNCC grabbed the lead that it held for the entire game when the Elkoans scored the opening basket. Behind Benny Tillman and Brian Schrenk, the Knights began to build their lead throughout the half as they took a 43-23 lead into the locker rooms. Schrenk had 16 points while Tillman added 10 during the first half. Ralph Johnson teamed with Schrenk and Tillman as the nucleus of the Knights rebounding for the period.

Brian Longwill paced the Eagles in first half scoring with 15 points while Brian Fennel led his team in rebounding.

When the second half began, the Eagles seemed to have found their groove. They slowly began chipping away at the Knights' lead, but they could never make a serious threat.

Dennis Todhunter, Bob Walter, and Longwill were the floor leaders for American River in the second half.

Tillman and Schrenk continued their scoring binge for the Knights. Schrenk had 28 points. Tillman followed with 24 points and Johnson, a 6-5 center from Lovelock, added 11 points.

Longwill took game honors with 33 points as he connected on outside and inside shots throughout the game. Todhunter added 14 to the Eagles' cause.

The next time the Knights will be in action will be on Jan. 17-18 when they travel to Salt Lake for a two-game series with Utah Technical College at Salt Lake.

Due to a misunderstanding, Brian Schrenk of the NNCC basketball team was incorrectly identified as Steve Griswold in Saturday's paper. Schrenk is from Deccio, Idaho. He scored 24 points on 11 field goals and two free throws.

RSVP Roundup

Feb 13, 75
At the January meeting of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program Advisory Board Chairman Bernard Sadowski presented his resignation, since he will be leaving in May for Seattle, Wash., where he will attend the University of Washington working on his Doctorate. He will remain as a member of the board until the end of May.

At the meeting, the Rev. Charles Waters of Carlin was elected as the new advisory board chairman and Frances Sewell as vice-chairman, both by unanimous votes.

Eileen Hinson, assistant to the State Director for ACTION in Nevada, attended the meeting and expressed her pleasure at the progress being made in Elko by the Jaycees RSVP Project.

Dexter Farrell, director, reported that about 63 retired senior volunteers are now active in the RSVP Project and that the program will be extended to Carlin and Wells as rapidly as possible. Four "Foster Grandparents" are now working in Elko under the supervision of the RSVP Office. RSVP-Elko has just completed an assignment for Phase II of the Supplemental Security Income Program for HEW, interviewing and placing applications at Reno for persons residing in seven northern Nevada counties, Farrell said.

The Elko RSVP Project has just been assigned to work on a project for the Carson Valley Historical Society covering Elko County from the beginning until the year 1900 as Phase I. Farrell indicates that additional senior citizen volunteers will be needed for this project. Phone 738-3030 or stop at the RSVP Office in the Jaycee Clubhouse if you are interested, Farrell said.

The next meeting of the RSVP Advisory Board will be held at the Jaycee Clubhouse Thursday, Feb. 20, at 5 p.m.

Another class has been added to the Pioneer Arts and Crafts program funded by the Nevada Council on the Arts, National Endowment for the Arts and Northern Nevada Community College, it was announced by Sarah Campsey, coordinator of the program.

Leonore Rush will be teaching a class in weaving beginning on Thursday. The class is offered twice during the day from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 7-10 p.m. and instruction will continue for six weeks. The cost is $9.

The course is the first in a series taught by Mrs. Rush and will deal with the use of floor looms such as the Inkle Loom and stick looms (a part of the American heritage), and table looms of various sizes.

She will discuss the various types of looms, weaving patterns and design at the class.

Mrs. Rush is a native of Germany and is a graduate teacher in home economics, handwork and physical education, receiving her education in her homeland. She participated in a study program in the United States to exchange ideas on education.

Her knowledge of weaving is from college work and she also recently had an acquaintance from Germany who is a professional handweaver visit her in Elko.

The weaving class will be held in Room 20 of the Learning Resources building at the college. Further information may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Campsey, 738-8483.

Candle Light Ceremony

With only four candles to light the room, commencement ceremonies at Northern Nevada Community College were held last evening in the college's library.

Light flowed through the large windows on the east side of the building during the first half of the ceremonies, which began at 7 p.m.

Dr. Kenneth Hansen, commencement speaker, commented that he enjoyed Paul S. Hanna's speech, but noted that Hanna took up all the light. Professor Hanna was selected to give the the faculty address and, appeared on the program before Dr. Hansen, who held up his notes as he made the remark.

The Elko Community Orchestra seemed to have little difficulty with its musical selection, ballet from "Pepite Suite" which was played after the sun went down and little light was available for the musicians to read their music.

Following the ceremonies, the graduates filed out through a line of candles held by nursing students.

A reception was held in the student lounge which was lighted by a few candles on the serving tables and the headlights from a four-wheel drive vehicle which was pulled up to the windows by the lounge.

COMMENCEMENT CEREMONIES were held last night for 33 students at Northern Nevada Community College. The college's library, site of the graduation ceremonies, was filled to capacity. James L. Buchanan III (standing far left), chairman of the University of Nevada Board of Regents, presented the degrees. Elkoan Attends Library Conference ⁵⁻²⁸⁻⁷⁵

Juanita Karr, Northern Nevada Community College librarian, recently met with librarians from 11 other states to discuss progress and problems of implementing an interstate and interlibrary resource exchange at Peaceful Valley, Colo. Other Nevada representatives were: Robert Anderl, University of Nevada, Las Vegas; Rae Clemison, coordinator-CSD Nevada State Library, Carson City; Nancy Hudson, Clark County Library District.

The librarians were participants in a conference sponsored by the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education (WICHE), entitled "The Institute for Training the Trainers in Training for Interlibrary Cooperation and Networking."

"The goal of our project is to increase the equitable sharing of library resources throughout the West," said Maryann Egan, conference coordinator.

An earlier meeting of the participants, in December, concentrated on informing these librarians of the possibilities of resource sharing. In April, they compared notes on the progress and problems they had all had in their home states.

Problems ranged from informing the public of the broader service that would become available with a western library network to explaining individual state library needs to legislators.

Upon returning to their home states, the librarians planned to keep up-to-date on successful resource sharing ideas through the Continuing Education and Library Resources Program at WICHE.

The Continuing Education and Library Resources Program is one of 44 programs conducted by the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education in the fields of higher education, health, mental health, corrections, and management information systems for postsecondary education.

WICHE is a public agency which helps the 13 western states work together to increase educational opportunities for western youth, to improve programs of universities and colleges, to expand the supply of specialized manpower, and to inform the public of higher education needs.

Valley Forge In Reno ^{June 17} 1975 EIKO Tomorrow

The Elko Community Theater production of "Valley Forge" will close its first season with a request performance this weekend at the Church Fine Arts Theater on the campus of the University of Nevada, Reno.

The production of Maxwell Anderson's "Valley Forge" has been sponsored by Northern Nevada Community College and funded by the Nevada Humanities Committee. The play, which includes a cast of 25 actors, has received acclaim and has been presented to audiences in Elko, Winnemucca and Ely. The next planned production of the play will take place this fall with presentations in Elko and surrounding areas, and also in Las Vegas.

^{May 29, 1975}
CAST OF 'VALLEY FORGE' -- These 25 members of the Elko Community Theater will be on stage here Saturday when the theater presents its production of Maxwell Anderson's play, 'Valley Forge.' No admission is being charged and the curtain will go up at Nixon Hall at 7:30 p.m. The play is being presented as a local bicentennial celebration event. The dog Missy, right, plays General Howe's Rover.

Drama Of American Revolution To Be Staged in Winnemucca

Winnemucca will begin its bicentennial celebration Saturday when the curtain goes up on a presentation of Maxwell Anderson's play Valley Forge.

The Elko Community Theater Production is being sponsored here by the Northern Nevada Community College. The curtain goes up at Nixon Hall theater at 7:30 p. m., and no admission is being charged.

On stage will be 25 members of the Elko Community Theater company under the direction of Richard Ryan.

Anderson's powerful drama tells the story of the heroism, despair and humor of the men and women of Washington's ragged, ill-fed army in the bleak winter of 1778 among the log huts of Valley Forge.

The play is realistic, the language is at times rough and descriptive but often rises to some of the finest poetic height ever achieved in this great American play. Parents are advised there are scenes in 'Valley Forge' that are hardly suitable for children under 12.

General George Washington is powerfully portrayed by Lamar Laws. Cynthia Arias gives an outstanding performance as the beautiful Mary Morris, George Washington's first real love.

Commenting on the Elko Community Theater production of Anderson's play, project director Paul Hanna wrote:

"In the winter of 1777-1778, a beaten general led his ragged disintegrating army into a bleak winter encampment at Valley Forge.

"The British Army under General Sir William Howe, had badly defeated General Washington's ill-equipped and poorly-trained revolutionaries at the battles of Brandywine Creek and Germantown. General Howe's proud British regiments then occupied Philadelphia, the capital of the rebellious colonies and Valley Forge, in that bitter winter, became a place of death and despair.

"Yet out of Valley Forge there arose a shining memory of the human devotion and self-sacrifice of an amateur commander and his phantom army that is one of the finest hours in our American heritage. It is to the memory of the memory of the men and women of Valley

Forge that our play is dedicated.

Almon Copley, Tom Rodriguez, Eugene DePolo, Tim Bliesenbach, Ray Gardner, Beverly Copley, and Patty Brown.

The production is being funded by the Nevada Humanities Committee.

Following the presentation here, the company will travel to Ely June 7, and Carson City June 14.

'Valley Forge' Wins Favorable Comment

^{EIKO June 21-75}

Members of the cast of "Valley Forge," a play about the American Revolution sponsored by Northern Nevada Community College, have won favorable comment for performances staged at both Reno and Ely.

The Elko actors were in Ely on June 7, and prompted reviewer Margaret Rowe to write in the Ely Daily Times:

"The Elko theater group must be commended for their fine production. Particularly effective were: Paul Hanna as Sir William Howe, who gave a polished projection of the British attitude of patronizing, slightly amused superiority. His quieter voice was well heard by the audience, and provided a contrast to the stentorian tones of others.

"Lamar Laws brought off George Washington very well, at times even looking like the portraits. Gregory Corn made a caricature of the mercenary jack-a-napes, Lt. Cutting.

"Warmly humorous and three-dimensional was Byron Bilyeu as Lt. Col. Tench. Cynthia Arias did Mrs. Morris with charm, a lovely voice and beautiful diction ..."

The Nevada State Journal welcomed the Elko actors to Reno with an editorial commending their effort on the morning of the day of their performance there, June 14.

The editorial noted Elko had staged the play as a part of the observance of the American Bicentennial and observed, "the community college play is one of the town's gifts to the entire state ... and we're happy to welcome the cast of 'Valley Forge' to Reno."

The performance in Reno was the last in a series of out-of-town appearances that also included Winnemucca.

Summer Arts, Crafts ^{June 2 75} Classes Being Planned ^{R1KO}

Summer classes are being planned in connection with the Pioneer Arts and Crafts program funded by the Nevada State Council on the Arts, National Endowment for the Arts and Northern Nevada Community College.

A week workshop for teachers, scoutleaders and those interested in working with children, will cover such pioneer arts and crafts as making a wooden toy, ding bats (colonial lanterns), simple weaving, hex signs and foods such as homemade ice cream.

Sarah Campsey, coordinator of the program and instructor of the workshop, stated "The pioneer child was not given toys and treats as is our modern child. He was a working part of his rewards such as homemade ice cream. Not only did he milk the cow and chop the ice, but he took a fair turn at cranking the freezer, hoping, of course, to make that last turn himself so that he might lick the dasher.

"To stick weave he undoubtedly cut and whittled his own sticks. He spent a good deal of time at the woodpile chopping wood, receiving (not too willingly) lessons with morals from father and thinking out his own philosophical thoughts as he whittled a wood scrap into a shimmy-diddle or a whirl-i-m-gigor, perhaps a new wooden toy for baby brother.

"There was continuity between the child's work and the child's play in those days that is to be a goal of this class. Emphasis will be on learning how to develop the child's skills, self interest and discipline. Historical highlights will be tied into the projects.

NNCC Students to ^{June 5 75} Read History Papers ^{EIKO}

Selected Northern Nevada Community College students will read their history papers at the Northeastern Nevada Museum at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday.

During the symposium,

"I am not interested in teaching parents and teachers projects with which to entertain children. The classes that will be open to children through this summer program are not to entertain the child nor as a cheap babysitting service. We're very serious about sharing skills with which the children can become more creative, coordinated and involved in activities they can carry out themselves outside of class."

The workshop will be June 23-27 from 9 a.m. until 12 noon each day in Room 12 LR. The enrollment (Continued on Back Page) jointly sponsored by the museum and college, Fort Halleck, Gallagher Fish Hatchery, KELK Radio, Nevada tagelines, Edna Patterson, Governor Lewis Bradley and Lamolle Valley will be discussed.

Students scheduled to participate are Gary Parsons, James Davis, Pat Teel, Rod Hart, Rita Benesch, Tammy Robison and Lori Gregory.

Papers to be read resulted from assignments given the college's Composition and Rhetoric classes instructed by Dr. Charles Greenhaw and Genie Goicoechea.

Articles read at the symposium are submitted to the editorial board of the Northeastern Nevada Historical Society Quarterly for possible future publication.

This year's session, the third, is open to the public and admission is free.

Waitress Training 'Success'

June 13 1975 ELKO

A four-week waitress training course, offered for the first time by Northern Nevada Community College in cooperation with the Nevada Employment Service, was said to be a success and will again be made available next spring.

Dr. William Berg of NNCC stated the program was very successful and noted all those taking the course who are still in Elko have found jobs.

The course, which included one week of on-the-job training, was offered after numerous requests were received from local hotels for qualified waitresses to begin work in the summer when the tourist season picks up.

The candidates for the class were screened by the employment service and received two weeks of training before they served at the Elko Senior Citizens Center for one week and worked on the job for their last week.

The instruction was given by Inez Hale.

The college has also been offering workshops for those currently employed as waitresses. The workshops cover such areas as working with others and public relations.

CEREMONIES WERE HELD Saturday night for students graduating under the Elko Adult High School program. Thirty-four students were eligible to receive diplomas as high

The last speaker in the series of "Project Valley Forge" humanists will appear in the Northern Nevada Community College library on Friday, at 7:30 p.m. Dr. Charles Donnelly will speak on Maxwell Anderson, American dramatist, and the theater of the 1920's, 1930's and 1940's. Dr. Donnelly is well known as an interesting speaker and student of American literature, a college spokesman said.

"Project Valley Forge" has presented Maxwell Anderson's play of the American Revolution to audiences in Elko, Winnemucca, Ely and Reno along with a series of speakers on subjects related to the American Revolution, its social, economic and political effects.

Dr. Donnelly will discuss the historical plays of Anderson written in blank verse in the Shakespearean tradition. His address will be followed by a general discussion period. The Friday night program will be of interest to the people of Elko interested in modern theater and its development, the spokesman said, noting the public is invited, and, as in all the "Project Valley Forge" activities, there will be no admission charge.

THE WEED JUNGLE at Northern Nevada Community College will be replaced by grass under a contract for landscaping with Nevada Lawn Service of Reno, which recently was awarded the job by the University of Nevada Board of Regents. The work includes planting grass and shrubs between the area from the west side of the college driveway and parking lot to east of the two campus buildings. Also the contract provides for the sodding of the child development area.
